WELTNER TO HEAD ATLANTA LOW COST HOUSING PROJECT

Architects in City Sign Contracts To Draw Up Specifications for Four Separate Structures

BUILDING COSTS SET AT $10,000,000

2,500 Units Expected To Care for Between 10,000-11,000 Persons.

Philip Weltner, former chancellor of the University System of Georgia, yesterday was named executive director of the Atlanta low-cost housing projects as plans for beginning work on slum clearance as soon as possible were mapped by the Atlanta Housing Authority.

Signing contracts with various Atlanta architects to draw up plans and specifications, C. F. Palmer, chairman of the local authority, announced four separate low-cost housing projects will be undertaken in the quadrants of he city.

The four projects, two each for white and negroes, will house between 10,000 and 11,000 persons in 2,500 units constructed on four plots of from 20 to 25 acres each, Palmer said.

The chairman revealed also that the $900,000 in bonds, to be issued by the Authority, which matches the federal government's $9,000,000 allotment, has already been tentatively subscribed for by Atlanta financial institutions.

As soon as construction costs are absolutely known, loan contracts with the Uited States Housing Authority for its 90 per cent of the cost will be arranged, he asserted.

Total cost of the four contemplated projects will be $9,900,000.

Locations Not Decided.

Palmer said locations of the four projects have not been decided upon, and asserted alternative locations will be selected in case property owners attempt to "hold up" the Authority on the price to be paid for land.

Actual construction of the 2,500 units, which will rent for $10 or $15 per month per unit, will be started when the United States Authority gives approval to Atlanta's plans, he declared.

Architects who will draw the plans for the various projects are Tucker and Howell, with Cooper and Cooper, George H. Bond and Farzer and Bodin as associates; Burge and Stevens, with I. Moscowitz, Henry Tombs, and Smith and Daves as associates; Hentz, Adler and Shutze, with A. Ten Eyck Brown, Ivey and Crook, and Francis P. Smith as associates; and Robert and Company, with Edwards and Sayward, Barilli and Humphries, and R. Kennon Perry as associates.

The law firm of Hirsch and Smith, with the firm of Candler, Cox and McLamb as associates, will be counsel for the Authority.

Million Work Days.

Temporary offices of the Authority are located at 516 First National Bank building.

Chairman Palmer said approximately 1,000,000 eight-hour work days will be provided for labor in the construction of the low-cost projects. He added, however, that work will be carried on in a method which will not call for an in-

'Insulted' Coweta Committee Bills Talmadge for $76.50

Group of 25 Not Only Refuses Contest Plea But Assess Ex-Governor $3 Apiece; Nine Other Counties Reject Protests.

Nine more Georgia counties yesterday rejected ex-Governor Talmadge's appeals for a recount, one of them, Coweta, not only turning him down but passing resolutions "strongly resenting his inferences and accusations" and voting unanimously to assess him $3 per member for each of the 25 members attending the meeting and $1.50 for postage expended to call the committee into session.

The other counties spurning the Talmadge bid included Brooks, White, Screven, Jackson, Greene, Jasper, Mitchell and White.

Meantime, the Lanier county committee set 10:30 o'clock Wednesday for its hearing, under W. T. Summers, chairman.

Talmadge has filed 34 county protests contesting the renomination of Senator George, who defeated him in the state-wide primary a week ago last Wednesday. In all counties where the matter has been passed upon by the Democratic executive committees, the Talmadge pleas have been dismissed. A number of hearings are scheduled for next week.

At Newnan, where the Coweta county committee gathered, the group voted unanimously to reject the contest plea.

A resolution offered by Committeeman N. B. Patterson, of Turin, termed the Talmadge contest "personally insulting to every member of the committee" and strongly resented the "inferences and accusations" of the former Governor.

Chairman Roger S. Bryant said the committee secretary had been instructed to forward copies of both resolutions to Talmadge in Atlanta and to distribute the $3 each to committee members when and if Talmadge pays the assessment.

"We have no funds in our treasury to pay the expense of today's meeting," Chairman Bryant pointed out. "We heard over the radio and saw in the newspapers where

Others Completing Competitive Arrangements in The Constitution's $4,000 Awards Program.

SCORES OF PRIZES TO REWARD MERIT

6,128 Georgia Growers Entered in Campaign To Improve Farming.

Thirteen Georgia counties yesterday were ready for the judging in The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper campaign. The Constitution will distribute $4,000 in 33 cash awards, eight silver trophies and 577 other recognitions to Georgia's most progressive planters for the year.

Judging committees have been designated in Early, Gordon, Grady, Gwinnet, Haralson, Hart, Jefferson, Jenkins, Meriwether, Seminole, Taylor, Turner and Whitfield counties, and before the end of the week judging groups will be named in the rest of the state's 159 counties.

In addition to the $4,000 cash offered by The Constitution, entrants in 19 counties of the state will vie for awards totaling about $4,000, posted by persons interested in improvement of Georgia agriculture.

6,128 Entrants.

The 6,128 entries in the program represent a total of 807,696 acres throughout the state, and every one of the entrants has been striving throughout the year to become a better farmer and at the same time win the awards.

Walter S. Brown, director of the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service; Whitney Tharin, extension editor; Dean Paul Chapman, of the Agricultural College of the University of Georgia; Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University System of Georgia; Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools; M. D. Mobley, state director of vocational education, and scores of others who are devoting much of their time and efforts towards making planters financially independent by championing a live-at-home program, have given the program their co-operation.

The agricultural extension service and The Constitution are cooperating closely in the last few weeks of the campaign as they

DADALIER, BONNET WILL FLY TO LONDON FOR TALKS TODAY

French Troops Mobilize, Towns Are Evacuated, Government To Quit Paris in Event of War.

CITIES PREPARED FOR PLANE RAIDS

Daladier Stands Firm That Nation Would Support Invaded Czechs.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—France today took a long stride in the progressive mobilization of her army, setting the pace in Europe's fearful girding for possible war over the future of Czechoslovakia.

Military authorities started evacuation of civilians from towns and villages along the German frontier.

Dwellers in the Rhine frontier region between France's Maginot line and Germany's Siegfried fortifications started leaving their homes under orders. This area would be a pivotal point if war broke out.

The French government itself was understood to have decided to quit Paris quickly in case of war. The present plans, it was said, called for removal of the premiership and other major ministries to Vichy while secondary cabinet offices would be transferred to Angers.

The summons to the colors, plastered on city walls, published by newspapers and broadcast by radio, sent 380,000 reservists to their posts and swelled the nation's armed forces to more than 2,000,000 men while other powers put their own armies on a war footing.

Newly armed troops, chanting the French patriotic hymn, "La Marseillaise," marched through concentration centers during the night to posts along the Rhine frontier facing Germany.

A number of regular army troops also were moved from interior barracks to the border.

Batteries Mounted.

At midnight, the foreign ministry announced Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet had accepted an invitation from the British government for a new conference in London tomorrow.

Military preparations, meanwhile, kept their swift pace.

Streets were marked off in many sections of Paris by mobile guards as engineering corps

London Speeds Powerful Resources Toward War Footing; Chamberlain's Smile Masks Worry.

'PEACE OF EUROPE' HINGES ON EFFORTS

Parliament Will Be Called for Session Early This Week, Reports Say.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Great Britain today laid Germany's peace terms before the Czechoslovak government without an immediate attempt to dictate acceptance, and speeded the country's powerful resources toward a war footing in pace with other European nations.

Masking his worry behind a smile, Prime Minister Chamberlain returned from his historic Godesberg mission bearing Reichsfuehrer Hitler's demand for transfer of the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia to Germany by October 1.

Chamberlain had few words for the public immediately.

"My first duty," he said, "now that I have come back is to report to the British and French governments. I will only say this:

"I trust that all concerned will continue their efforts to solve the Czechoslovak problem peacefully because on that turns the peace of Europe in our time."

In official Czechoslovak circles tonight it was said the Fuehrer in his peace terms had refused to guarantee the frontiers of the remainder of the Czechoslovak republic unless Hungary and Poland also became guarantors.

This was interpreted as being Chancellor Hitler's way of demanding Hungary and Poland also be given chunks of Czechoslovakia in which their minorities live.

The foreign office gave the memorandum to Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovak minister, "without comment" as Chamberlain called the "inner cabinet" into session at 3:35 p. m. Two hours later he summoned the full cabinet, which met from 5 p. m. until 7:35 p. m.

No communique was issued immediately, but it was expected parliament would be called into session early next week. The cabinet was called to meet again at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Premier Edouard Daladier, of France, and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet will fly to London tomorrow to get from Chamberlain a first-hand account of

STATE BOARDS ASK $2,453,550 PWA AID

$713,475 Sought for Highways; Penal Group Has Plans To Spend $868,000

State highway and penal boards applied to the Public Works Administration yesterday for aid in financing a construction program to cost $2,453,550.

The highway commission requested a grant of $713,475 for a street, road and bridge building program over the state to cost an estimated $1,585,500. The project is for 91.419 miles of street and road building and paving and 23 bridges. Included in the applications were plans for widening and resurfacing parts of the Atlanta-Griffin highway.

The penal board asked that plans for the construction of several buildings in the neighborhood of the new state prison in Tattnall county be approved. Director Lamar Murdaugh said the program was in accordance with the board's aim to eventually house all state prisoners in Tattnall county. Included were a hospital for tubercular prisoners, now at Milledgeville, and quarters for the prison staff personnel. To be built at an estimated cost of $868,050, the board requested a PWA grant of $390,622 and a loan of $477,427.

Before Deadline.

The plans were filed a day after Fulton county submitted an amended application for prison barracks at Bellwood, Alpharetta and South Camps, to cost $617,751, and five working days before the deadline for apploccations to the agency, September 30.

Applications from five Georgia communities, seeking federal aid for the construction of school buildings and civic improvements were also received in the regional office yesterday. $27,382 PWA

Mayor To Ask Weekly Study Of Parole File

Hartsfield Will Demand That Public Records Be Made Public.

Examination of the records of the state prison and parole commission every week by representatives of the Atlanta police department will be demanded by Mayor Hartsfield, he said yesterday.

Asserting he did not "agree" at all with the "principle" laid down by Judge Vivian Stanley, chairman of the commission, that the commission would prepare a list of paroled criminals for the city, the mayor said he would insist on the records being made available to the police department whenever they were needed in police work.

He cited the laws of the state of Georgia that all records kept by public officials shall be available to any taxpayer. Assistant City Attorney Bond Almand advised Hartsfield that the act setting up the prison and parole commission in no wise exempts its records from scrutiny.

The mayor's assertions followed publication yesterday of quotations from Judge Stanley he would have a list of pardoned and paroled convicted persons prepared for the police department and the quotation that the commission did not have at any time a request from Mayor Hartsfield or Police Chief M. A. Hornsby to be allowed to inspect the commission's records.

"We sent J. O. Young over there weeks ago to get the records," said the mayor. "He had begun copying them when someone came and told him he could not copy any more records and took those he had copied away from him."

Chief Hornsby reported the

BERLIN CONFIDENT WAR IS AVERTED

Stronger Stands of Democracies Make Hitler Prefer Peace to Strife.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

(Copyright, 1938, by the Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—By October 1 at the latest the world will know whether Czechoslovakia will yield to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's final demands to cede peacefully to Germany those sections oth er Sudeten region which are overwhelmingly German.

Confronted with the possibility that Europe's western democracies might yet rally to the republic's defense unless the Sudetenland transfer were made by mutual agreement, Hitler preferred peace to war.

The Fuehrer phrased his demands in such conciliatory words that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain agreed to submit them to the Prague government, a reliable informant declared.

Hitler merely insisted that by October 1 the scheme must be carried out for giving Sudeten German districts to Germany—the scheme which Britain and France importuned Czechoslovakia to accept and the Prague government agreed to under pressure last Wednesday.

Fights Mount Near Border Of Germany

Engagements Between Sudetens and Czech Forces Increase by Hour.

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER.

ASCH, Czechoslovakia (Near the German Frontier), Sept. 24.—(AP)—Guerrilla warfare swept today along Czechoslovakia's borders with Bavaria and Saxony, growing more serious hour by hour.

Engagements between Sudeten German free corps units, organized in Germany, and Czechoslovak forces multiplied as the result of the Prague government's general mobilization order of last night.

Fleeing Sudeten Germans were the chief cause of shooting frays reported all along the frontier.

German territory on the northwest and southwest borders of Czechoslovakia was without communication with the war-born republic except for the Asch district, a strip of land 15 miles long and five miles wide jutting into Germany.

Asch yesterday declared itself free from Czechoslovakia and barricades were erected across all roads to prevent reoccupation by the Czechoslovak military.

What was happening at Eger, less than 15 miles from here, was not known even in German border points which are three miles from the city's limits. Strong military

Heavy G. O. P. Gains Shown In Poll of Congress Races

Republicans Would Add 60 Seats If Elections Were Held Today.

Editor's Note: Between now and the nation-wide elections, November 8, the American Institute of Public Opinion will report the trend of political sentiment exclusively in The Constitution. Today's survey is the first of a series to be published a sthe campaign goes down the home-stretch. It is the fifth Institute survey on congressional prospects in the past ten months.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—With the November congressional elections only six weeks away, a new nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates Republican gains of at least 60 seats if the election were held today.

Whether the Republicans actually achieve these gains on election day depends on a multitude of things, including the vigor of their own campaign in the next six weeks, the strength of the Democrats' counter-attack, and the extent to which President Roosevelt influences the result himself.

The Institute's surveys on congressional prospects will be continued up to the eve of the voting November 8, and wil show whether the Republicans are holding present gains or not. Today's survey shows that the GOP is holding about the same position it did in July, when the Institute estimated

GOP GAIN WOULD BE FIRST SINCE 1928

If the Republicans increase their delegation in the house of representatives as the result of the November 8 congressional elections, it will be the first time the GOP has gained since 1928.

In 1928 the Republicans, with Herbert Hoover heading the victorious ticket, elected 267 members of the house.

Since then the drop has been as follows:

| | GOP Seats | Loss From Previous Election |
|---|---|---|
| 1930 | 220 | —47 |
| 1932 | 117 | —103 |
| 1934 | 103 | —14 |
| 1936 | 89 | —14 |

If the election were today, the Institute of Public Opinion estimates, the Republicans would be at least 60 seats stronger than in 1936.

'Fight Again To Make World Safe?' No! Cry 'Lost Battalion' Survivors

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Would they fight again "to make the world safe for democracy?"

Survivors of the historic "lost battalion"—men who enacted the supreme American hero story of the World War—gathered in New York tonight for their first reunion in 20 years, and voiced an emphatic answer:

"No!"

Only 50 are left now, gray-haired and stoutish, out of the original battalion, 600 strong, that broke through the German line on October 2, 1918, and held out for five days and nights . . . cut off, ringed by gray-clad hordes . . . under a merciless hail of death from rifles, machine guns, bombs, shrapnel and liquid fire . . . half-starved, parched with thirst, almost without medical aid.

Tonight, they turned time back.

The crackle of gunfire in the eerie, rain-drenched Argonne forest hushed s ddenly, on that October day long ago, and the hollow-eyed men in khaki stared at a smudgy letter containing the Germans' terse demand for surrender.

They could see dim forms moving in the wooded gloom . . . squat steel helmets and bayonets . . . the ugly snout of a flame-thrower inching forward to spew agonizing mutilation if they didn't give up.

Then, startling in the forest silence, the voice of Major Charles W. Whittlesey, commander of the BERLIN, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The official German news agency, DNB, reported from Prague tonight that the Sudeten leader, Deputy Ernst Kundt, had been arrested by Czechoslovak authorities.

Kundt, who often represented the Sudeten minority in negotiations with the Czechoslovak government, was a close collaborator of the Sudetens' "little fuehrer," Konrad Henlein.

SKIRMISHES ALONG CZECH FRONTIER INCREASE HOURLY

FLEEING SUDETENS ARE CHIEF CAUSE OF SHOOTING FRAYS

reinforcements arrived in Eger last night.

The Czechoslovak army today blew up bridges, barricades and roads all along the borders with Bavaria and Saxony. No more trains entered Czechoslovakia from those sections of Germany.

The Sudeten German free corps undertook its largest, and first daylight, raid this morning at Muelbach, three miles from Eger.

One machine gun was used in the action against Muelbach and Czechoslovak customs houses.

Czechs Retreat.

Some 30 free corps men participated in the fray and the Czechoslovaks retired down the road toward Eger, blowing up two bridges as they went.

I was in the customs house at dusk last night and it then was manned by three customs guards, one gendarme and two soldiers.

The shooting today started when Free Corps men operating along the frontier attempted to cover a group of Sudeten Germans fleeing from Eger near the customs house.

Sudeten Germans charged that a Czechoslovak border patrol opened fire in an effort to prevent the fugitives from escaping into Germany.

Two wings of Free Corps men converged on the customs house with hand grenades and the one machine gun. The Czechoslovaks, according to the Sudeten German account of the action, retired after exchanging a few shots. No casualties were reported.

Asch had pinched itself off from supplies, but the Sudeten Germans believed Germany would open the border if food should run out.

The provisional government, however, warned merchants against withholding goods for speculative purposes and advised consumers not to hoard.

An appeal was issue at the same time to farmers to begin milling grain immediately as flour soon would be needed for bread.

The sale of gasoline for private use was banned. Previously it had been rationed out in two-gallon lots.

Order Is Defied.

A great number of the tens of thousands of Sudeten Germans who left Czechoslovakia in the last 12 days were men of army age.

Prague's mobilization order was defied by the Asch executive which announced the proclamation was invalid in this district.

"The mobilization order of Herr Benes in Prague is not valid in the free Asch district," the announcement said.

"Whoever attempts to place himself under the orders of Prague in connection with mobilization," it added, "will be treated by the Sudeten party's Asch executive as a traitor."

Despite flying bullets and general tension, the inhabitants of this region still say they do not believe a general war will come.

In one section this morning mothers pushed baby carriages along roads leading to quiet pine forests.

Farmers all along the German side of the frontier were ploughing for fall crops under a clear autumn sky.

Families of eight and ten in fields were digging potatoes.

Through these fields border patrols marched, with rifles over their shoulders.

of the Czechoslovak state no longer was insisted upon except by the implication in Hitler's refusal to become a co-guarantor of the whittled-down state's boundaries unless other minorities attained their wishes.

Official Germany seemed confident tonight that a general European war or even a localized German - Czechoslovak conflict had been averted by the Hitler-Chamberlain negotiations at Godesberg.

But the German army and air force remained close enough to the Czechoslovak border to be prepared for all emergencies.

The points in Hitler's stand, as outlined here by an informant who saw the Fuehrer's memorandum to Chamberlain and by other sources, included:

1. Eight days, counting yesterday ,are envisaged for peaceful handing over of the Sudeten German territory to Germany.

2. If Czechoslovakia refuses, she would carry the responsibility for all that might follow; if she agrees, peace will be preserved.

3. Germany declines to become a co-guarantor of the new Czechoslovak boundaries unless other minorities in the republic also attain their wishes.

Nazi's Last Offer.

4. Chamberlain was assured Germany had no intention of annexing territory overwhelmingly inhabited by Czechs.

5. The memorandum contained positive suggestions for effectuating the transfer of such parts of the Sudeten region as were conceded to Germany by Britain and France in the plan accepted by the Prague government.

6. The memorandum positively is Germany's last offer to Czechoslovakia.

With October 1 as the deadline, there remained the prospect of another whole week in which Europe's nerves would be strained to the snapping point.

lost battalion, rang out toward the gray ghosts beyond:

"Go to hell!"

Tonight they remembered. They remembered the brave, strange character of their commander of 20 years gone by—Whittlesey, the New England lawyer who hated war and fought on and sometimes cried in his sleep there in the Argonne woods.

They remembered, too, the cool command of Maurice S. Johnson, of Scranton, Pa., still alive, when their ammunition ran out: "Sharpen your bayonets!"

"They're Kinda Nuts."

Only 194 members of the gallant band survived the five-day ordeal, and when relief finally came to the men who have since gone down in history as "America's Light Brigade," they were so emaciated, bearded, nerve-shaken and glaring-eyed that one of their rescuers complained frankly:

"I wish those guys'd stay away from me. They're kinda nuts!"

Thomas M. Johnson and Fletcher Pratt, authors of "The Lost Battalion," recently made a survey of the half a hundred remaining survivors and found these answers to the question whether they would fight again:

"Not to make the world safe—never!"

"Yes, if the United States were invaded."

"Only if the democracy of the United States were at stake. Otherwise, positively not!"

Typical was the comment of Frederick R. Tillman, of Rochester, N. Y., now in the oil business, who led the rescue of the lost battalion:

"I'm the most ardent pacifist in Rochester."

Johnson and Pratt said that Major Whittlesey, although named by General Pershing as one of the outstanding heroes of the American Expeditionary Force and honored by the nation, committed suicide after the World War because of whispers that he had blundered and led his men into a German trap.

The government of Premier Daladier stood firm on a declaration of yesterday that if Germany invaded Czechoslovakia—now that Prague had agreed to the Anglo-French dismemberment plan—France would "face her engagements."

France has a treaty commitment to defend Czechoslovakia against unprovoked aggression.

Daladier, leaving his war ministry office after ordering the first step toward mobilization, issued this statement tonight:

"The measures necessary to security taken this morning have been received and executed throughout France with the calmness and determination which the government expected of the nation.

"Our country is thus in position to pursue in calmness and dignity the important diplomatic negotiations on which depends the maintenance of peace."

Daladier's statement reflected hope that a strong stand by democratic powers would dissuade Reichsfuehrer Hitler from invading Czechoslovakia.

Major Difficulty.

A foreign ministry spokesman announced at the same time that Quai d'Orsay understood that the only major difficulty in the Godesburg talks between Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain had been the question of German military occupation of Sudetenland without awaiting further diplomatic negotiations.

The spokesman said the text of the German demand transmitted to Czechoslovakia by way of London was not immediately received in France.

The Premier was at the war ministry all day and Bonnet held a series of conferences with American, British, Russian and Turkish envoys at the foreign ministry.

The first formal mobilization order, calling up two of France's seven "echelons" or stages of reserve manpower, was the first of a series of measures which sources close to the government said had been drafted to meet any emergency.

Today's draft, bringing the second and third echelons of France's conscripted reserve forces to the colors, called men between the ages of 25 and 45. The first echelon already was under arms, having been called up by classes of 10 days ago.

"Covering" Troops.

The forces thus placed under arms were "covering" troops to protect the nation in the process of complete mobilization.

Authorities intimated that echelons No. 4, 5 and 6 would be called within the next three days if the international situation remained critical.

The makeup of the echelon, the general staff's device for graduating increases in France's armed forces, is based on the future tasks of the soldiers included and their physical condition more than on their ages.

The seventh echelon includes men up to 50 years of age and with the calling of this final stage of reserve strength, all men and women would be placed under army orders for work behind the lines or in industry which at that time would be completely nationalized.

Railways Requisitioned.

The government announced that all transportation facilities, including railways and busses, would be obliged to put themselves at the disposition of military authorities. Daladier signed an order giving precedence to military traffic.

The order said also that labor disputes must be held in abeyance where they were likely to affect proper functioning of transport.

Making way for eventualities. authorities ordered evacuation of 1,200 citizens of Bouzonville, five miles from the frontier of German Saarland, so that the town might be used as an army base on an extension of the Maginot line. This was one of the first frontier towns affected by evacuation orders.

Uniformed reserve officers appeared in large numbers on the streets of Paris. Throngs of curious persons and relatives of soldiers called to duty massed around army headquarters in the Hotel des Invalides and the East railway station, where reservists were entraining for frontier posts.

The French navy previously had been placed on a virtual war footing and Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi, after a conference with Daladier, said it was in good shape and ready to respond to the needs of the nation.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Technical army units were called into service today in a communique which said the government had decided "to reinforce the protection of its territory" because of the "evolution of the international crisis."

SHOT DOWN POLISH REFUGEES.

WARSAW, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Reports from Polish sources said today that many refugees had been killed or wounded while trying to cross the Czech-Polish frontier into Poland in an effort to escape military service in the Czech army. Czech gendarmes armed with machine guns have been posted every ten meters on the Czech border, these reports said.

About 700 Polish refugees crossed into Poland last night.

SYROVY'S POST FILLED.

CAPETOWN, Sept. 24.—(UP)—A resolution demanding that South Africa refuse to assist Great Britain in the event of war was debated today in the assembly.

Premier J. B. W. Herzog said: "We still are very confident that there will be no war. No country has a right to drag in South Africa but all free nations have certain obligations and these will be faithfully carried out."

18,000 JOIN FREE CORPS.

WARSAW, Sept. 24.—(UP)—More than 18,000 applications for membership in the Silesian free corps—which will seek to make Silesia Polish—have already been received, it was announced today. Thus far no units have been established.

WARN THEATERGOERS.

DENY SECRET MOBILIZATION.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Responsible Hungarian quarters once again today denied recurring rumors Hungary had secretly mobilized.

It was explained troop movements near the Czechoslovak border were in "prolongation of Hungarian maneuvers because of the extremely beautiful fall weather this year."

F. D. R. STAYS AT CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt is staying close to the White House this week end while Europe broods over war.

The chief executive saw no visitors today but was in close touch with Secretary of State Hull. Tomorrow, if there is continued improvement in his head cold that has been bothering him, he intends to attend the President's Cup regatta on the Potomac.

Officials were inclined to breathe easier after yesterday's "black Friday." Possibility of an uneventful week end was discussed.

CANCEL MANEUVERS.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Because of the tense European situation, The Netherlands today canceled military maneuvers involving 200,000 men scheduled to start Monday.

EVACUATE BORDERLAND.

STRASBOURG, France, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Fear of war sent masses of women, children and aged men streaming out of this French frontier region opposite Germany today.

Roads running west and south away from the Rhine were lined with refugees, most of them leaving by automobile.

Over a 180-mile area from Lons-le-Saunier to Strasbourg, paralleling the German border, hundreds of cars were crammed with families moving out. Mattresses and bed covering bulged from windows of many automobiles.

Reports from Metz said about one-third of its 78,000 citizens were leaving.

KEEP MEN UNDER COLORS.

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 24.—(UP)—The ministry of defense today announced that the April contingent of naval conscripts usually released next week, would be kept under the colors indefinitely.

French Must Kill Carrier Pigeons

STRASBOURG, France, Sept. 24.—(AP)—All carrier pigeons in this frontier region must be destroyed immediately under military orders.

This notice, posted with mobilization and requisition orders, called upon owners of carrier pigeons to kill the birds and present the bodies to the local town hall as proof.

Violations of the order were made subject to trial by the council of war.

The order was directed against spies, since pigeons were used in the World War to carry information to the enemy.

Sudeten Acquisition Will Intensify U. S.-German Economic Conflict

Area Will Be Sharp Weapon in Hitler's Hands To Use Against Uncle Sam in Latin America, in Opinion of Washington Experts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) Germany's acquisition of the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia will give her stronger, sharper weapons with which to fight the United States economically in Latin America, experts here said today.

The Germans will have more manufactured articles to sell Latin America, they explained, and more capacity to absorb the raw materials of the western hemisphere.

The year 1939 consequently will be marked, they predicted, by increased economic conflict between Germany and the United States in this hemisphere.

If the German-Sudeten merger goes through in one form or another, it is expected here that Germany will take over the glassware manufacturing plants of the Sudetens, their leather glove plants and some textile manufacturing concerns, including export trade in cotton knit gloves.

In the opinion expressed by experts here, these industries will give Hitler a broadened list of saleable articles to offer the countries of Latin America in return for their raw materials. Moreover, the addition of two to three million persons to the German population, an accretion composed of a manufacturing people who must rely on imports for much of their foodstuffs and raw materials, will provide a greater market for Latin American products.

Experts here estimate that Germany's share of the Latin American trade in 1938 (figures are not yet complete, of course) will run to between 14 and 14 1-2 per cent. The United States will probably retain her 1937 share of about 34.7 per cent, they said.

In 1939, however, Germany's share of Latin American commerce will show an appreciable increase, it was predicted.

American officials are determined that it will not be at the expense of this country—if they can help it.

CULPRIT IS 'BOOKWORM' ON COUNTERFEITING

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Arrested on a counterfeiting charge, Charles Mannarano, 31, was asked in the lineup today how he acquired the knowledge to set up business in competition with the United States Mint.

"A friend told me," he said. "He told me to go to the public library and get a book and read about it."

Italy has built her largest power plant underground, beneath Mount Castello, where it will be safe from air raids.

NOTED EDUCATOR, N. Y. STATE HEAD, TO SPEAK AT TECH

Speaks at Tech Fete

FRANK P. GRAVES.

Holder of Many Degrees Will Lead Observance of 50th Anniversary.

Frank Pierrepont Graves, president of the University of New York State and Phi Beta Kappa Society, will be the principal speaker at the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Georgia Tech on October 7-8, Dean William G. Perry, chairman of the fiftieth anniversary committee, announced yesterday.

President Graves' address will be delivered Saturday morning, October 8, as the high point of a two-day celebration beginning with the opening of industrial and scientific exhibits Friday morning. Appearing on the same program will be distinguished state and educational officials, who will join more than 200 delegates from other universities together with the general public in honoring Tech's 50 years of growth from a two-building trade school to a position of national importance.

Preceding the exercises, to be held in the naval armory, the Governor, board of regents, Tech faculty and official delegates from other colleges will march in an academic procession from the Tech Y. M. C. A. to the armory. At 9:30 o'clock Chairman Marion Smith, of the board of regents, will open the exercises, over which he will preside.

Welcomed by Dr. Brittain.

The invocation will be delivered by the Rt. Rev. H. J. Mikell, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Atlanta; Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Tech, officially will welcome the crowd. The respects of Georgia will be delivered by Governor E. D. Rivers, who will speak on "What Georgia Tech Means to the State of Georgia." President Graves will be introduced by Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System.

Following the exercises and before the Tech-Notre Dame football game, President Brittain will entertain the official delegates at a luncheon in the Tech dining hall.

As president of the University of New York State, Dr. Graves controls the most far-reaching system of university education in America, and as head of Phi Beta Kappa Society, he is head of the country's most distinguished scholastic fraternity. A graduate of Columbia University, from which he holds M. A. and Ph. D. degrees, Dr. Graves has been widely honored by honorary degrees from many other colleges. The degree of doctor of laws has been bestowed on him by Hanover College, Oberlin College, Hobart College, Hamilton University, Union College, the University of Missouri, William and Mary College, Alfred University, Syracuse University, Juanita College, Niagara, Fordham University, Ohio University and St. Bonaventure College; the doctor of literature degree by Heidelberg University, the University of Rochester, and Canisius College, and the doctor of humanities degree from Tufts College and Colgate University.

Knighted by Belgium.

In 1925 he received knighthood of the crown of Belgium; three years later he was appointed Carnegie professor at the University of Louvain, Belgium. Before assuming his present position he served as president of the Universities of Washington and of Wyoming.

As teacher and administrator he also has been associated with Tufts College, the Teachers College of Columbia University, Ohio State University, Chicago, the University of Pennsylvania, and the University of Washington.

In 1927 he was awarded the Butler medal for educational administration.

He is a member of the national advisory committee on education, a fellow of the American Academy for the Advancement of Science, and a member of the National Education Association, the American Association of University Professors, the English Speaking Union, the American Philosophical Society, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Delta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, the Laureate chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, and others.

Among Dr. Graves' publications are many widely used texts in education, as well as a number of books ranging from "Burial Customs of the Ancient Greeks" to "The Administration of American Education."

President's Investigators Report Why Swedish Labor Is Peaceful

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's special labor relations commission reported tonight that Sweden, like Great Britain, achieves industrial peace through general acceptance of collective bargaining, with differences settled by persuasion rather than force.

The unanimous report, signed by employers, labor leaders and public representatives, said voluntary co-operation between workers and employers had reduced strikes, eliminated use of strike-breakers, reduced hours of work to a general 48-hour week, and made unnecessary the use of militia except in general strikes against the government.

It found no instances of closed-shop contracts or of the check-off, by which union dues are deducted from pay envelopes.

"The closed shop is not a significant issue in Sweden because of the very large proportion of workers who are union members and because the employers no longer try to break down union organization, preferring to deal with their workers through strong trade unions," said the report. "On the other hand, the employers are not asked by the unions to exercise, and they do not exercise, pressure upon their employes to make them join the unions."

In accepting the report, President Roosevelt said:

"This report deserves the same thoughtful and thorough reading which I recommended for the British study.

"In Sweden, as in Great Britain, employers generally have fully accepted a program of collective bargaining; all concerned live up to the rules of the game."

Swedish strikes and lockouts, the commission said, "occur within the framework of a voluntary system of collective bargaining."

Since 1865 there have been no laws in Sweden restricting concerted action of the workers in labor unions or of the employers in trade associations. There is no obligation to register or to account for funds.

The right to strike and to lock out is fully retained with respect to all matters now covered by written agreement, except that an act of 1935 provides that before a stoppage of work takes place seven days' notice must be given.

There are no special laws with regard to picketing, other than general police regulations.

Air Raid Drills Staged by Czechs In Border Town as Poles Look On

TESCHEN, Czech-Polish Frontier, Sept. 24.—(UP)—This town of 40,000, whose main street is the Czech-Polish border, experienced an air-raid drill tonight while armed Czechoslovakian and Polish soldiers glowered at each other from opposite sidewalks.

Teschen is the center of the region of Czech-Polish friction. It would be one of the first towns through which the Polish army would pass if that country carried out its threats to lop off a section of Czechoslovakia which contains tens of thousands of Polish inhabitants.

The air raid drill, because of the way the town is laid out, was a strange affair. The Czechoslovakian half of the main street was dark with only the faint, eerie blue light of the painted street lamps breaking the blackness. Across the street the Polish side was brightly illuminated and crowds jammed the sidewalk.

There were so many people on the streets that the steel-helmeted Polish soldiers had difficulty opening lanes for motor cars.

"We are not at war," said one of the soldiers, "but we are standing ready."

BELGIUM RECALLS TERROR OF WAR

People Alarmed as Government Takes Precautions.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Alarm prevailed in parts of Belgium—overrun by Germany in the last war—as the government took precautionary defense steps today along with other tense European nations.

It was understood approximately 4,400 men, mostly engineers among the reserves, were called to the colors.

Requisitioning of trucks and private cars at Ostend, Brussels and Tournai and the alerting of frontier units especially at Arlon caused the alarm among the people.

Wives, mothers, and sisters of reserve troops gathered in front of barracks.

'LITTLE ENTENTE' MAY HELP CZECHS

Yugoslavia, Rumania Have Given Warning.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Yugoslavia and Rumania were reported in reliable quarters today to have told Hungary they would go to the aid of Czechoslovakia if their little entente ally were attacked by Hungary.

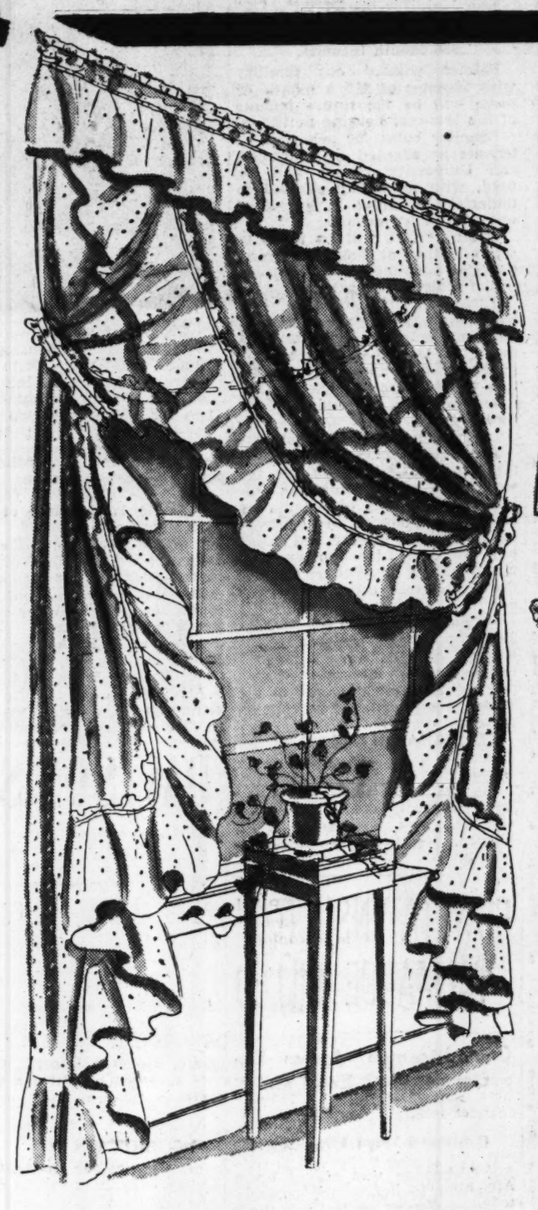

These quarters said Yugoslavia informed the Hungarian foreign office yesterday that she would fulfill her obligations under the little entente pact to defend Czechoslovakia. It was learned that the Rumanian minister to Budapest took a similar step today.

Pump-Priming Not Enough, Ramspeck Says in Warning

Solon Is Host to Committee After It Ratifies His Nomination.

By JACK J. SPALDING III.

Rise of nationalistic, class-conscious leaders in other nations may be duplicated in America unless pressing economic—and hence political—problems find honest and lasting solutions, in the view of Congressman Robert Ramspeck.

Speaking with a frankness which impressed his hearers the newly renominated representative of the fifth district told the district convention, which officially redesignated him yesterday, that major adjustment of the economic setup, rather than pump priming, may prove necessary.

He listed many national problems, and problems peculiar to the south, which he warned must be solved if prosperity is to return and democracy survive, and pointed out that in other countries where similar problems remained unsolved, the masses changed their form of government.

Will Follow Leader.

"In doing so," he said, "it may be true that they gave up some of the liberties of individual action which we now enjoy, but the fact remains that when a government of the people fails to satisfy the majority, that majority eventually will follow a leader who offers them hope.

"I believe that to avoid such consequences in the United States we must be willing to face the facts; we must realize that our people no more will tolerate economic slavery than they would actual slavery; we must admit that while the government does not owe anyone a living, a civilization which denies the opportunity of earning a living to large groups is not satisfactory."

Calling himself one who believes in the present system of government and the capitalistic system of private enterprise, he pointed out that does not mean he approves of methods often used either in government or business. Both must be adjusted, he said, to overcome successfully the present crisis.

All Is Not Well, He Says.

"Frankness compels the admission that all is not well with our people," he remarked. "We have made great progress in the five years of Democratic rule, but we have not found a solution to the problem of employment."

"We have expended billions in a work relief program in the hope that it would stimulate the processes of private employment. When we attempted to stop this flow of federal money last year we encountered again a lack of opportunities for our people in the field of private employment, and it became necessary to resume the work relief plan.

"I am not without apprehension when I contemplate the total amount expended and being expended in this program. I am not one who believes that we can increase the public debt without limit. Neither am in favor of ending this program, if to end it means suffering for those who can find no work."

Ramspeck then stressed the necessity of a satisfactory farm program.

"We have spent much money on the farm program," he said, "and plans put into effect for farm relief and for employment have been of great benefit to our people. Business has been stimulated, and distress has been averted temporarily. The pump has been primed, but I am beginning to suspect that it needs more than priming. It needs major adjustment."

South Handicapped.

Speaking of the south, he described its problems as complicated and made worse by handicaps which have pressed upon the region for many years.

"First of all," he began, "we must have a more equitable system of freight rates, so that our industries may compete on a basis of fairness in the markets of the nation. A solution of this problem will bring expansion of industry in the south, increased employment and better wages.

"As your representative, I have undertaken leadership in an effort to correct the inequities in our present freight rate structure. I expect to continue that effort."

Mentioning cotton, Ramspeck said the south is faced with conditions in other countries which it cannot control, and he concluded that if it is to retain its export trade, domestically consumed cotton must be separated from cotton for export.

He expressed himself as ready to examine the suggestion of those who favor the "domestic allotment plan" for handling cotton, and called the nation's tariff policy a handicap to the south.

"We have sold our chief product, cotton, in an unprotected market and have been forced to buy most things we consume at prices made higher by the tariff," he said. "But I believe the policy of the present administration in negotiating tariff treaties tends to relieve this handicap.

"We cannot adjust these problems solely through legislation or exclusively by political action. And if we are to preserve the democracy for which our forefathers fought we must solve the problems which I have discussed. We must make this democracy work to the satisfaction of the people of the country.

"We cannot forget that under our system of government the majority has the right to impose its will upon the minority. In all of our states, with the exception of about eight, poll taxes and other restrictions upon voting have been removed. In many states the majority rests with those who own no property. They will not be satisfied with the policies of other days through which they have suffered low incomes and in many cases have been unable to earn any incomes at all.

"They will not be satisfied with a policy which denies employment to men and women in middle life and beyond. They want, and demand some of the comforts of life.

"Before some leader engages the support of the masses with a promised Utopia and uproots our democratic system, I believe that we should join hands to make our present system work better."

Overwhelming Renomination.

Ramspeck was overwhelmingly renominated over his opponent, C. L. Wood, in the primary September 14. He is opposed by Henry Alexander in the general election of November 8.

After his speech and the formal ratification of his nomination by the fifth district congressional convention, he was host to the officers and members of the congressional executive committee and delegates to the convention at a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Among those participating were the congressman's wife, his mother, Mrs. Ida Ramspeck, of Decatur; his daughters, Dorothy and Betty; his secretary, Tom Camp; Judge Shepard Bryan, chairman of the fifth district democratic executive committee; Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, committee secretary; Herbert Porter, publisher of the Georgian and Sunday American; John Paschal, managing editor of the Journal, and H. H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution.

Judge Shepard Bryan, left, and Congressman Robert Ramspeck, right, discussed national and local issues at a luncheon given by the congressman yesterday at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Ramspeck was host to officers, members and delegates to the fifth district Democratic congressional executive committee after their formal ratification of his renomination in the September primary. Speaking at the ceremonies, Ramspeck pledged continued efforts to equalize southern freight rates.

MAYOR TO DEMAND PAROLE RECORDS

Hartsfield To Insist on Weekly Scrutiny by City Police.

same thing, after having said Friday he was met with evasions every time he attempted to get the records. He said he had tried eight or nine times.

Hartsfield Friday formally requested the records from the commission in a letter. At the same time, the Fulton grand jury revealed it is contemplating a probe of all pardons and paroles of prisoners from Fulton county and Atlanta.

Hartsfield said the city has the right to have the records of any criminal copied for itself.

Furnish Clerk.

The mayor is familiar with the law that requires the commission to furnish the clerk of the county superior court with the record of all paroled and pardoned criminals, he said, but insisted on the city being allowed access to the commission's records so cases passing through the Fulton criminal court can be followed to the end.

Both Hornsby and Hartsfield have declared that a knowledge of which convicted criminals have been released is essential in policing a city.

The chief has said time and again his men have arrested criminals they thought were safely in prison, only to find they had been paroled a short time after conviction. Some have been arrested two or three times under such circumstances within a year, the mayor said.

CUBAN OFFICIAL RESIGNS.

HAVANA, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Lopez Castro, secretary of the treasury, resigned tonight due to illness. President Federico Laredo Bru did not immediately accept the resignation.

321,311 Georgians Cast Ballots In Primary, Official Returns Show

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The state Democratic executive committee announced yesterday official returns of the September 14 primary, showing at least 321,311 Georgians voted.

The senate race drew this number, 4,974 more counted ballots than the Governor's race, in which 316,337 were tallied.

M. D. Collins, unopposed for reelection as state school superintendent, polled the highest individual vote, slightly topping John B. Wilson, unopposed for secretary of state.

William G. McRae, who withdrew from the senatorial race a few hours before the election, was credited with 223 popular votes. State Auditor Zach Arnold, whose office made the compilation, said this represented only the vote for McRae certified by the county committees. McRae withdrew too late for his name to be removed from the ballot. Some counties did not certify returns on his name.

Arnold turned the compilation over to Charles S. Reid, chairman, and Mrs. Fred A. Stowe, secretary, of the executive committee.

The official consolidation follows:

| CANDIDATE— | Popular Vote | Unit Vote | Number Counties |
|---|---|---|---|
| United States Senator: | | | |
| Lawrence S. Camp | 76,778 | 20 | 8 |
| Walter F. George | 141,235 | 242 | 86 |
| William G. McRae | 223 | 0 | 0 |
| Eugene Talmadge | 103,075 | 148 | 65 |

WELTNER TO HEAD HOUSING PROJECTS

Architects Sign Contracts To Draw Up Plans for Four Structures.

flux of outside labor to compete with Atlantans.

"Most of the dwellings of the projects will be designed so that each family will have front and rear entrances and front and rear yards," said Palmer. "Playgrounds will be accessible at community centers and architectural planning will take under consideration children reaching schools and playgrounds with the least possible danger from traffic."

$50 Month Incomes.

Palmer pointed out families with incomes of $50 a month or more will be the future tenants of the low-cost housing units.

"Similar rules for selection of tenants as adopted at Techwood and University Homes will be used, with no family allowed to undertake a rental in excess of one-fifth of its income.

"Every effort will be made to retain in the new houses the residents of dwellings to be replaced in the projects," he asserted.

The authority chairman said when the sites for the four projects are selected, plans will be made so that the projects can gradually be enlarged in the future to take care of more families now housed in sub-standard dwellings.

Program an Investment.

The new housing program was described by Palmer as "an investment that will bring high dividends to the city of Atlanta by ultimately removing the cause of heavy charity, disease and crime tolls now levied through taxes for the upkeep of the Welfare Department, hospitals, courts and prisons."

He pointed out that the $9,000,000 earmarked for Atlanta by the Federal Housing Agency "is just the beginning" of what Atlanta can get to eliminate more of the 19,000 overcrowded dwellings in the city.

The USHA has $800,000,000 for allocation to such projects, Palmer said.

Serving with Palmer on the Atlanta authority are J. D. Robinson Jr., vice chairman; A. R. Dorsen, treasurer; Frank Etheridge and O. M. Harper.

COWETA 'INSULTED;' TALMADGE BILLED

Committeemen Assess Ex-Governor $3 Each and $1.50 for Postage.

Mr. Talmadge was taking up a collection to defray the costs of his contests and we feel that those who donated to his cause believe the funds they contributed are to go for actual expenses of committee members."

Talmadge Unavailable.

Talmadge could not be reached for a statement. He was not represented at the Newnan meeting but sent a telegram explaining another engagement would keep him from presenting his side of the issue personally.

Senator George was represented by W. Y. Atkinson, of Newnan, solicitor general of the Coweta circuit; Alvin H. Freeman and C. O. Jones, well-known Newnan lawyers. Mr. Atkinson read a lengthy brief after which he made a motion to strike the petition, a motion which met immediate approval of the committee.

The nine dismissals yesterday brought to 17 the total of rejections thus far.

It was learned Talmadge forces have decided not to pursue the contest filed in Rabun county.

The White and Jackson county committees acted after hearing arguments by Senator George's counsel as did the groups in Brooks and Screven county.

Permit Withdrawal.

At Quitman, the Brooks county committee also voted to permit S. Morton Turner to withdraw a petition for a contest against the election of Wallace Harrell to the state senate.

The Greene county committee vote was 27 to 4. The committee likewise refused to permit Talmadge's counsel to file amendments to the original petition.

Herman Talmadge, son of the defeated candidate; Young H. Fraser and Lindley W. Camp, Atlanta lawyers, represented Talmadge, while Senator George was represented by Abit Nix, of Athens, and Miles Lewis, of Greensboro.

Large audiences were reported at all committee gatherings.

They Sign Up To Plan Four $10,000,000 Projects

$100 CASH OFFERED FOR BEST ESSAYS ON SAVING FORESTS

Contest Open to All State High, Elementary School Students.

An essay contest sponsored by the Georgia Forestry Association will give Georgia elementary and high school students an opportunity to win $100 in prizes, T. G. Woolford, president of the association, announced yesterday.

Subject of the essay will be "Why Georgia Counties Should Support Forest Fire Protection." First prize for high school students is $40 and second prize $20. First-place winner in the elementary school group will be awarded $25 and second-place winner $15.

Any student, boy or girl, is eligible to enter the contest, officials said. The essay should not contain more than 500 words and the name and post office address of the contestant should be plainly written on the essay in the upper left-hand corner of the first page.

The essay must be in the hands of the school principal not later than October 24, the rules provide. The county school superintendent will appoint a committee of three to grade the papers submitted by the schools of each county.

To Stimulate Interest.

The county judging committee then will send the one best essay in the county to the division of forestry at the state capitol not later than October 28 to be judged in determining the state winners. The Georgia Forestry Association will announce the winners and make the awards.

Because of the ever-increasing demand made by wood-using industries on Georgia's forests, the association is sponsoring the contest to stimulate interest in making forest fire protection a vital matter to every county in the state.

A resolution passed at the last session of the general assembly and sponsored by the late Dr. Charles H. Herty, Georgia chemist, submits a constitutional amendment to be voted on at the general election on November 8.

Optional With Counties.

The proposed amendment would enable counties which desired to do so to appropriate money "to provide for fire protection of forest lands and for further conservation of natural resources."

Provisions of the amendment would be optional with each county. Counties not desiring to appropriate money would not be under any obligation by the act. The amendment only makes county-wide fire protection legal for any county in the state which desires it.

Forestry officials pointed out that nowhere in the United States do valuable commercial forest trees grow more rapidly than in Georgia, and yet nowhere is tree production hindered more by uncontrolled fires than in Georgia.

Greater Area Burned.

"Each year hundreds of thousands of acres burn," President Woolford said. "Last year a greater area of Georgia's forests burned than the combined areas which burned in all the states west of the Mississippi river.

"More than 200,000 people depend upon Georgia's forest and products manufactured from forests for a livelihood. Yet it is conservatively estimated that this number could be doubled if statewide fire protection were in effect."

Although Georgia has approximately 23,000,000 acres of forest and potential forest land, only 4,500,000 acres are at present protected from fires, it was explained. This condition is attributed to the ignorance of landowners as to the value of timber.

Supposed Victims Hunted

Further supposed "mulctees" of A. P. Reed, alias Gus Reed, alias alias J. B. Reed, alias A. P. Reid, J. B. Callaway, alias J. B. Dunson, alias C. M. Chandler, alias Augustus P. Reed, alleged "rubber check artist," said to have victimized prominent Atlantans, were sought yesterday by the solicitor general. Reed was said by officials, who made public this photograph, to be in jail in Birmingham.

Solicitor Pushes Hunt for Victims Of 'Check Artist'

His versatility of pen, which is said to have proved somewhat costly to several Atlantans of means, caused the solicitor general's office yesterday to institute a search for further supposed victims of an alleged "rubber check artist" variously described as A. P. Reed, alias Gus Reed, J. B. Callaway, J. B. Dunson, J. B. Reed, A. P. Reid, C. M. Chandler and Augustus P. Reed.

Records were declared to show that Reed had been convicted several times in Fulton county, had been twice paroled and now was in jail in Birmingham. Lawyers, industrialists, cotton brokers and other business men were his alleged victims.

His method of operation, as described by officers, was to represent himself as a relative of persons of prominence and temporarily in need of funds. Officials said the checks never were for more than $20.

ROBERT L. YARBRAY DIES IN 73D YEAR

Former Veteran Employe of Georgia Railroad; Rites Today.

Robert Lee Yarbray, 72, ranking veteran employe of the Georgia railroad when he retired in March, 1936, died yesterday at his home, 210 Stovall street, S. E., after a long illness.

A native of Alcovy, Ga., Mr. Yarbray had spent most of his life in Atlanta. He had completed 54 years of continuous service with the railroad and was affectionately known as "Uncle Bob."

Beginning his work at 16 as a fireman in 1882, he worked for a time in the yard service. In 1890 he was promoted to engineer, a post he held until his retirement.

He was a member of Division 207, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and from 1933 to 1935 was chief engineer of the division. He was a member of the Battle Hill Masonic lodge and the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Surviving are the widow, a stepdaughter, Mrs. J. J. Rockmeyer; a sister, Mrs. Charles McKnight, and a brother, O. T. Yarbray.

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Park Avenue church by the Rev. L. E. Smith. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery under the direction of Henry M. Blanchard.

DENTAL CLINIC GIFT PLANNED FOR GRADY

B'nai B'rith Lodge Will Make Presentation to Hospital.

A completely equipped dental clinic for indigent white persons is to be presented Grady hospital soon by the Gate City Lodge, B'nai B'rith, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Irving Goldstein, president of the lodge, said the clinic will include three chairs and the latest surgical and X-ray equipment necessary for such a clinic at the city's charitable institution.

Dr. J. Moss Beeler, superintendent of Grady, has approved plans for the presentation, date of which will be announced later, and is arranging to provide space for the donated clinic, Dr. Goldstein said.

Need for the clinic was brought to the attentiton of the executive board of the Gate City lodge through the report of the Grady board of trustees pointing out that Grady sadly needed a dental clinic to care for white persons eligible for treatment at the hospital.

Such a clinic has already been provided for negroes at the institutiton.

Dr. Goldstein said that a general campaign for funds with which to purchase the equipment will not be conducted. The B'nai B'rith lodge decided to give the clinic to the city "as an expression of interest and pride in the civic welfare of Atlanta," he asserted.

CO-EDUCATION VOTE TO BE DEMANDED

McClatchey and White To Insist on Action.

D. F. McClatchey, fifth ward member of the Atlanta board of education, and Councilman John A. White will insist that action be taken on the question of co-education in Atlanta high schools, they said yesterday.

Both asserted they believe the question must be settled one way or the other before the city school department begins improvements and repairs to the Henry Grady High school and the Girls' High school plants under the proposed bond issue plan.

McClatchey said he would again ask the board of education to vote on the matter. City council Friday, in special session, refused to put the question in referendum form on the ballots of the bond election called for November 2.

FULTON BAILIFF WINS SUIT FOR $225

Court Decision May Cost County $2,000.

The Georgia supreme court yesterday handed down a decision which may cost Fulton county more than $2,000.

Robert S. Steele, former bailiff in former Judge Gus H. Howard's division of Fulton county superior court, was awarded $225 in his suit to force the county to pay him the difference between the $135 a month to which he was cut and the $150 minimum set by statute.

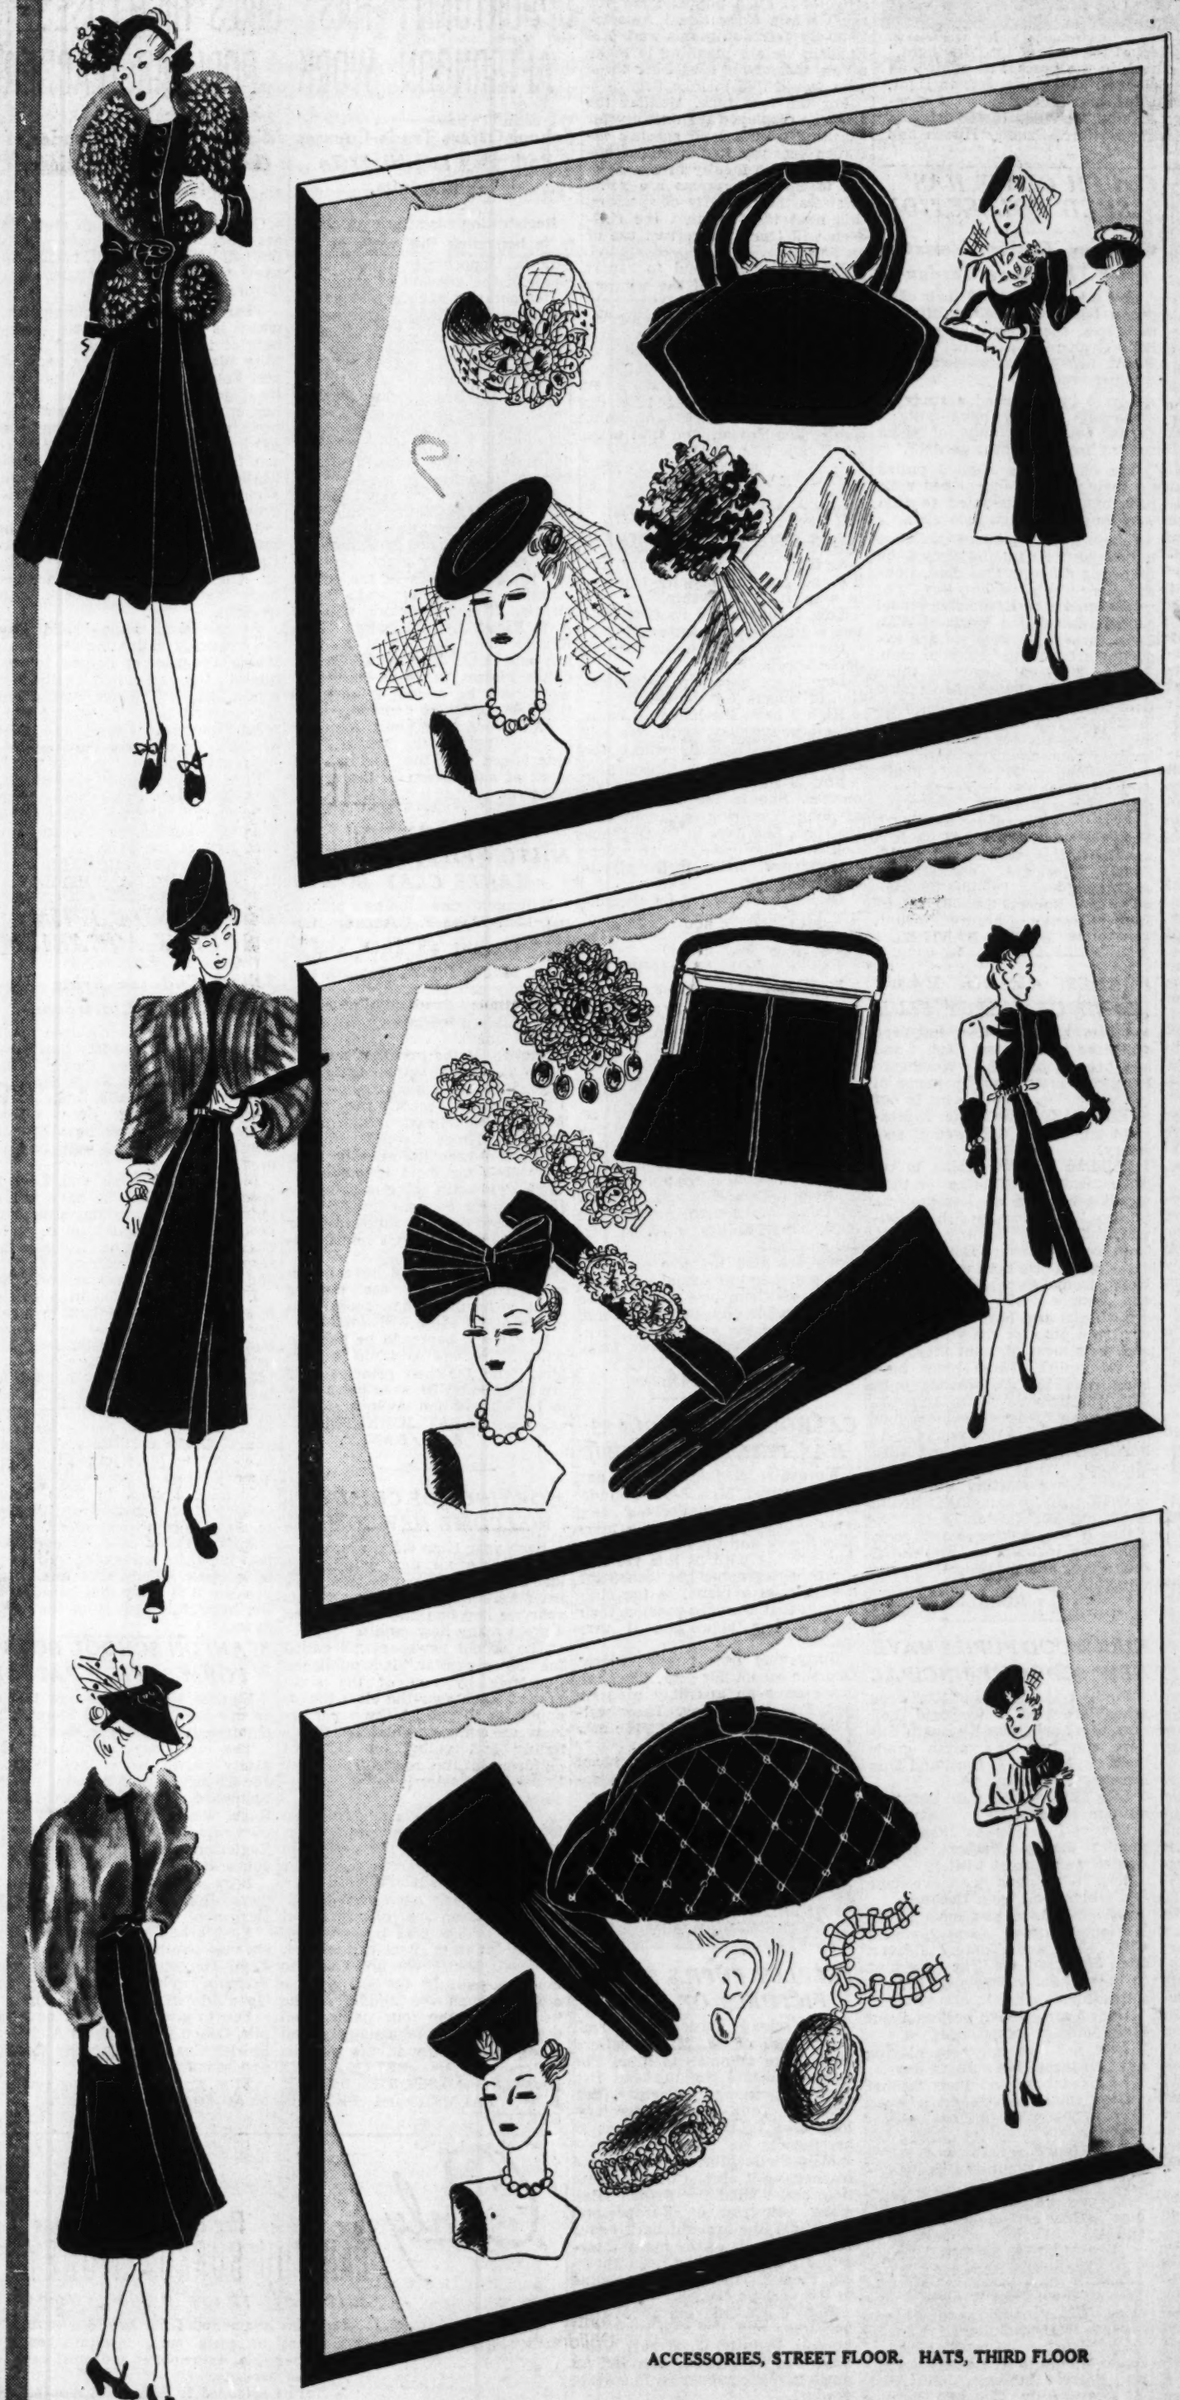

The minimum was set up by state statute on July 14, 1937.

Steele sued for the difference in the amount he was drawing and the amount the statute provided. About 10 bailiffs were affected by the cuts placed in force, and it was expected yesterday that other bailiffs will contend for their share.

JOE BROWN GIVES PUPPETRY COURSE

This semester a special group of boys and girls are taking a new course in Puppetry, introduced to Joe Brown last spring when the school put on a puppet show for the Georgia Educational Association. By combining this and oral English, we are planning to make a very interesting course for those who would like to take it.

For the first time, Monday the students displayed their ability for speaking over a loud speaker installed recently in the school auditorium. The faculty in charge of the assembly programs are going to stress the necessity of speaking this next term so that the children will learn the correct use of an amplifier.

Joe Brown is proud to report that we have two of the winners of the annual Soap Box Derby held in Atlanta this last month. Lamar McDaniel, of 8-H-8, won first prize in the state contest and was given a week's trip to Akron, Ohio, where he competed with 125 other winners for the national title. He won fifth place. Each year the class that is appointed to publish the paper selects an editor-in-chief by nominating and voting on different children in the room. This year Betty Jane Laster is the editor-in-chief.

The school playground is open to the public all year round. Mr. Moody will be at the school to help children organize teams for different games. It will close some time in the afternoon each day.

The children are collecting coat hangers to buy rose buses, which we are going to plant in the back of our school. We are going to make a path in the shape of a cross through the middle of the bed. Where the four paths meet there is going to be a sun dial and roses will be around the outside.

TWO NEW CENTERS IN CANCER FIGHT

Savannah and Dalton Join State-Aid Assault on Malady.

Two new state-aid cancer treatment centers now are in operation at Dalton and Savannah, bringing the present total to 10, Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the state department of public health, announced yesterday.

The Savannah center opened last month following the Dalton innovation. Applications for state aid in treating cancer are being received at an average rate of seven a day.

Stressing the importance of early diagnoses of cancer, Dr. Abercrombie pointed out that the disease still ranks second among all causes of death.

"The most important problem with which we are faced is to get cancer cases earlier," he said. "This puts an additional responsibility on the clinics. They must make the diagnosis an eliminate the non-cancerous cases so that our full time can be given to treatment."

BRITISH BRING NO PRESSURE AGAINST CZECH GOVERNMENT

LONDON RUSHES MIGHTY RESOURCES TO WAR STRENGTH

Parliament May Be Called for Session Early This Week.

his talks with Hitler, an official announcement disclosed.

It was expected the French statesmen would confer with the prime minister and his advisers immediately after the cabinet meets.

The French statesmen are to leave Paris early tomorrow afternoon.

The following announcement was issued at No. 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's residence:

"M. Daladier, the French prime minister, and M. Bonnet, foreign minister, have accepted the invitation of His Majesty's government to come to London tomorrow for the purpose of hearing from the prime minister an account of his conversations at Godesberg and for consultation thereon."

No Further Pressure.

There was no indication tonight that Britain would exert further pressure on Czechoslovakia, since the original British-French plan, accepted by Prague under strong urging from Paris and London, envisaged only transfer of the Sudeten regions.

Czechoslovak circles in London said that by refusing to guarantee the republic's borders unless Poland and Hungary joined him, Chancellor Hitler was raising his price of peace, by implication, to include satisfaction of the Polish and Hungarian minority demands.

Poland and Hungary, the Czechs said, would not join in any such guarantee unless their demands for return of their monorities were satisfied.

Hitler's offer was relayed to Prague as a "final" one, but despite this there was doubt whether Czechoslovakia would accept it with General Jan Syrovy, one-eyed military idol, now sitting in the premier's chair and pushing a country-wide general mobilization of the republic's forces.

"Up to Czechs."

Tonight, Czechoslovakia was cut off from the world as scattered fighting between Sudeten Germans and Czechs occurred along the Czechoslovak-German border.

Chamberlain said upon his return here, "It is now up to the Czechs."

Tension increased throughout Europe. Nearly every nation was mobilizing, at least in part.

Millions of fighting men were called to the colors.

France, Germany and Czechoslovakia heavily prepared their troops, manning fortifications and erecting new ones. Heavy military trucks rolled through Germany.

The British fleet steamed into strategic North sea positions, some 40 ships putting out from Invergordon.

The British cabinet, deliberating under terrific pressure, heard what information Earl de la Warr, lord privy seal, was able to obtain in Geneva about possible allies.

If a large-scale conflict should break out, many believed Germany, Italy, Poland and Hungary would be found facing the combined might of Great Britain, France, Czechoslovakia, Soviet Russia, Rumania and Turkey.

Gives Detailed Account.

Prime Minister Chamberlain laid the results of his peace mission before the full cabinet with a detailed account of his attempt to persuade Chancellor Hitler to permit extended negotiation regarding Czechoslovakia's non-German frontiers.

Czechoslovak circles here said that the Hitler terms relayed to them were, in addition to the refusal to guarantee Czechoslovak frontiers without Hungarian and Polish participation:

1. German occupation before October 1 of all Sudeten areas where more than 75 per cent of the population is German.

2. Evacuation of all Czechoslovak soldiers and civil servants from these areas by the same date.

3. A plebiscite in remaining Sudeten districts in which the inhabitants would vote on whether they wanted to go with Germany or remain in Czechoslovakia.

There were many scenes in Europe reminiscent of World War days. In France, women paled at billboards where they read mobilization decrees calling their husbands and sons to the colors.

In England, as the cabinet met, ten Germans who fought against the British in the World War laid a wreath on the cenotaph a short distance away in Whitehall.

At the foot of the Cenotaph, commemorating millions of Britons who died in the World War, women prayed, and they prayed too in Westminster Abbey.

Also as the cabinet met, youths carrying placards demanding recall of parliament distributed in near-by Whitehall leaflets stating "support the Czechs."

Mounted police kept Downing street clear except for accredited deputations arriving with resolutions. One of these was from a group of lawyers asking a firm stand against "German blackmail."

Another was from trades union organizations asking the Democratic nations to stand in a bloc against "bullying tactics of Hitler."

Authorities posted air raid precaution placards in West End giving the location of gas mask stations.

Confused Whitehall crowds heard rival loudspeakers blaring from motor vehicles, some urging the populace to get gas masks fitted and others droning "Chamberlain must go! Stop Hitler! Recall parliament! Stand by the Czechs!"

Ireland was understood to be calling up regular reserves, since some Irishmen in London received orders to return home.

Chamberlain, although excused by King George from visiting Buckingham palace until tomorrow, carried on conferences to a late hour.

His callers included Lord Halifax, Sir Thomas Inskip, defense co-ordinating minister; Sir Kingsley Wood, secretary of state for air; Walter E. Elliott, minister of health; Viscount Hailsham, Lord president of the council, and Clement R. Attlee and Arthur Greenwood, Labor members of parliament.

London Headlines Tell Own Story of War Tension

These headlines, rushed to America after being photographed from extra editions of yesterday's London newspapers, tell the story of the war tension which is gripping England and the rest of Europe.

ITALIANS CONSIDER WAR AS INEVITABLE AFTER DUCE SPEECH

Mussolini Repledges Support of Hitler If Europe's Groups March.

ROME, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Italians considered war almost inevitable tonight after a speech by Premier Benito Mussolini, disclosing that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler had given Czechoslovakia an October 1 deadline for a reply to German demands.

Italy's most authorative editor, Virginio Gayda, writing in Il Giornale D'Italia, assumed Prague would reject the German Fuehrer's demands and added:

"It may therefore be considered that events are moving toward an armed, bloody conflict."

Premier Mussolini, addressing 300,000 Fascist blackshirts at Padua, in northeastern Italy's Venezia province, said "if the conflict must nevertheless break out there is a possibility of localizing it," but added that in event of an ideological war against Naziism, Italy and Germany would form "a single bloc."

Cites Deadline.

He said Germany "has sent requests to Prague and has given until October 1 for a reply." He continued:

"There are, therefore, exactly six days for the Prague government to resume again a way of sanity, for it would be truly absurd and even criminal that Europe's millions should be hurled against one another simply to maintain the feudal lordship of (President Eduard) Benes over that land."

Then, after concluding his Padua talk, Il Duce went a few miles north to Belluno, where he roused an audience to a fighting fever for war by taunting Fascism's adversaries "beyond the Alps" as being "too stupid to be dangerous."

His epithet appeared to be aimed at both the French and British, for he described Italy's adversaries as those "still bound to outdated ideologies"—meaning Democratic principles.

In both the Padua and Belluno speeches, Il Duce appealed to massed crowds of blackshirts and civilians for evidence of their readiness for war. The expected answers were shouted back at him from well-disciplined ranks.

"I know," he shouted at Padua, "that each of you and all of you are ready for any eventuality."

"Yes," roared back the crowd.

"Butter or cannons—which have we chosen?" he asked at Belluno.

"Cannons," came the response.

Carrying full war packs, Czech troops are pictured rushing to waiting trucks which whirled them to frontier fortifications, as, with all Europe expecting war hourly, the new Czechoslovakian government ordered full mobilization of its entire army of 2,000,000 yesterday. ## U. S., British Legations in Hungary Make Ready for Quick Evacuation

Worried Citizens of Both Nations at Budapest Advised To Leave Immediately as Czechoslovak Troops Are Arrayed on Border.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The United States and British legations in Budapest today made ready for possible emergency evacuation of American and British citizens as Hungarian and Czechoslovak troops were arrayed in force on each side of the border.

Worried Americans inquiring at their legation were advised to leave Hungary immediately if they could. The legation has a train ready to take Americans to the coast if an emergency arises—Trieste, the Italian Adriatic port, is the nearest coastal point.

The British legation has taken similar measures.

Hungary's precautionary defense measures, ordered last night after Czechoslovakia's general mobilization, appeared to have been completed. Railway stations were crowded last night with reservists reporting for duty, but rumors of a general mobilization of Hungarian forces were officially denied.

Hungary's Demands.

A foreign office statement, issued 12 hours after Czechoslovakia sounded her general call to arms, said:

"The Hungarian government has not been frightened by the Czech mobilization and will keep up its territorial demands on Czechoslovakia."

An official statement to the press said Hungary's demands included:

1. Return of the "Hungarian overlands," which since the World War have been a part of Czechoslovakia.

2. The right of self-determination for minority groups living in the Slovak and Carpatho-Russian provinces of Czechoslovakia, because "for almost 100 years these territories were part of the Hungarian Reich."

The statement said Hungary's demands were fully supported by Germany and poland and a "united Hungarian-German-Polish front" existed.

Officials Are Silent.

However, government officials remained silent when questioned whether Hungary would be prepared for armed action—as Germany appeared to be—if Czechoslovakia rejected the demands.

The semi-official organ of the foreign office, the newspaper Pester Llyod, called Czechoslovakia's mobilization "either a trick game against its own friends, France and England, or sheer panic."

Communications between Czechoslovakia and Hungary were broken off, but reports of hasty military preparations on the Czechoslovak side of the border wall of barbed wire, steel and concrete fortifications filtered into Budapest.

Farm houses on the Czechoslovak side, it was said, had been turned into machine gun emplacements. Farmers living near the frontier were barred from working in their fields and, it was reported, abandoned their homes, leaving cattle at the disposal of the Czechoslovak forces.

Call To Reservists.

Hungarian army authorities explained their own call to reservists as intended to fill gaps in army units. Barracks were filled with those newly called to service.

(Hungary has demanded that the Czechoslovak government grant concessions to the 700,000 Hungarian minority equal to those for the Sudeten Germans which Germany has vowed to "protect.")

It was semi-officially reported that the Czechoslovaks had speeded fortification work along the Hungarian border in the last few nights and that at sunrise today there were three lines of barbed wire where last evening there was but one.

Budapest was notified to be ready for air raid defense practice this afternoon and tonight and that persons not complying with regulations would be fined heavily.

The Czechoslovak mobilization resulted in changes of Central European air travel schedules. No planes had arrived from Prague since yesterday.

Many relatives of American, British and French citizens waited at the Budapest airdrome today, hoping that their relatives would be able to fly from Czechoslovakia, now that railway connections have been severed.

There was a limited bank run in Budapest this morning, but the banks were able to satisfy all depositors thus far. Radio dealers sold out all their stocks and pressed factories for new consignments to meet the rising demand.

All over Hungary there appeared posters warning the public against spies. With 19 different pictures, the placards illustrated the methods of espionage and treatment of guilty persons.

PLANT-TO-PROSPER JUDGES ARE NAMED

have throughout the year in order that the judging may be accomplished as expeditiously as possible and that the awards may go to the persons most deserving of them.

Director Brown has requested all county and home demonstration agents to designate the judging committees.

5-Person Committees.

Briefly, the group must consist of five persons—two farmers and two farm women and one businessman or newspaper editor, "whose interest or experience in agriculture is well known."

The county agent and the home demonstration agent will act as ex-officio members of the judging committee, without vote. They will serve in an advisory capacity only.

Entrants in the program and members of their immediate families shall not be eligible to serve on the county committees, according to instructions from Mr. Brown's office.

County judging committees are asked to select only one entrant in each of the three divisions—tenant and sharecropper, landowner's and farm operator's—for entry in the congressional district contest. Where there are local contests, however, second, third and fourth places may be designated in order to qualify for the local prizes. Some counties may also wish to select second, third and fourth places for the satisfaction of the entrants, but only one name in each division can be entered in the congressional district contests.

U.S. ARMY AND NAVY TO ASK MORE FUNDS

Will Urge Congress To Quicken Pace for American Preparedness.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) The army and navy high commands, concerned over Europe's war crisis, intend to ask congress for funds and legislation to quicken the pace of American military preparedness.

They have prepared estimates calling in the aggregate for several hundred million dollars more than the $1,160,000,000 being spent this fiscal year for fighting men and munitions.

The navy's program of "essential" legislation includes extensive construction of shore bases, modernization of five battleships and six submarines, and a proposal to permit requisitioning of merchant ships and civilian planes prior to an actual war.

The navy already has estimated it will require $200,000,000 more next year than this to start a score more new warships and to carry forward the billion-dollar expansion of the fleet begun this year.

Would Increase Army.

The army wants to hasten rearmament with new guns, planes and motor vehicles. Its preliminary estimates call for 8,000 additional regular army troops, a stronger national guard and funds to train more reserve officers.

Also included is provision to establish the second of six new air bases authorized by congress in 1935—possibly in Alaska.

The navy's legislative proposals are separate from its annual appropriation requests. Eight were classified as "essential" by Admiral William D. Leahy, in a list prepared for President Roosevelt's approval. They are:

1—Shore construction, including a drydock at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and revival of a plan to construct the world's largest floating drydock for that Pacific base.

2—Modernization of five battleships—the Clorado, West Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee and California—and six submarines. Plans already have been drafted to rebuild the aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga.

More Naval Trainers.

3—Authorize requisitioning of merchant ships and civil aircraft in an emergency, prior to an actual war.

4—Training civilians for naval service, as the army does with civilian military training camps.

5—Permission to award contracts to other than the lowest bidder.

6—Speeding acquisition of minerals essential to war.

7—Legislation establishing naval ownership of oil in certain submerged lands.

8—Authorization to appoint 100 acting assistant surgeons.

Admiral Leahy listed numerous other projects as "desirable," including a supply depot at Oakland, Cal., a naval reserve munitions fund and provision for war-time control of economic resources.

Any increase in army and navy funds next year would swell the outlays for military purposes to a new high for the period since immediate post-World War years.

Food and Medical Supplies Rushed to Storm Sufferers

100,000 WPA Workers Aid in Rescue and Clean-Up Work.

By the Associated Press.

An army of 100,000 WPA workers, reinforced by thousands of volunteers, regular army soldiers and national guardsmen, toiled far into last night on the gigantic task of cleaning up the seven-state hurricane front where nearly 500 known victims lay dead and scores of others were missing amid $500,000,000 property damage.

Jackals of the storm—roving bands of looters—led Adjutant General Charles H. Cole, of Massachusetts, to issue "shoot to kill" orders to national guardsmen.

As the reconstruction work went forward, General Cole rushed 250 guardsmen to Cape Cod to stamp out reported looting of rich estates at Falmouth, Gray Gables, Bourne, Buzzards Bay and Mashpee.

"It is open and bold-faced," Cole said. "At such a time as this, nothing is more despicable. I have issued orders to shoot to kill."

Officials estimated the damage in Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Massachusetts at more than $130,000,000.

State and federal authorities rushed tons of food, blankets and medical supplies to the widespread stricken areas, where 12,000 families were homeless.

Crowning the three-day ordeal of stunned tragedy and desolation, fears of a possible disease epidemic led to emergency measures in many communities.

Relief workers inoculated 700 persons against typhoid fever at Adams, Mass., and town officials at Ware, Mass., where drinking-water reservoirs gave way, asked for 200 vials of anti-tetanus vaccine.

Slowly ebbing flood waters gave the "mop up" legions a chance to bury the dead and sift through mountains of debris for the bodies of scores still missing.

Tree-clogged highways and wrecked lines of communication prevented a final accurate assessment of the life and property loss, but many officials agreed it was the area's worst storm disaster—striking with appalling suddenness Wednesday as it howled out of the tropics and raged along the Atlantic seaboard—in more than a century.

In New England alone, telephone company officials said 250,000 miles of wire would have to be replaced.

Airplane observers reported New Hampshire's tall pines and birch trees were levelled by the hundreds.

The little community of Peterboro, N. H., still isolated, reported by radio that its losses by fire, flood and hurricane totaled more than $1,000,000.

Out along the 125-mile stretch of Long Island, where the hurricane struck with devastating fury, motorists reported that trees on countless duck farms where the famous Long Island ducklings are raised were still "white as snow" with gale-blown feathers.

The two great rivers of New England, the Connecticut and the Merrimac, were reported past their danger-point crests and receding, but fresh alarm developed in eastern Connecticut when the Dyer dam, south of Danielson, burst and started a river swell.

Authorities on Martha's Vineyard, off Cape Cod, said the total island loss would amount to $1,000,000. Boat service was restored to the mainland, assuring supplies of food and ice.

Sufferers on Long Island heard cheering news for the week end when Commissioner David C. Adie, of the Department of Social Welfare at Albany, announced 188,000 pounds of food was being shipped to the distress area—also 40 carloads of fresh vegetables and one carload of oranges.

HOPKINS TO DIRECT STORM REBUILDING

WPA Chief Flies to Capital From Pacific.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Works Progress Administrator Hopkins tonight prepared to assume charge of federal rehabilitation activities in storm-devastated New England regions.

Hopkins hurried back to Washington from Los Angeles by plane for a conference with President Roosevelt before proceeding to Boston where he will meet Monday with governors of New England states.

After a late afternoon conference with President Roosevelt at the White House, Hopkins said he would fly or go by train to New York and Boston.

DURDEN CLAIMS SENATE PLEDGES

Pro Tem Presidency Is Assured, He Says.

Adie N. Durden, of Albany, said yesterday he had obtained enough commitments from newly nominated state sentators to assure his election as pro tempore president of the senate at its organization session in January.

Durden is Dougherty county representative in the current house. He was nominated for the senate from the tenth district to succeed J. P. Horne, of Lee county, in the rotation system. Worth county is also in the district. Durden has been in the legislature four years and was a member of several committees, including the important rules committee.

1939 PLYMOUTHS OFFER NUMEROUS NEW ATTRACTIONS

Longer, Stronger Machine Is Put on Market by Makers for Purchasers.

The 1939 Plymouths which feature scores of improvements both in body design and engine performance now are on display in the showrooms of Atlanta dealers.

Built on a wheelbase two inches longer than last year's models, the cars are the largest in the history of the line and incorporate sweeping changes in riding comfort, interior luxury and safety of operation.

Heading the list of Plymouth innovations for 1939 are a new remote control gear shift lever located on the steering column; new-type coil springs of Amola steel that give a 20 per cent softer ride; "true-steady" steering; a new all-silent auto-mesh transmission, and an ingenious new safety feature—a "safety signal" speedometer that flashes warning lights of different colors at various car speeds.

Has Greater Length.

A bigger, more powerful-looking hood, now presents an added 10-inch sweep of painted surface that curves around to the new radiator grille and a new Vee-type windshield adds more than six inches to body length. The over-all length is now 182 inches without bumpers.

Headlamps and tail lights are now streamlined into the fenders which are much more massive and have a stronger forward slope. The larger hood remains the same type as before with only top panels rigid for additional stiffness and have one section on each side which is securely fastened but easily removable when required.

New Engineering Features.

Other outstanding engineering features include 25 per cent sturdier X-member frames; high-torque engine performance; silica chrome steel enhaust valves; a new inverted fuel pump; centri-fuse brake drums, and softer clutch and brake pedals which require 25 per cent less foot pressure than former designs.

Many Plymouth innovations of former years have been retained on the new models. Among these are floating power, airplane-type, low-pressure shock absorbers, "rubber poise" body mountings and "radio-studio" soundproofing.

The complete line for 1939 includes five "Roadking" and eight de luxe body, all on 114-inch wheelbase with the same 82-horsepower engine of L-head design, and with Amola steel coil springs standard equipment on all models.

New Plymouth Features Easier Riding and Control

This is the Plymouth four-door sedan for 1939, the first of the new model cars to be put on display in the showrooms of Atlanta dealers. Outstanding features of the new line are streamlined head lamps and tail lights, softer riding coil springs and a remote control gear shift on the steering post.

Let the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs booth be headquarters for the week from Sunday to Sunday, is one of Mrs. Couch's slogans.

HEAVY G.O.P. GAINS SHOWN IN SURVEY

a minimum Republican gain of 58.

On the basis of Institute findings thus far, the Republican headquarters' aim of "at least 70 additional seats" seems a better estimate than the Democrats' prediction that they will drop "not more than 25."

The Institute used a nation-wide staff of more than 600 field investigators to reach a carefully selected cross-section of voters in all parts of the country. The survey, designed as an election in miniature, embraces farm, city and small-town voters and persons in all income levels, including those on relief, in correct proportions.

Margin of Error.

The technique resembles that used in the Institute's recent surveys in Kentucky, South Carolina, Maryland and Georgia, where the Institute forecast the renomination of Senator Barkley and the three "purge" senators within 1 or 2 per cent in each case.

In its series on the congressional elections, however, the Institute cannot make comprehensive and continuous studies in every one of the country's 435 congressional districts, and the national estimate reported today is based upon averages for each section. For this reason, interpretation of the Institute's figures should allow for a wider margin of error than in the case in a state election.

As of today, the Institute estimates, the gain in Republican sentiment throughout different sections of the country represents a minimum of 60 additional seats and a possible maximum of 90.

Democrats Control House.

The Democrats rolled up such a house majority in the landslide elections of 1936 that even the maximum Republican gain indicated today would still leave the Democrats in easy control.

But the Republicans would have cause for rejoicing. They have lost seats to the Democrats in every congressional election since 1928, when they elected Herbert Hoover. A gain of 60 seats this November would enable them to claim that the Roosevelt "tide" had been turned at last, and GOP hopes for 1940 would rise perceptibly.

In the last congress the division between Democrats and Republicans in the house of representatives, excluding a scattering of third-party members, was:

| | Last Congress |
|---|---|
| Democrats | 333 |
| Republicans | 89 |

Taking the minimum and maximum figures in today's Institute survey, the new house of representatives that comes to Washington in January would look like this:

| | New Congress |
|---|---|
| Democrats | 243 to 273 |
| Republicans | 149 to 179 |

The Republicans stand to make their biggest gains, the survey shows, in a group of ten states lying between the Mississippi river and New England. They include New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan; and together they account for 180 seats in the house.

On the other hand, the southern states are even more solidly behind Democratic candidates for congress than they were in 1936, and as the adjoining table shows the Republicans would take only a few Democratic seats west of the Mississippi.

This means that both parties are likely to spend their greatest efforts in the north and east in the next six weeks. Not only are the greatest number of borderline seats at stake here, but the return of northern congressmen is especially vital to the New Deal.

Many of Roosevelt's most consistent supporters on New Deal issues come from these states, and losses here might not only reduce the Democratic majority, but also increase the relative influence of the more conservative southern delegation which would remain.

This is a very distinct possibility, unless the trends shown in today's survey are reversed. In the first six of these states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia—the shift since 1936 has been great enough to give the GOP approximately 24 additional seats today, while in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan the shift represents a Republican gain of about 34 more, the Institute estimates.

BAR CHIEF HOGAN WILL SPEAK FRIDAY

Association President Will Be Honored at Dinner by Atlanta Lawyers.

Frank J. Hogan, of Washington, president of the American Bar Association, will speak here Friday night at a dinner to be given in his honor by the Atlanta Bar Association and the Lawyers Club of Atlanta.

It will be Hogan's first visit to Georgia since his election to the presidency last June. He will speak on the subject: "The Lawyer, His Leadership and Independence." Hogan, who spent much of his boyhood in Georgia and South Carolina, is well known here.

Two-Day Institute.

The dinner in his honor will be one of the highlights of a two-day institute on federal court procedure to be conducted under the auspices of the Atlanta Bar Association and the Emory University Law School. The law schools of Georgia and Mercer are co-operating.

Designed to familiarize attorneys, judges, law professors and students with the new rules of federal practice recently promulgated, the institute will be attended by several hundred attorneys and judges from the southeast and bring nationally-known educators and jurists here as lecturers.

Prominent Speakers.

Listed as speakers are Dean Charles E. Clark of the Yale University School of Law; Monte M. Lemann, New Orleans attorney and member of the advisory board appointed by the supreme court to draft the new rules; Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson Jr., of Houston, member of the United States circuit court of appeals for the fifth district, and Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of Atlanta, of the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia.

The sessions will be held next Friday and Saturday in the district court room in the federal building and will be open to all lawyers, judges, law students and teachers. E. Smythe Gambrell, director of the institute, reports advance registrations have been received in such large numbers that capacity audiences at all meetings are indicated.

ROAD WORK BEGUN.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 24.—Troup county convicts today had begun work of grading 1.08 miles along the LaGrange-Roanoke (Ala.) highway, with completion scheduled for within 90 to 100 days, William Hunter, county engineer, said. NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A sharp decline in the stock market, followed by a quick rally, repeated in miniature today the week's bewildering swings in Wall Street sentiment between hope and fear for European peace.

The pendulum in the nervous money district swung back toward hope on the reports Chancellor Hitler in negotiations on the Sudeten problem had sounded a conciliatory note and given the Czechs until October 1 to decide.

Frightened by overnight accounts of the massing of war forces, including the Czech order for mobilization, the market took heart after an early sinking spell at the prospect of another breathing spell in the long suspense over the Czechoslovak situation.

Most of the starting losses, amounting to 2 or 3 points in many shares, were recovered in the two hours of brisk trading.

The Associated Press composite of 60 stocks was off .2 of a point at 45.2 compared with 47.3 at the top of the week's three-day rally. The hitch in the Hitler-Chamberlain talks, with the stiffening of opposition to dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, drove traders back to the selling side in course of the week and brought a relapse in foreign currencies and bonds.

Curb shares also showed some rallying power at the week end. Electric Bond & Share, Lake Shore and Aluminum Co. posted gains of fractions to a point. Losers of a point or more included Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, N. J. Zinc, Newmont and Technicolor. Turnover of 87,000 shares compared with 90,000 a week ago.

Transactions totaled 797,370, the busiest Saturday session since August 6.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Cotton recovered from early losses today when active Wall Street covering developed on a slightly more hopeful view of the European crisis. December advanced from 7.76 to 7.90 and closed at 7.86, with final quotations 3 points net lower to 2 points higher.

The market opened 6 to 10 points lower and soon eased to net losses of 11 to 13 points under heavy October liquidation and foreign selling of later months. Foreign interests were believed to be undoing straddles, but support through commission houses appeared on the reactions. The demand from Wall Street was heavy and was believed to represent the reversing of a spread between wheat and cotton when later foreign advices held out a ray of hope.

Cotton goods sales for the week were estimated at double the current rate of cotton mill production. No rain was reported over the entire cotton belt for the third consecutive day.

Amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week estimated at 63,000 bales against 100,000 last year and 87,000 two years ago.

COTTON GAINS BRISKLY FROM OPENING DIPS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—(AP) Cotton rallied briskly from an early decline today under trade and investment buying based on more favorable European advices. The close was very steady, net 1 point higher to 1 lower.

JUDGES ARE NAMED IN PHOTO CONTEST

Amateurs Should Submit Pictures to C. of C. Office Without Delay.

Judges for the Chamber of Commerce amateur photographic contest were announced yesterday by Chess Lagomarsino, chairman of the chamber's public relations committee.

Judges are: James H. Bradley, Leonard Rosinger, Leonid V. Skvirsky and Bruce Moran. The men selected are outstanding in the field of photography and considered by photographers as being most competent to select winning pictures.

Amateurs are advised to submit their photographs at the offices of the Chamber of Commerce, corner of Pryor and Auburn, as soon as possible as the best prints are to be enlarged and placed on exhibition before the closing date of the contest.

Photographs, according to officials, are to range in size from 3 1-4 inches by 4 1-2 inches, and are to be taken with the view toward presenting Atlanta to residents of other sections of the country. They will be judged according to their ability to (1) attract new pay rolls; (2) attract tourists; (3) interpret Atlanta as a delightful place in which to live.

Lagomarsino emphasized that the contest entailed no entrance fee and that every amateur is eligible to enter the contest. Subject matter rather than technique will be first considered.

COTTON ENDS WEEK MODERATELY DOWN

Reversal of Uptrend Laid to War-Like Developments in Europe.

Cotton prices advanced sharply early in the week, but later lost most of this gain as a result of the political situation in Europe. The 10-market average price for middling 7-8 inch was 8.02 cents on Friday, September 23, compared with 8.01 cents a week earlier, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Sales of 254,000 bales reported in the 10 designated markets compared with 266,000 in the previous week, 556,000 in the corresponding week a year ago and 437,000 bales two years ago. Ginnings of 3,632,000 running bales reported prior to September 16, were equal to nearly a third of the indicated crop for 1938. Comparable ginnings figures for 1937 were 4,261,000, and for 1936, 3,710,000 thousand bales.

The 10-market average price for middling 7-8 inch was 8.05 cents for the week ended September 23 compared with an average of 8.03 cents in the previous week and 8.50 cents in the corresponding week a year ago.

Domestic Mill Buying.

Domestic mill buying and inquiries increased, according to reports from spot cotton markets. Mill buying has been comparatively slack in previous weeks and mill stocks of cotton at the end of August of 1,053,000 bales, were about 100,000 bales more than a year ago and about the same as the average for the five years, 1932-36.

Inquiries for American cotton from foreign sources were again reported as few with those from Germany and Japan predominating. Exports of 82,000 bales compared with 54,000 in the preceeding week and 143,000 bales in the corresponding week a year ago. Total exports of 477,000 bales from August 1 to September 22 were 25 per cent smaller than in the corresponding period last year.

Money Market.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Leading European currencies sank to new low levels in terms of the dollar today as hurried transfers of funds into dollars was carried out in leading financial centers pending better insight into the latest turn of European war trends.

The British pound sterling was especially hard hit, ending 1¾ cents lower at $4.78. The dollar had advanced in London earlier to 4.78¼ to the pound. French francs, Swiss francs, Holland guilders and most all of the Scandinavian units felt the pressure of uncertainty and yielded to the lowest levels of the current movement and in some cases to a new bottom for a year or longer.

Gold in the amount of $2,802,000 was engaged at London and $2,619,000 in Canada for shipment to the United States. This brought engagements for the week to $30,434,000 compared with $48,205,000 last week.

LENS and SHUTTER—Camera Flashes

If your technique is off and you get a headache over proper exposure, you should take time out to read this column of news about Atlanta camera fans, which is appearing in The Constitution as a regular weekly feature. Sponsored by the Atlanta Camera Club, this column is designed for all amateur photographers. The Atlanta Camera Club itself is an amateur organization composed of 70 candid shot enthusiasts interested in better photography. Whether you know a shutter from a lens you, too, can join the club and take part in its activities, which include educational lectures, pictures competitons and traveling exhibits. All amateur photograpers are invited to submit their best candid photographs to the Picture Editor of The Constitution for use in this column each Sunday.

"Say Uncle!" This action shot exposing one of the tricks of the wrestling game was taken by Henry Cassell with his camera set at f 4:5 1-50 of a second. This picture was selected as the best of a group taken by members of the Atlanta Camera Club at its last meeting, when wrestlers were used as models. The picture even brings out in detail the tattooed lady on one of the men's arm.

A book that should be on every amateur photographer's shelf is "Fun in Photography," by Mabel and Marlo Scacheri. Unusual in that it completely disregards any technical instruction, this book concerns itself with finding picture material in the things that surround us. The authors contend there are too many photographers who are capable of turning out a workmanlike picture from a technical standpoint, but far too few who can select the right angle, right lighting, right composition that makes up a good picture.

As proof of this theory they visit several places such as a city park, a typical farm, etc., and make two kinds of pictures . . . first the ordinary snapshots taken by the uninitiated and secondly, the photographic gems turned out by those who know how. You'll be amazed at what handsome material they can find in just the ordinary things we pass by every day.

Interesting, too, is their "diagonal line of action" that gives a picture movement, as compared with the static photograph that has only horizontal and vertical lines. Read the book if you want to get a new slant on picture-making; the Carnegia library has it on the free rental list.

Something entirely new in photographic work is the Darkroom Experimental Group, which held its first meeting this week in the darkroom of James W. Bradley. Announcing its purpose as a move to give more detailed study to the technical side of picture making, this group is composed of members of the Camera Club who wished to devote additional time to their hobby. The first meeting was concerned with problems of paper selection to match negatives and the results from using this paper in varying developers. Each Monday night the darkroom group will explore the lesser-known fields of picture-making and group discussion will be given to knotty photographic problems brought up by members.

If you're planning one of those delightful fall week ends in the mountains, be certain to take along a roll of color film to record the riot of color that comes before the first frost. Photographically speaking, the mountains are at their best with the changing of the leaves, and evidence of this fact were the photographic tours arranged last fall. Photographers from all over the country met in the Smokies to test their skill in picturing autumn colors.

It's not too early to begin thinking about your photographic Christmas cards. We know of one amateur who has alresdy gotten his picture-making under way for the holidays, and if you have a large list to cover, the earlier the better. Family groups, pictures of homes, pictures of pets, and trick photography are all popular for Christmas card use.

He's Both a Legislator and Lawyer at 22

O. J. Coogler Jr. Arrives To Be Admitted to Federal Bar.

The state's youngest lawmaker, 22-year-old O. J. Coogler Jr., was in Atlanta yesterday to be admitted to practice before the federal courts, and receive his friends' congratulations on his recent election as representative from Clayton county.

In the words of the young legislator, he was "very happy about the whole thing."

The son of Jonesboro's city judge, Coogler received a plurality over his four opponents in the September primary, and was officially nominated when his opponent in the runover, Edwin S. Kemp, withdrew.

Members of a family which has been prominent in Clayton county for generations, Coogler is a graduate of Georgia Military Academy at College Park. He received a B. S. from the University of Georgia, and his law degree from Emory University last June. He passed the state bar examination immediately after graduation, something of a record in itself.

Coogler said he was drawn into the race by the insistence of his friends and the realization that his county urgently needed active and aggressive representation.

Now that he is in, he says he is going to devote his interests and energies to revamping the tax system of the state. "Our present one is out of date," he said. "Of all the laws, our tax laws should be the most progressive. I favor a system that would place the burden equally and indiscriminately on those able to pay." Coogler majored in psychology at the University in Athens and is also vitally interested in the welfare of the state insane asylum at Milledgeville.

Rather than feeling his age a handicap, the young solon considers it an advantage, and pointed out that Lawrence Camp, Senator Russell, Governor Rivers and William Schley Howard all did constructive work in the house when they were in their early twenties.

Constitution Staff Photo—Wilson.

O. J. Coogler Jr., 22, will probably be the youngest member to sit in the next session of the general assembly. The son of the city judge of Jonesboro, Coogler was elected as the Clayton county representative over four opponents. He did it, he said, by stump speaking, and house-to-house canvassing. Above, he shows us how.

EMPLOYERS ASKED TO ASSIST ELECTION

Requested To Give East Point Voters Time To Ballot on Bond Issue.

Employers of East Point citizens yesterday were asked to cooperate in the $50,000 bond issue election Wednesday as City Clerk E. L. Cole called for "mass support for the projected improvements."

Cole asked employers to permit East Point citizens to vote during the day. East Point polls open at 8 o'clock and close at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

He urged employers to give registered voters sufficient time to cast their ballots for library, incinerator and a 500,000-gallon overhead water tank.

"These bonds will bring improvements totaling $90,000 to East Point if the citizens approve them," he added. "We, however, are laboring under a distinct disadvantage because of a charter amendment forcing the polls to close at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. If employers of East Point citizens fail to co-operate and give our citizens time to vote, the issue cannot pass.

"We are confident, however, that when the matter is explained, we will be given every consideration possible. It is our purpose to ask that the 3 o'clock closing time be stricken from our charter at the next session of the legislature, but that does not help us now. We must hold our election Wednesday under the present law."

All balloting will be done at the firehouse in East Point. A fleet of cars will be ready to take citizens to the polls.

About 1,600 persons are qualified in the election.

TALKS ON SWITZERLAND.

ROME, Ga., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Richard Hall, professor of religion at Shorter College here, told students "Switzerland, training her army in earnest, is the most striking indication I saw this summer of the serious war threats underneath the apparent prosperity of many European countries." Dr. Hall and Mrs. Hall spent the summer studying European life.

Old Guards' 'Peace Mission' Ball Set for Monday Night, October 10

Every Military Unit in and Around Atlanta Will Be Represented at Formal Affair To Be Held at the Athletic Club.

The annual "peace mission" military ball sponsored by the Old Guard of the Gate City Guard and the active unit of the Gate City Guard, will be held Monday night, October 10, at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Every military unit in and around Atlanta will be represented at the ball. College, high schools, national guard, R. O. T. C., reserve officers, veterans' organizations, as well as the army and navy will be represented, and uniforms of all descriptions will be on display.

The event will commemorate the peace mission taken by the Gate City Guard on October 10, 1879. At the close of the War Between the States an unfriendly feeling existed between the north and the south and the Gate City Guard took the initiative in changing this attitude.

A good-will tour throughout the north was the first move of the organization. The first stop was Washington, D. C., and the members detrained at night in a station that was pitch dark with no one to meet them.

After lining up the gloomy southerners, Captain J. F. Burke gave the command "squads right" and began to feel his way out of the station with the Gate City boys behind him. But before they had gotten under way the whole station lighted up, bands started playing, fireworks began popping and a big cheer arose from the Washington military units who had remained hidden to give the southerners a big surprise.

From there the Gate City group continued through Baltimore, New York, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Boston and a great many other northern cities. Everywhere they were received with receptions and balls. Many speeches were made and those of Captain Burke are printed in the "Chronicles of the Old Guard" which may be found in the Carnegie Library.

The Gate City Guard was the first military company to be organized in Atlanta. It was started in 1857 and played an important part in the Confederate army. It was active again in the Spanish War and the World War.

Colonel T. Guy Woolford commands the Old Guard, while Captain Frank E. Hankinson heads the active unit of the Gate City Guard.

Mickey Martin and His 'Hell Riders' Arrive for Lakewood Event.

With the arrival of Mickey Martin and his his "Hell Riders" and the advance guard of Rubin and Cherry's, plans for the twenty-fourth annual showing of the Southeastern Fair will be rushed to completion during the remaining six days before the grand opening Sunday, October 2.

The National Live Stock show, being held in Atlanta this year for the first time in many years, is a feature of the twenty-fourth annual Southeastern Fair's program. Mike Benton, the president, already has received more entries for the live stock show than in previous years at the same time and prospects point to a new record for entries.

Open Affair.

The National Live Stock Show is an open affair and already some of the outstanding herds of the country have been entered and are being shipped here for the eight-day showing.

The livestock show will be held in the former Mechanical building, which has been converted into the most up-to-date and modern cattle barn in the country.

Rubin and Cherry will bring 40 railroad cars loaded with shows and riding devices. They will occupy a majority of the vacant space on the midways.

All available space in the two big exhibit buildings has been reserved weeks in advance and already several of the booths have been completed and are ready for the opening.

Future Farmers.

Georgia's future farmers, the 4-H clubs, with a membership of 70,000, second in the United States, are being featured in Wednesday's program, October 5. The day will be designated as Farmers and 4-H Club day and President Benton and his aides will turn over the keys to the park to the youngsters for the day.

Recognizing the greatness of the twenty-fourth annual fair and livestock show, the National Broadcasting Company will present its National Farm and Home Hour, Monday, October 3, from the Livestock building at the Southeastern Fair.

An effort also is being made to have the Farm and Home Hour on Wednesday broadcast from Lakewood park.

COUNTY TO SELECT BOND COMMISSION

Will Fix November 2 as Date To Ballot on $2,500,000 Issue.

Fulton county commissioners tomorrow will put the finishing touches on all preliminaries to the $2,500,000 bond issue, its share in the $15,000,000 improvement program for Atlanta and Fulton county.

Commissioners will follow the city, and set November 2 as the date for the balloting on the issue, and is expected to name a bond commission of about seven members to work conjunctively with the city bond commission in advising as to the expenditure of the funds.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday signed the bond ordinance passed at a special meeting of council Friday afternoon, and again expressed the hope that city and county officials and citizens will cooperate to expedite the program.

Fulton delayed setting a date for the voting until the city had agreed on one, since it was believed Atlanta and Fulton county citizens should express themselves on the county issue and the $4,000,000 city issue at the same time.

SPECIAL SERVICES PLANNED TO GREET JEWISH NEW YEAR

Rabbi Marx To Conduct Traditional Rites at the Temple.

Atlanta Jewish congregations will usher in their traditional New Year with special services tonight, tomorrow and Tuesday.

Opening the year 5699, according to the Hebrew calendar, the services will inaugurate "Ten Days of Penitence." The holiday will culminate in the "Day of Atonement," observed by all-day prayer and 24 hours of fasting.

Services at The Temple, 1589 Peachtree street, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight and at 10 o'clock tomorrow and Tuesday mornings. Rabbi David Marx will conduct the services, assisted by Rabbi Samuel Sandmel.

Rabbi Geffen to Speak.

Shearith Israel congregation, 500 Washington street, will hold services at 6 o'clock tonight and again at the same time tomorrow night. Morning services will be conducted at 7 o'clock. Rabbi Tobias Geffen will be in charge of a special meeting at 10 o'clock Monday morning. He will speak on "The Significance of the Shofar." Louis Geffen, attorney, will talk at the same time Tuesday morning on "A New Year's Message."

Cantor G. Friedman will be in charge of the observance at Anshy Sfard congregation, 359 Capitol avenue. F. Taffel will give an address Monday on "Lasting World Peace According to Our Prophets." Tuesday he will speak on "The Jewish Situation in Europe Today and Happenings in Czechoslovakia."

Address on Americanism.

The celebration of Congregation Or Ve-Shalom will include an address by President Victor Benveniste on "Americanism" and the advantages of being away from European war and strife. Rabbi Joseph Cohen will conduct the usual New Year services with prayers for peace and happiness for all mankind. Services for the Day of Atonement will be held October 5.

In ancient times the New Year's observance marked the beginning of the agricultural and economic year in Palestine. However, the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem and the scattering of the Jews changed the nature of the holiday, making it an occasion for mediation, prayer and repentance.

All in the GAME
by Jack Troy

SANFORD FIELD, Athens, Ga., Sept. 24.—The Warner system, born in Athens, is the football vogue again after a lapse of 16 years.

The system was not born here 16 years ago. There simply was a period after Pop Warner introduced his system in which that type of play was used by Coaches H. J. Stegeman and Jimmy DeHart.

Back in 1895, Pop Warner, fresh out of Cornell, decided that coaching was to be his profession. And the story goes that he took a World Almanac and studied the location, size and so on of a number of schools.

He then sent out form letters to these schools, hoping one of them might be interested in a young man desirous of getting a start.

S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University of Georgia, and John Welch, who was a member of the athletic board in the gay nineties, were recalling the story today.

Pop Warner got a response from Georgia after he had signed a two-week contract with another school. He liked the idea of coming to Athens and managed to get out of the other contract.

So the terms were agreed upon. Warner was to get transportation, one way, and a salary of $35 a week for a period of six weeks.

"He was not offered return transportation," Dr. Sanford pointed out.

Well, Warner's Bulldogs suffered some setbacks the first year, but the system seemed to take. The people liked it and they liked Warner.

And as Warner himself described it later to Dr. Sanford, "the next year I got a raise. They gave me $40 a week for eight weeks instead of six. But $40 in those days, my friends, was $40."

Pop Warner steered the team through an unbeaten season the second year. The record was Georgia 12, Auburn 6; Georgia 24, North Carolina 16; Georgia 24, Wofford 0, and Georgia 26, Sewanee 0. They played only four games.

Cornell took Pop Warner away from Georgia after the 1896 season. And he went on to spread his system to the far ends of the football world.

Georgia tried to get him back in 1919, but Pittsburgh wouldn't let the Grand Old Man go.

In 1920, 21 and 22 Georgia used the Warner system again. Stegeman and Jimmy DeHart, fresh from Pittsburgh, used it successfully in these seasons. In 1920 and 1921, Georgia went undefeated.

DR. HERTY ATHLETIC DIRECTOR.

Dr. Charles Herty, deceased, was athletic director in the nineties when Pop Warner launched his coaching career at Georgia. Dr. Herty, John Welch and Dr. Frank Boland, Atlanta, were members of the athletic board.

They were responsible for taking the unknown young man from Cornell.

The Warner system has enjoyed real success here. Warner had one unbeaten season and Stegeman and DeHart had two. Georgia had three unbeaten seasons and two successful seasons in the five years it has been used previously.

And so the system, with modifications, has returned. Joel Hunt and his staff are using it, interspersed with ideas of their own.

TRICKY WEATHER.

The weather, tricky in September, provided the type suitable for football in the Cracker, Nashville play-off series and now has changed definitely to baseball weather for the Georgia-Citadel opener.

Regardless of shirt-sleeve weather, football enthusiasm was at a high peak. They had a pep meeting in the stadium here last night that was as big as any ever held in Athens.

Fully 6,000 students and townspeople attended and staged an enthusiastic pre-game demonstration. One feature of the meeting impressed every one.

During the singing of alma mater all lights were turned out. Then a flare was sent up, bathing the scene with a mellow light. It was very impressive.

HUNT DESCRIBES COACHING.

Joel Hunt, optimistic and pessimistic by turns, described coaching today in terms of fireworks.

"Coaching is like a big skyrocket. It looks so pretty as it goes up and then it explodes. Blooey!"

Athens people have come to like the young man who came out of Texas and enjoyed a period of success as backfield coach at L. S. U.

They are not expecting too much of him in his first season. Hunt's aides are very likeable. J. V. Sikes, the line coach and a Texan, too; Elmer Lampe, Wally Butts and Howell Hollis have helped inspire a fine spirit.

THE NEW MASCOT.

Georgia, resplendent in flashy red jerseys with large white letters and black satin pants, were preceded on the field by the new mascot, a large, ferocious-looking English bulldog. It is owned by Buck Elton, a student from Atlanta. The players consider the bull as their luck piece.

Georgia and Citadel players went through the usual warm-ups and then retired for last-minute instructions. The crowd came slowly. The band struck up college tunes and supporters settled back to await the season's opening kick-off.

Georgia scored first and the Georgia reserves romped on the field at the end of the first quarter. This was Citadel's cue to do something. And do something the scrapping Cadets did. They scored two touchdowns and enjoyed being ahead of Georgia for the first time in the history of athletic relations between the schools. The Bulldogs pulled ahead in the last half to win the opener unimpressively.

VASSA CATE SLICES THROUGH G AP IN CITADEL LINE---CADETS DO A LITTLE GAINING THEMSELVES

Constitution Staff Photos—Rogers.

Georgia's Bulldogs, although subduing The Citadel, only 20 to 12, in yesterday's season's opener at Athens, showed plenty of potentiality. In the picture at the top Vassa Cate, fleet Bulldog back, is shown knifing his way through a big gap opened by teammates in The Citadel's line for a gain of eight yards. Outplayed, 12 to 6, in the first half, Georgia rallied in the last two quarters to start the season off with a victory. The two big guns in the Cadet's attack are shown in action in the bottom panel. At the left Graham Edwards, their chief ground-gainer, is reeling off 18 yards around right end. Albert DeCharleroy (No. 23), Georgia tackle, is shown closing in, with Kersey (No. 70) in pursuit. Bob David, Citadel end and best defensive player of the first half, is shown at the right snagging a pass from Edwards for 32 yards. David ran 12 more yards to score the second touchdown for The Citadel. No. 27 is Hunnicutt, Georgia halfback. The Cadets put up a real fight against Joel Hunt's eleven and led at half-time, 12 to 6.

PANTHERS LICK W. VIRGINIA, 19-0

Goldberg Scores Twice as Pitt Gains 408 Yards Net Rushing.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

PITT STADIUM, PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Mountaineer hopes of opening the 1938 football season with a staggering upset collapsed on this sunny afternoon as the rebuilt forces of Jock Sutherland's Pittsburgh Panthers crushed West Virginia, 19 to 0, before 35,000 spectators.

Picking up from where they left off last year as the nationally ranked No. 1 team of the college pigskin world, the Panthers drove over touchdowns in the second, third and fourth periods without resorting to a single bit of their famed Scotch trickery. So powerless were the vaunted crew from the mountains that they were held to a total net gain of two first downs and 73 yards.

Not once did the Mountaineers rated as one of the finest small

Clemson Rallies To Defeat Wave

Fighting Tigers, Trailing, 0-10 at Half, Come Back for Brilliant Victory.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Clemson College defeated Tulane University, 13 to 10, here today in a season's football opener upset that stunned a crowd of more than 12,000.

Too many seniors with too much experience spelled the three-point difference as the Tulane youngsters floundered for lack of organization and teamwork.

Clemson presented a driving, charging attack and an impenetrable line, with at least five of her seniors, Curtis Pennington, Bob Bailey, Don Willis, Hubert Miller and Captain Charles Woods starring all over the playing field.

FIRST BLOOD.

Tulane drew first blood, a touchdown, point from placement and a field goal for all of her 10 points in the second period and it looked like the party was over. Fighting harder and displaying a cohesion of effort sadly lacking in the Tulane team, Clemson punched over a touchdown in the third period but failed to add the point.

The Tigers won out in the FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 24. (UP)—Two forward passes for gains of 65 and 48 yards gave Texas Christian University a 13-to-0 football victory today over Centenary.

David O'Brien, the pint-sized Horned Frog quarterback, threw the first touchdown pass to Don Looney, an end, in the first period. The pass traveled 30 yards and Looney ran 35 yards. O'Brien kicked the extra point.

CRACKERS SEEK CLINCHER TODAY

Sunkel Faces Collier; Atlanta Would Open Dixie Series at Home.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 24.—Paul Richards' high-flying Crackers will bank on the southpaw wing of Tom Sunkel, the league-leading pitcher, tomorrow afternoon in an effort to make it four straight over the Vols and close the Shaughnessy play-off.

A victory for the Crackers will put them in the Dixie series with either San Antonio or Beaumont. If the Vols win they will still be almost hopelessly out of the running as the Crackers have already won the first three games.

The Dixie series, in case the Crackers win, will open in Atlanta about the middle of the week.

Nashville, making their last stand, pin their hopes on Orlin Collier, a right-hander, who enjoyed much success the latter part of the season, winning two games in

Georgia Extended To Defeat Citadel

Bulldogs Trail at Half, 12-6; Cate, Stevens, Hise, Fordham Run Well.

By JACK TROY.

SANFORD STADIUM, ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 24.—Striking by land and air, The Citadel Cadets from Charleston, S. C., forced the Georgia Bulldogs to call upon both regulars and reserves to quell their stubborn uprising in the opening football game of the season here today.

A crowd of approximately 6,000 saw Georgia strike back with a whirlwind second half attack to win a hard-fought 20-to-12 victory.

Georgia scored first. It was just before the end of the first quarter that Caroll Thomas, from Decatur, recovered a Citadel fumble and Harry Stevens, of Atlanta, faded back to the Citadel 35-yard line and fired a fine pass to Vassa Cate, of Brunswick. Cate took the pass almost on the goal line and eluded Citadel defenders to cross the goal line standing up.

SUN BEATS DOWN.

The September sun carried the heat of mid-July.

The Georgia reserves rushed out to relieve the regulars.

Then it was that the Citadel, never before having had the pleasure of crossing a Georgia goal

Virginia and V. M. I. Battle to 12-12 Tie

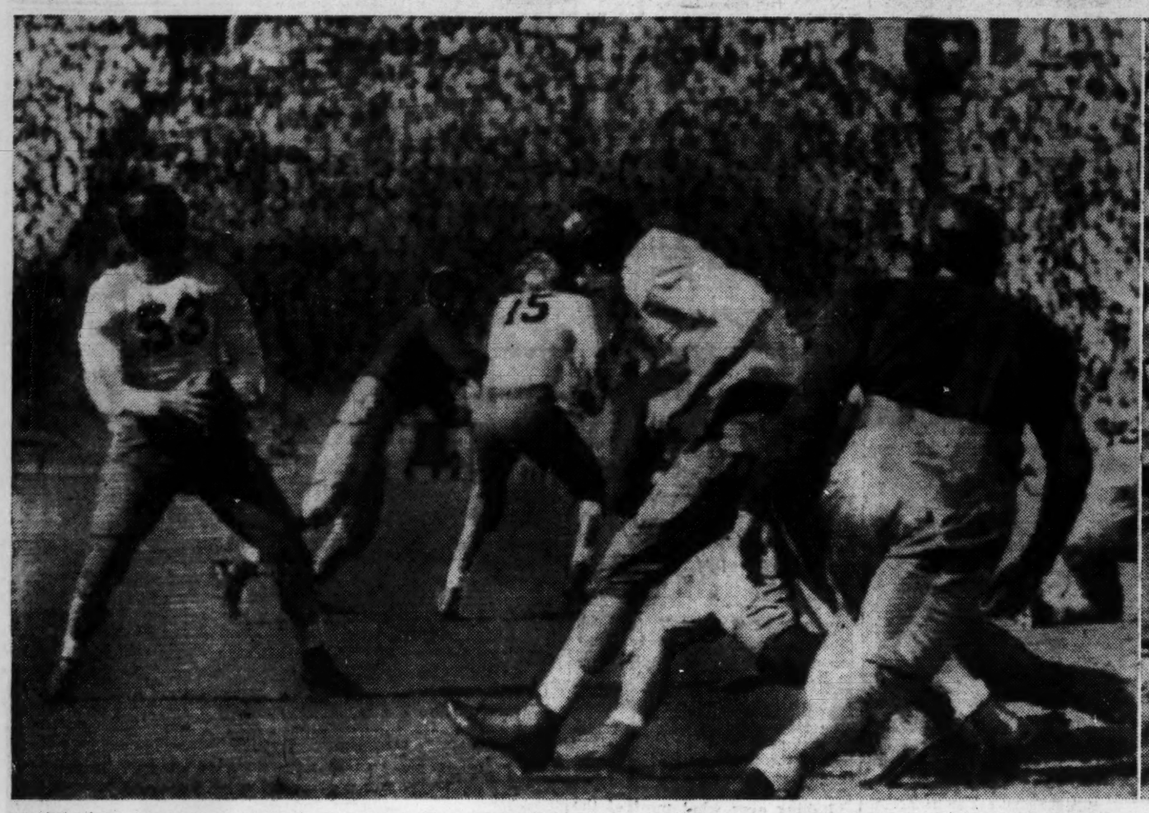

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The University of Virginia pushed across a touchdown at the end of a frenzied fourth-period aerial barrage today to tie Virginia Military Institute's Cadets 12-12 in the opening game of the season for Virginia. Some 10,000 people saw the Cavaliers tie the game after a holding penalty had nullified a touchdown plunge in the same quarter by Paul Shu, Cadet speedster.

ALABAMA BACKS SWING INTO ACTION --- BEHIND GREAT BLOCKING --- AS CRIMSON TIDE ENGULFS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA TROJANS

In the action picture at right, George Zivich, Alabama halfback, dashes through the Southern California line for a gain of five yards. Ray George, left, and Bob Hoffman, right, of the Trojans, chase him. At left, Herky Moseley, Alabama's star back, prepares to throw a pass as mates block Trojans. Bill Fisk, Trojan left end (back to camera) is attempting to rush in. 'Bama, adding glory to an already great coast record, walloped the Trojans, 19 to 7. The Trojans scored in the fourth quarter after recovering Boswell's fumble of a punt on the two-yard line. Herkey Mosley, Alabama "goat" of the Rose Bowl, was the big star of the contest. His passing was outstanding.

'Bama Outclasses Trojan Eleven, 19-7

Herkey Mosley, 'Goat' of Rose Bowl, Leads Tide Attack; California Score Is Gift.

By ROBERT MYERS.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A furious tide of crimson from Alabama swept through vast Memorial Coliseum today, carrying before it the wreckage of the Southern California Trojan football team before 65,000 fans.

When the debris was cleared away, 'Bama headed back to Dixie on the long end of a 19-to-7 score, and once again Southern California postponed its return to gridiron greatness.

Time and again the stalwart Trojans tried to stem the tide, plugging up a hole off one tackle where George Zivich had ripped through, or rushing to the ends to cement a crumbling wing battered by a Holm, a Bardford, or a Mosley. When the Tide quit pouring through Troy's forward wall it showered destructive passes from above.

Everything Southern California tried was to no avail, because the Crimson came out to avenge a defeat administered in the Rose Bowl last New Year's Day by California, and would not be denied.

HERKY MOSLEY.

Twice in the second period Alabama crossed the goal line, both times on bolts of lightning passes from the hand of slender Herky (for Hercules) Mosley. The first touchdown pass went to Billy Slemons, reserve back, and he was tackled just across the goal line.

The next touchdown climaxed an 80-yard drive down the field. Gene Blackwell, a substitute end, juggled Mosley's pass on the ends of his fingers and came down for the score.

Southern California, several times failing to cash in on a break, found the 'Bama line almost impregnable, and tried to score through the air. Once the Trojans hit Alabama territory after Grenville Lansdell had passed to Sophomore Bob Peoples, a play good for 44 yards, but the threat ended on downs on the Tide's 13-yard stripe.

It was not until the last quarter that Southern California scored, and that came as a gift. Ollie Day punted far down the field, Safety Man Charley Boswell tried to field it as it rolled, fumbled and Al Krueger, Trojan end, fell on it half a yard from the goal. Day, a reserve back, went through the middle of the line on the next play for the touchdown, and Phil Gaspar, using the new rubber "kicking toe," kicked the extra point.

CATCHES PASS.

Just a bit before Alabama had rung up its third touchdown of the day. Lanky Hal Hughes, another 'Bama reserve back, reached high for one of Day's passes, brought it down with one hand and galloped 20 yards across the line.

The Trojan outfit, boomed as one of the top contenders of the Pacific Coast conference championship, seemed sluggish, although Bob Peoples, Bob Hoffman, blocking back, and Lansdell showed well.

But it was Alabama's revenge day, and the Tide rolled up 131 yards on the ground to 52 for Southern California. The Alabama passes were smart, surely executed.

Once Mosley, needing a yard on fourth down, fired a pass straight to Blackwell with the ball in midfield, and made it.

PAT BERG WINS FIRST TITLE, 6-5

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Displaying one of the greatest bursts of sub-par golf the tournament ever has seen, Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, today won the women's national championship with an overwhelming 6-and-5 victory over the defending champion, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C.

Two up at the end of the morning round, Miss Berg had increased her margin to five up at the end of 27 holes. She won the 28th with a birdie three, ramming down a 15-foot putt, took the 29th with a par five and then lost the 30th as Mrs. Page carded a par five to Miss Berg's six. The match, which gave Miss Berg her first national title in four tournaments, ended on the 31st green when both players had birdie threes.

Miss Berg, for her last 73 holes of the tournament, was 11 under par, which officials agreed was the most remarkable burst of scoring consistency the 42-year-old championship ever has seen.

The afternoon cards:

|---|---|
| Miss Berg out | 444 444 445—37 |
| Mrs. Page out | 445 445 645—41 |
| Miss Berg in | 356 3 |
| Mrs. Page in | 455 3 |

The victory reversed the finish of the 1937 tournament, won by Mrs. Page, at Miss Berg's expense, 7 and 6.

Sandlot Football

All the vacant lot football teams will have an opportunity to play in an organized league again this year, as the Rotary Club Sandlot Football League will begin its eighth season next Saturday. This year there will be three leagues as usual—namely, a 100-pound league, a 115-pound league and a 130-pound league.

There are a few vacancies in each league; but it is hoped that these will be filled by new teams. Any team of the above weights desiring to enter the league are requested to have a representative at the sandlot meeting which is to be held at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 Monday night, September 26.

All games will be played at either the Georgia Tech Rose Bowl, or at Piedmont park and most of the games will be officiated by members of the Georgia Football Officials Association.

Mississippi Defeats Louisiana State, 20-7

Rebs Score in 1st Period on 45-Yard Pass; Tiger Tally Comes Late in Game.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 24.—(AP)—An alert University of Mississippi football team rose to take a place among the south's leading gridiron contenders tonight with a 20-to-7 surprise victory over Louisiana State.

Harry Mehre, erstwhile Georgia head coach, produced as his first Mississippi team a fast, powerful combination which swept L. S. U. off its feet.

A sensational pass of nearly half the length of the field in the first period gave Mississippi its first touchdown and fleet Ole Miss backs added two more in the third.

The stubborn Mississippi line disrupted L. S. U.'s attack aground and broke through on pass plays to render most of them ineffectual.

All three Mississippi touchdowns were thrilling. The first came on a pass of nearly 50 yards, from Parker Hall to Erwin (Ham) Murphy who ran 10 yards more across the goal as Ole Miss' Captain Kimble Bradley sent two L. S. U. would-be tacklers spinning to the ground. Bradley kicked the point.

Rebel Halfback Parker Hall, playing safety, took in an L. S. U. punt in the third period near midfield and ran 52 yards before he stumbled half a yard from a touchdown. Hall scored through center on the next play and Whittington kicked extra point.

L. S. U. was plodding along in midfield a little later when James (Jabbo) Stell fumbled. Willard Bisbing, substitute Mississippi halfback, grabbed the ball on the fly and sped down the sidelines 58 yards for a score.

MERCER WHIPS WOFFORD, 14-0

MACON, Ga., Sept. 24.—The Bears of Mercer served notice tonight that they will be a team to be reckoned with in the 1938 season by trimming Wofford College, 14 to 0, here tonight in the season's opener.

A classy 50-yard run by Quarterback "Spec" Landrum in the second quarter was the most sensational play of the game. Landrum side-stepped and twisted his way down field to the goal line without being touched. Grady Gillon kicked goal.

The first touchdown was made early in the game when Neal Allen, end, recovered a Terrier fumble. After a short pass and two line bucks, Allen carried the ball 10 yards on an end around to score. Pledger converted.

WOLFPACK BEATS DAVIDSON, 19 TO 7

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 24.—(UP)—The North Carolina State Wolfpack downed a stubborn Davidson College football team before 13,000 persons here tonight, 19 to 7.

Losing no time, the Wolves marched across the gridiron to score in five minutes on a run by Kenneth Sands, junior back.

Don Traylor, another second-year varsity back, snagged a second-period pass and scored the second touchdown.

Both teams scored in the third, Davidson on a long drive and a pass, Davis to Stair; State on a run by Rooney. Davis passed to Benfield for Davidson's extra point. State failed to convert on Sabolyk's kick.

Ohio Again Upsets Illinois Eleven, 6-0

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 24.—(UP)—For the second time in four years, little Ohio University put a crimp into Illinois' football inaugural today by eking out a 6-0 triumph over the Illini. A crowd of 20,000 saw the game.

Richmond University Beats Maryland, 19-6

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The University of Richmond Spiders turned on their potent scoring heat in the second and third quarters here today to defeat the University of Maryland, 19-6, in a Southern conference game.

VOLS TROUNCE SEWANEE, 26-3

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A potentially great University of Tennessee football team rolled up 26 points on a scrapping band of Sewanee Tigers in the first half today and then sat back on its heels and coasted to a 26-to-3 victory before more than 15,000.

Starting with a rush, Tennessee romped over two touchdowns in nine plays, with George Cafego and a hula-hipped sophomore back, Bob Foxx, carrying the ball. The first score came after six plays and was climaxed by a 30-yard run by Foxx to end a 62-yard drive.

MEHRE CONTINUES BIG UPSETS

Harry Mehre, new University of Mississippi coach and "purged" Georgia coach, scaled new heights last night when his team upset a highly-favored Louisiana State eleven, 20 to 7. It was Harry's first victory as a Rebel and one of his greatest.

Doc Prothro Resigns Job With Pebbles

Genial Pilot 'May' Have Opportunity With Major Club!

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 24.—(UP)—Thompson (Doc) Prothro, manager of the Little Rock Travelers of the Southern Baseball Association for the past four years, has resigned his post, presumably to accept the management of a major league team, it was revealed tonight.

DOC PROTHRO.

Prothro, in New York, announced his resignation in a letter to the Arkansas Democrat but gave no indication as to the major league team with which he expects to sign.

"Feeling that I might have an opportunity to make a major league connection, I have asked the Little Rock club to accept my resignation," Prothro wrote.

"Not wishing to stand in my way for possible advancement, they have mostly kindly allowed me to do so."

Prothro, whose club finished in fifth place in the past season, came to the Travelers in 1935 after serving as manager of the Memphis Chicks for seven years.

Stetson Upsets Florida

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 24.—(AP)—An inspired Stetson eleven pulled one of the most stunning upsets in Florida football history tonight, taking advantage of every break to hand the University of Florida a 16-to-14 defeat before a crowd of 8,000.

It was the first time Stetson had beaten Florida since 1909 and the first time the Hatters had scored on the 'Gators since 1912.

A first-period Florida fumble and cool-headed passing by Lynn Warren set up the first Stetson score.

A fumble by Ed Manning, recovered by Frank Minehart on the Florida 30, set up the second Hatter score. A penalty for illegal communication set Florida back 15. Warren missed fire with two passes, then Anderson place-kicked a field goal from the 24-yard line. Florida finally got under way in the second period and marched 56 yards to a touchdown.

Johnson let a punt bounce out of his hands and Schaefer pounced on the ball on the Florida 27. Russel Darst burst through the line for 10 yards and Warren flipped to Swanson for eight more. Darst smacked the line three times, then Warren shot a pass to McClelland in the end zone.

Finally, late in the third period, Pat Reen took a hand in Florida's proceedings. Handling the ball on almost every play, he worked the ball on a 73-yard march which paid off at the beginning of the fourth period. The 'Gators scored when Reen passed 11 yards to Tom Walker over the goal line. Manning's place-kick was good.

Top U. S. Amateur Golfers To Play Here in Four-Ball Tourney

MEET SLATED AT EAST LAKE OCTOBER 10-14

Yates, Hughes, Gordon and Black Will Represent Georgia.

By ROY WHITE.

A "Who's Who" in America's amateur golf circles will parade before Atlanta spectators on the No. 1 East Lake course, October 10-14, in the second annual southern states four-ball championship tournament.

More than 50 of the country's outstanding amateurs who have won major championships in Great Britain, France, Canada and every corner of the United States, will participate in the big tournament at East Lake.

Already the entry list has surpassed that of last year and Polly Boyd, of Chattanooga, chairman of the tournament committee expects every southern state to be represented by a four-man team.

Charlie Yates and Dick Garlington won the title last year, with Freddie Haas Jr. and Edwin McClure, Louisiana's representatives, as runner-ups. Garlington is not on the team this year.

GEORGIA'S TEAM.

Yates will carry on for Georgia and will have Dr. Julius Hughes, winner of both the Georgia state and Atlanta amateur titles, Jennings Gordon, of Rome, runner-up in the southern amateur, and Charlie Black Jr., veteran Capital City campaigner and championship flighter as associates.

Three members of America's Walker cup team, Yates, Haas and Reynolds Smith, of Dallas, Texas, already have entered.

Bobby Dunkelberger, young High Point, N. C., star and winner of the French amateur crown; Carl Dann, southern amateur champion and four times Florida champion; Frank Stiedle, Helena, two times Arkansas state champion and the longest-driving amateur in the world, and Sam Perry, twice winner of the southern amateur crown are among the top-notch entries.

IMPORTANT FIELD.

Others who have won their share of silverware in major tournament play are Harry Todd, western junior champion; Jack Munger, medalist in the western and former southern champion; Don Schumacher, trans-Mississippi, Dallas amateur, and Sulphur Springs open; Polly Boyd, Chattanooga, former national intercollegiate champion and Tennessee's amateur king four times; Frank Mulherin, former Georgia amateur champion, and a dozen others with lesser titles also are in the fold.

Atlanta's Junior Leaguers have joined forces with the Southern Amateur Golf Association to make this the greatest golf event of the south this year.

Tickets are already on sale and the proceeds will go into the league's charity fund—a worthy cause, and certainly an opportunity to see the country's outstanding amateurs perform.

Golden Bears Trip Galloping Gaels, 12-7

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 24.—(UP)—The University of California's Golden Bears defeated the Gaels of St. Mary's, 12-7, today before 50,000 fans.

The 1937 Pacific coast champions and Rose Bowl winners, outmaneuvered and outplayed, found themselves in the fourth period and put on two power drives.

Training, 7-0, and backed up to their own goal line as the final period ended, the Bears took the ball away from the tiring Gaels and drove 80 yards in 10 plays for their first touchdown, made by Fullback Dave Anderson.

St. Mary's smothered Vic Bottari's attempted placement.

Right after the kickoff California got the ball on its 45-yard line. Bottari sent Anderson and Smith crashing into the St. Mary's lines in a series of bucks and reverse plays that took the ball to the Saints' 4-yard line, covering 51 yards in 12 plays.

St. Mary's drew in close, expecting another smash at the wavering line. Bottari crossed them, however, by diving into the line and then, just as he hit, tossing a lateral to Dave Anderson out wide near the sideline. Anderson walked over without a hand touching him for the winning score.

West End To Hold Home-Coming Shoot

Officials of the West End Gun Club announce the annual home-coming shoot will be held today at the club skeet fields at Fort McPherson. Starting at 9 o'clock, the event will attract former aces and old-timers who have been associated with skeet shooting since its start in Atlanta.

Prizes will be awarded on the Lewis class system with every 10 shooters being classed in a separate division and prizes donated by the club awarded to the first five shooters in every class. Winning scores will be posted on basis of the highest consecutive 50-bird score.

Special prizes will be given on colored targets which will be thrown during the day's shooting. In addition to the old-timers, an invitation is extended to hunters or new shooters to visit the club and take advantage of its facilities in practicing for the approaching hunting season.

EDWARDS STOPS RIPPER FORDHAM AFTER A NINE - YARD GAIN

-:- Jack Troy's Running Story of Georgia-Citadel Game -:-

SANFORD FIELD, ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 24.—Picturesque Sanford field was bathed in a sun of summer temperature as Georgia and Citadel made ready for the opening of the football season.

The Blue and White Cadets, coached by Tatum Gressette, seemed spirited enough despite the loss of their key player and captain, Sabados, center. Graham Edwards, flashy triple-threat back, acted as captain.

Georgia was led into action by Quinton Lumpkin, their All-American center candidate.

The captains met in mid-field. Citadel won the toss and elected to receive on the north goal.

Leach, taking Badgett's kick-off, stumbled to his knee and the ball was dead at The Citadel 15.

BROWNING GETS 18.

Browning hit the line and popped out of there on a fine run of 18 yards to the Citadel 44. Edwards lost 3 when Badgett knifed across and got him by a leg.

Edwards kicked to Stevens, who returned 8 yards to the Georgia 28.

Cate fumbled on the first play from scrimmage and David recovered at Georgia's 23.

After one play Edwards tried a pass and Lumpkin, catching the toss like a baseball, banged his way to the Georgia 40.

Bucks by Fordham, Stevens and Cate failed a yard and a half of a first down, and Stevens punted to The Citadel 15, where Edwards was knocked out of bounds.

After Edwards kicked, Georgia marched 40 yards only to lose the ball on The Citadel 6 when Fordham fumbled. Bucks by Fordham, Cate and Stevens, and a pass, Stevens to Cate, worked the ball to the 6.

THOMAS GRABS FUMBLE.

Edwards kicked. Stevens lost ground, 11 yards of it, on a bad pass by Lumpkin. Then Stevens kicked. Edwards picked up 18 yards on a flashy run. Browning fumbled and Thomas recovered for Georgia.

Georgia scored, then, on a fine pass. Stevens stood back on The Citadel 35 and fired a pass to Cate almost on the goal line. Cate twisted out of a tackler's hands and crossed the double stripes standing up. Badgett missed the point after.

A number of Georgia subs were sent into the game.

The quarter ended just after the kick-off.

SECOND QUARTER.

Edwards promptly got off a nice kick. There were two plays. Matthews, substitute back, fumbled and Citadel recovered at the Georgia 22. Deschamps covered the ball for the Cadets.

Edwards threw a pass and Hise intercepted. He ran the ball back to the Georgia 38.

EDWARDS SCORES.

Hise passed and Browning intercepted. He ran to the 20. There was some razzle-dazzle. It was very fine. Edwards uncorked a pass to Burrows, an end, who tossed a lateral to Spain, center. It was fumbled and David recovered at the Georgia 3. Edwards took it over on a buck off right guard.

A pass was tried for extra point, but Graham was off the mark, and so the score was Citadel 6, Georgia 6. It was the first time a Citadel team ever had scored on Georgia.

Hise kicked after Georgia failed to gain, and a holding penalty set the Bulldogs back. The kick went out of bounds on the Citadel 44.

56 YARDS TO SCORE.

Citadel scored in two plays. Edwards tossed the first one to Davis. The gain was 20 yards. Graham Edwards stood on the 44 and tossed to David again. David caught the ball at the 12 and ranand Eldredge, ends; Williams and McKinney, tackles; Pittman and Cleveland, guards; Selby, center; Nowell, quarterback; Hunnicutt and Hise, halfbacks, and Matthews, fullback. A number of the first stringers returned after the second touchdown and Cate almost scored. The penalty prevented a tie score at the half.

Harshbarger's attempted extra point was blocked by Lumpkin. Citadel, 12 Georgia, 6.

Fordham, Cate and Stevens failed to penetrate The Citadel line and Stevens kicked a line drive. Foster returned 10 yards to The Citadel 28.

Stubb fumbled and Gillespie recovered at The Citadel 27. Fordham, Cate and Stevens picked up ground and Cate ran around his left end for a touchdown that was called back.

TOUCHDOWN RECALLED.

Georgia was penalized 15 yards for holding. That put the ball back on the Georgia 26.

Stevens' pass to Thomas was incomplete. Another pass was incomplete. Stevens tried to kick out of bounds in the coffin corner, and the ball went over the goal line.

Foster kicked and Stevens fair caught the ball at the Georgia 44. After short gains by Cate and Stevens, Fordham made it a first down at The Citadel 44.

Cate burst through center for another first down, putting the ball at the 29. Billy Mims replaced Stevens, and his first pass, intended for Salisbury, was short.

Mims' next pass was intercepted by Spain as the half ended. The first half was virtually all Citadel, with Bob David, left end, the most brilliant man on the field. He was a defensive thorn. Graham Edwards, the great little back, was the offensive spa xplug. He retired midway of the second period and Foster played out the half in most capable fashion.

CITADEL'S HALF.

It was a sort of stunning first half. The Cadets, in leading the Bulldogs, 12 to 6, had made the most of their opportunities.

The second team which Hunt sent into the game just at the end of the first quarter utterly was unable to cope with the Cadets. The team embraced Barbre

THIRD QUARTER.

Georgia started the second half with the first team. The boys started marching again. Harshbarger tried an onside kick-off and it rolled out on the Georgia thirty-eight.

There was a threnody of pounding feet. It was Cate and Fordham and Cate and Fordham again. They bucked and dived over the line. Cate gained eight and Fordham gained five. Cate gained three and Fordham picked up 10. Stevens hit the line for four and Cate and Fordham made it another first down.

They kept on marching. It was now Cate, Fordham and Stevens. They drove with a relentless fury. And finally they got the ball down to the two-yard line on fourth down. They had missed by inches of geting a first down and Stevens rammed around right end for Georgia's second touchdown. Badgett kicked extra point and the Bulldogs led, 13 to 12.

GILLESPIE, CATE INJURED.

Cate was hurt before the final push and left the game.

The Cadets could not gain after the kickoff and Edwards kicked. The punt hit a Citadel player and the ball was Georgia's at her own 49.

Hise replaced Stevens and fumbled on the first play.

Stubb recovered at the Cadet 40. Gillespie was hurt and carried from the field.

The Cadets failed to gain on runs and passes. So Graham Edwards kicked. It was a beauty, traveling out of bounds on the Georgia 14.

Fordham, Hise and Hunnicutt worked the ball to the Georgia 45, but a fourth down penalty fo. offside put it back on the 40 and Hise kicked to Edwards, who returned 10 yards to The Citadel 27.

Edwards picked up 4 and then passed 9 for a first down. Citadel drew an offside penalty.

Edwards tried a pass to David and it was incomplete. Edwards, trying to pass again, lost 12 yards.

So, deep in his own territory Edwards kicked out of bounds on the Georgia 14.

The quarter ended at this point. Georgia, 13; Citadel, 12.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Hise ran around his right end for seven yards and came right back through the line for 10 yards to the Citadel 34.

Hise rammed the ball to the 19, but a time out penalty cost five yards and Georgia lost the ball on a fourth down pass which was knocked down over the goal.

Citadel's Browning fumbled on the first play and Nowell recovered for Georgia at the 23. Hise passed incomplete.

Hise and Matthews plunged to the 14 and then Hise crowned some sensational last-half play by darting through a fine opening at right tackle and carried tacklers over the goal line with him. Eldredge converted.

Georgia 20, Citadel 12.

Stubb ran the kick-off back 25 yards to The Citadel 47. Mims replaced the fast-stepping Hise in the Georgia backfield.

FIVE-YARD PENALTY.

Citadel drew a 5-yard penalty for excessive time out. Foster, attempting to pass, lost 5 more yards. Foster passed to Burrows for a gain of 15 yards. But it was third down and seven. Foster passed to David and it was fourth and four.

Foster kicked to Mims, who returned 5 to the Georgia 17.

Mims kicked and Foster was brought down by Eldredge on The Citadel 41. There was no gain.

Maxwell passed and Hunnicutt intercepted at the Georgia 45. He ran 5 to midfield. Matthews, Mims and Honeycutt ran the ball to The Citadel 16.

Mims' pass was incomplete. It was fourth and five with the time running out. Mims passed and Eldredge almost got it at the goal line.

There was less than half a minute to play as Citadel took the ball at the 20. Stubb passed to Gibson for a gain of 11 yards as the game ended.

A game Citadel team had given Georgia a real opener.

DICK METZ LEADS $13,500 TOURNEY

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 24. (AP)—Dick Metz, forced to play second fiddle to Ralph Guldahl in the United States open championship, played a full symphony over the Fenway Golf Club's back nine today for a three-under-par 67 that gave him the lead at the end of the first round of the 108-hole, $13,500 Westchester open golf tournament.

Rolling over what most of the contestants considered the tougher half of the course in 32, the good-looking pro from Lake Forest, Ill., gained a two-stroke lead over a field that includes practically all the big names in professional golf and a few crack amateurs.

Tied for second place at 69 were Paul Runyan, P. G. A. champion, from the near-by Metropolis Club; Billy Burke, of Cleveland, United States open champion in 1931, and lanky Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J.

The par-shooters were Jug McSpaden, of Winchester, Mass., and Leon Pettigrew, of Flushing, N. Y. The 71's included Squire Gene Sarazen, Harry Cooper and Ed Dudley, and in the flock of 72's were Guldahl, Byron Nelson, Jimmy Thomson, Johnny Revolta, Willie Goggin and Amateur Frank Strafaci.

KEENE IS STAR AS VANDY WINS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Gold-and-Black Commodores of Vanderbilt University took advantage of three breaks to score a touchdown each time and defeat Washington University eleven, 20 to 0, in an intersectional game today before a sun-broiled crowd of 5,000.

The sparkplug of the southerners' attack was Art Keene, a Memphis lad who spent most of last season galloping around with the third-string team. He broke through the left side of his own line behind beautiful blocking to score two touchdowns.

The first came just four minutes after Jack Warner, Washington halfback, had fumbled the opening kickoff on his own 30-yard line. Vandy drew a 15-yard penalty but quickly made up the distance with one of their few attempted forward passes. Keene then knifed through from the 8-yard marker.

Midway in the third period Vanderbilt blocked a Washington punt on the Bears' 35-yard stripe. Keene picked up five through the line and on the next play eluded five tacklers as he twisted 30 yards to his second counter.

Joe Agee, 178-pound center, converted both extra points from placements.

After recovering Washington's fumble of a punt, Vanderbilt opened up its highly-rated aerial attack late in the game to score a third touchdown with just a fraction over one minute left to play. Bert Marshall lateralled to Ray Andrus, who galloped to the 5-yard line, and then passed over the goal line to Dutch Reinschmidt. The place-kick for extra point was wide.

Vanderbilt piled up a total of 12 first down to Washington's five and outgained their opponents from scrimmage, 194 yards to 113.

Bowling Marks Set As Pinmen Get Hot

More Than 300 Bowlers in Action Last Week as Leagues Opened.

Competitive bowling took on a new peak last week as more than 300 bowlers were active in team competition in afternoon and evening bowling hours last week on the uptown and downtown bowling drives.

The City league, composed of the top average pinmen of Atlanta, was the hotbed of record scoring as they registered three new season records last Monday.

Two games of 620 topped the single game mark, and a three-game series of 1,821 set the pace for the trio of scores, as the Gaylord Boxes team went on a scoring rampage. L. M. Tappan, a member of the team, had a 418 set to pace the three game scores for the season thus far.

Oddly, the City league has a top team average of 550, based on last season's performance. The Gaylord team surpassed that average by a count of 57 pins a game or a total of 171 pins for the series. Tommy Clonts, Ken Coogle, John Hartken, L. M. Tappan and Walter Lawson composed the roster of the Gaylord quintet as they developed hot mitts to turn in the big scores.

A team has to "get hot" to set records, win tournaments and clinch pennants. The performance of this City league team last week is an example of what it takes to go places in special events . . . that is, to bowl considerably better than your average.

A number of new leagues composed of young women from offices and department stores got under way last week in their first scheduled games. Civic organizations, industrial inter-company groups and a number of other commercial leagues began firing away at the pins for what looms as the biggest season that competitive bowling has enjoyed here.

Ed Thomas, who averaged 99 for his innumerable games last season, crashed the little duckpins for a 166 game, finishing with a triple-header strike, to set up the high single game of the new bowling season as he rolled in the Merchants' league.

The Prep School Bowling league, composed of bowlers from high and junior high schools, is slated to begin play on Monday afternoon, October 10, at 3 o'clock with a number of local schools represented in the play.

Marist, Tech Hi, Boys' Hi, Druid Hills, Decatur, Fulton, North Fulton, Bass Junior High, O'Keefe Junior High and Commercial are slated to have teams represented in this league.

The Girls' High School league will start the last part of October with about 12 teams in their loop.

MAROONS DOWN HOWARD, 19 TO 0

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Mississippi State College Maroons, held scoreless in the first half, showed sustained power in the third and fourth periods to down a plucky Howard College team, 19 to 0, before 6,000 spectators.

Sonny Bruce, of Columbus, playing his first varsity game, was the big gun in the State attack. He led a 70-yard drive for the first score, and carried the ball five out of six times in going 53 yards down the field for the second, driven over from the 6-yard line. He added the extra point from placement.

Coach Emerson "Spike" Nelson put in a third team in the final period, and Frank Chambers and Billy Swilley, pony backs, led another 58-yard touchdown jaunt, Swilley racing 42 yards for the climax.

The Howard Bulldogs came near scoring in the second period. The timer's gun cracked as they were two yards shy of the goal line on third down. Watkins, right end, created the opportunity by blocking Frank Chambers' punt and recovering on the five.

Mississippi State made 21 first downs to five for the Bulldogs, and ran up a total yardage of 363 while the visitors were compiling 124.

Bremen Team Beats Cedartown, 13 to 6

CEDARTOWN, Ga., Sept. 24.—An alert band of Bremen High Blue Devils took advantage of the breaks to down a favored Cedartown High eleven here last night, 13-6.

After Cedartown had pushed over a touchdown in the opening minutes of the second quarter, the Blue Devils gained possession of the ball on the Bulldogs' 28-yard line stripe as an over-anxious Bulldog safety man fumbled a long punt. Four running plays and it was a touchdown. Bremen converted for the extra point and led, 7-6.

Bremen's second touchdown came in the fourth period. The Blue Devil forward wall rose up in a mass to block one of Quarterback Leon Tamplin's kicks and a ball-hawking Blue Devil linesman recovered on the Bulldogs' 26. A long pass over the goal line made it Bremen 13, Cedartown 6. Bremen failed to run the ball over for the extra point.

POLO CHAMPS.

WESTBURY, N. Roslyn started the game leading by 10-0, thanks to a 31-goal handicap held by Old Westbury, as compared with a 21-goal ranking for Roslyn.

Presbyterian Scores Safety, Touchdown To Trim Petrels, 9 to 7

MANASSA DIVES THROUGH CENTER FOR BIRD TALLY

B. Moore Blocks Axelberg's Kick for P.C.'s Winning Margin.

By ROY WHITE.

A safety and a touchdown late in the second quarter and some smart defensive football throughout the second half gave Presbyterian College a 9 to 7 victory over John Patrick's Oglethorpe Petrels Saturday afternoon at Hermance field.

It was the first of four home games for the Petrels and the second straight loss.

Both teams used all players in uniform due to the blistering sun and it was due to the steady stream of substitutes that no more concentrated drives were put together.

Oglethorpe threw away numerous chances to score. Once in the first quarter the Petrels drove to the seven-yard line, only to be turned back on a fumbled bad pass from center.

In the third period the Petrels drove to the 5, 23 and 3-yard stripes, but each time the drive was halted by an alert Presbyterian line.

PETRELS FIGHT.

Oglethorpe kept fighting back and scored on the second play in the fourth quarter. Twice more in the last period the Petrels were within scoring distance but again the necessary punch was lacking.

Oglethorpe outgained the visitors, 11 first downs to 7, but first downs are only guiding posts in touchdown pathways.

Presbyterian was outplayed, five first downs to one in the first quarter, but the visitors' line stood like a stone wall when their goal was threatened.

Early in the second period, Presbyterian broke through and blocked an Oglethorpe punt and Lawrence recovered the ball beyond the end zone for a Presbyterian safety.

Those two points gave Presbyterian a spark of confidence for they fought right back in a 60-yard march and scored a touchdown. Meisky passed 25 yards to Dennard who outran Oglethorpe's secondary defense the remaining 15 yards to a touchdown. Henderson kicked the point.

GEORGE MANASSA.

Leading, 9 to 0, going into the third quarter, Presbyterian rested on its laurels of the first half and forced the issue to the Petrels.

Oglethorpe staged a souple of long, unsuccessful marches before a substitute halfback, George Manassa, was inserted into play. His first effort was a fancy 30-yard run which placed the ball on Presbyterian's three-yard line as the period ended.

Manassa rammed the visitors' line twice and gained only one yard but on the third trial, he dived over center for the touchdown. Bobby Mills kicked the extra point.

Two more attempts were made to score late in the game, but a forward passing attack was halted on Presbyterian's seven-yard line, two plays before the game ended.

Tech Varsity Beats 'B,' Freshmen Teams

Beers Stars in Practice Game as Regulars Score 27 Points.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Sparked by the shifty running and passing of Bobby Beers, Georgia Tech scored 20 points in the first half and seven in the last to defeat the combined forces of Roy McArthur's Bee team and Norris Dean's freshmen.

The varsity, dressed in game uniforms, romped over the rugged defense of the Bees in the first half, but could make no headway against the Greens in the second semester and scored only in the last five seconds of play.

The Bees played the first half of the regulation game, which was played on Grant Field, and the Frosh finished up.

It was a regular game with no halts or let-ups. Regular officials worked and nearly 2,000 fans came out to watch the Jackets' "first" game.

The Bees and Freshmen could make no headway against the stonewall defense of the golden-clads, despite fine efforts of Tommy Brooks and Johnny Bosch.

The varsity offense looked good against the Bees but badly bogged down in front of the stout defense put up by the yearlings.

Bobby eBars, playing at tailback, set off the torch in the first and second periods with a couple of long runs and several fine passes. Billy Gibson and Howard Ector looked good while Big Ben Cuslman and J. L. Brooks were demons in the line.

In the third period play was confined almost entirely to varsity territory. Beers was re-injected into the lineup in the final quarter and contributed a 40-yard run in a drive which was halted by a pass interception at the goal line.

The sole score came on the last play of the game. With five seconds left, Billy Gibson faded back and tossed a 45-yard pass to Earl Wheby, who caught it on the dead run and sped across the goal line 20 yards away.

It was apparent Coach Alexander was pleased at the way his team looked in the game, although he wouldn't say as much.

The offense in the first half showed up well as Beers, Page, Gibson and Ector turned in fine performances.

VANDY DEFEATS BEARS BY 20 TO 0

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Showing only a flash of their heralded aerial attack, but plenty of Art Keene, Vanderbilt University defeated the stubborn Washington University Bears today, 20 to 0, before 5,000 spectators. Keene, 175-pound halfback, scored two of Vandy's touchdowns, one of them on a 30-yard run.

FIRST QUARTER.

Vanderbilt, recovering Warner's fumble of the opening kickoff, took just four minutes to score, Keene going over after a 20-yard pass, Hollins to Reinschmidt, had nullified a 15-yard penalty for holding. Agee place-kicked the extra point. Score: Vanderbilt 7, Washington 0. The Bears followed up Ferfecky's 51-yard return of a punt with a hard-driving running attack, but a fumble halted them five yards from a touchdown. The quarter ended with the score: Vanderbilt 7, Washington 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Washington, showing a strong defense against both passes and running plays, fought Vanderbilt to a standstill in the second quarter. Vandy tried only three passes, all incomplete. Ball-carriers on each team were thrown for frequent losses as hard-charging lines dominated the play. The half ended with the score still Vanderbilt 7, Washington 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

The Bears took the second-half kickoff and advanced to midfield, where Ford intercepted a pass. Running plays carried the Commodores to Washington's 18-yard line, but a fourth-down pass was incomplete. Ferfecky's punt was blocked and Vanderbilt recovered on Washington's 30. Keene then broke through and ran for his second touchdown. Agee again converted the extra point with a place-kick. Score: Vanderbilt 14, Washington 0, at the end of the third quarter.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Better punting gave Vanderbilt an edge on each exchange in the fourth quarter and they took advantage of a short Washington kick to drive to the Bears' 10-yard line, where the attack was stopped. On the next exchange of punts, Ferfecky fumbled and Vanderbilt recovered on Washington's 33-yard line. A forward-lateral pass, with Andrus on the tail-end, gained 26 yards. Marshall then passed to Reinschmidt for the touchdown. Hause's place-kick for the extra point was wide. The final score: Vanderbilt 20, Washington 0.

Big Green Smashes Bates in Opener, 46-0

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 24.—(UP)—Dartmouth opened its 1938 football season with a 46-0 victory over Bates here today.

The first team stayed on the field only five minutes, and in that time scored the first two touchdowns. Coach Earl Balik then withdrew his first eleven. The substitutes started slowly but in the second period scored two more touchdowns. Dartmouth scrubs added seven more points in the third and 12 in the last quarter.

the Shaughnessy series against New Orleans.

Richards, pleased at the way his batters have come out of their slump so noticably in the Memphis series, expects the series to end tomorrow. The Crackers want to get it over with and believe Sunkel, who won 21 games during the regular season, can do the trick.

Four straight over the cocky Vols would be quite a performance—four straight for $2,000 and a neat cut out of the Dixie series.

Cracker pitchers have been doing well in the last season. Sunkel hurled the first game without relief; Bill Beckman had to call on Bobby Durham in the ninth of the second contest, but Veteran Leo Moon allowed the Vols only six hits in winning the third game.

If Nashville wins tomorrow, Beckman will probably get the call Monday and will probably be opposed by Bill Crouch, whom the Crackers beat in the second game.

fourth when Banks McFadden, the Clemson fullback, found nearly every Greenie out of place and sprinted through them 21 yards for a touchdown. That time Pearson kicked the point.

Buddy Banker, aspirant to the All-American honors of his brother, Billy, starred in the Tulane opening score. He wiggled and twisted up the field for several short gains and threw a pass to Krueger which put the ball on Clemson's one-yard line. From there Banker stepped over for the touchdown. Bob Kellogg, a junior college player last year, was sent in and kicked the point from placement.

ONE-FOOT LINE.

Greenness of the Greenies may have lost them the game in their next scoring chance. They had the ball on the Clemson one-foot line and elected to get three points from Kellogg's toe rather than buck for a touchdown on fourth down.

Clemson's first touchdown came through a 60-yard McFadden punt to Tulane's five-yard line, from where Willis rammed the ball over after Bailey had been hurt.

line, opened up with some tricky football.

There was a fumble by Dooly Mathews. Graham Edwards shot a pass to Burrows, end, and Spain took a lateral from Burrows. It was fumbled but Bob David recovered at the Georgia three. The resourceful Edwards rammed over guard for a touchdown.

The Cadets were off again shortly afterwards. Edwards shot a 20-yard pass to David, and then standing back on Georgia's 44, wheeled another aerial to David, who caught the ball at the 12 and ran on over the goal line.

Each time the Cadets failed to get the extra point, but as the half ended, they held a 12-to-6 lead. At least for one-half of today's game The Citadel was the better team.

BULLDOGS COME BACK.

Georgia came storming back with the regulars in the second half and drove 62 yards to the third touchdown. Cate and Jimmy Fordham showed a lot of power. The Cadets buckled before their savage attack. Cate was hurt just before the final goal line drive and left the game. Stevens ran around end for two yards to climax the drive. Bill Badgett's extra point gave Georgia the lead.

A Citadel fumble paved the way for the final touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Citadel had stopped a march and taken the ball away, but there was a fumble and Newell recovered for Georgia at the Citadel 23.

Earl Hise, who had been hitting the stout Cadet line like an infuriated ram, collaborated with Matthews in taking the ball to the 14.

Hise took it alone from there. He sort of backed up as he took the ball and then rammed all the way across the line, taking tacklers with him. Knox Eldredge kicked the extra point.

The Bulldogs finished out the game with a mixture of regulars and reserves. The Cadets kept on hammering, but their force was spent.

CITADEL LEADS IN AIR.

They were superior by air today, were the Citadel Cadets, with a net of 81 yards in passing to Georgia's 39. But Georgia had a tremendous edge in rushing, with 298 yards to 20.

The Citadel used some of their yardage gained on the ground in the manufacturing of one touchdown, however. The ground-gaining was conservative, but six points resulted for a rather good average.

Georgia led in first downs, 20 to 8. Big Jim Fordham, Vassa Cate and Earl Hise did a lot of hammering.

This was a day for fumbling, with 15 of them in all. The Citadel fumbled nine times, Georgia six.

Inability to hold the ball hurt The Citadel cause, but Georgia would have won anyway with superior guns.

Nevertheless, it was a surprise showing. Few doubted Georgia would run away with the crippled Cadets, who left four of their best linemen at home because of injuries.

PLENTY RAW MATERIAL.

Georgia showed the raw material today. Blocking was not what it might have been, at times, but this emphasized the power running of boys like Hise and Fordham. Vassa Cate, too, showed a lot of speed and power until cramped legs forced him out of the lineup.

Graham Edwards was all that has been said of him. He is a fine little back. And The Citadel end, Bob David, was the best player on the field in first half.

He was good on offense and great on defense.

It was a relatively small opening-day crowd, but those who came saw a variety of thrills. And departed with the thought that this game will do the Bulldogs a lot of good.

"THEY HUSTLED—WE DIDN'T."

Coach Joel Hunt's cryptic observation of the game was, "They hustled and we didn't."

And that just about sums it up. The Citadel, with the lesser weapons, seemed to have more determination, which often is the case with the under-dog team.

The coaches will go to work this week to polish the blocking and the pass defense. South Carolina's Gamecocks are next on the schedule. This game is to be played Saturday at Columbia.

Vernon Smith scouted the Bulldogs today. Hunt warned Smith in advance that he wouldn't see much to write home about. And he didn't.

Minnesota Defeats Washington, 15-0

Bob Johnson, Guard, Intercepts Pass and Sprints to Touchdown for Powerful Gophers.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Minnesota's Golden Gophers hurled another sharp challenge to the football world today, defeating the Washington Huskies, 15 to 0, before 50,000 persons.

The Gophers had a bad scare in the opening period and missed a great chance for scoring in the next quarter. Finally with a minute of the first half play remaining a field goal sent Coach Bernie Bierman's outfit into a lead which they augmented by touchdowns in each of the last two periods.

When the mighty golden clad squad got going they were unstoppable. They broke up Washington's aerial game, stopped its fleet backs and blocked one kick that led to the final score.

PASSES INTERCEPTED.

Pass interceptions paved the way for the first score, a field goal by Quarterback George Faust, and brought the first touchdown when Tackle Bob Johnson snatched Halfback Jimmy Johnston's short forward and raced 85 yards to count.

Winning decisively, the Gophers flashed a cagey crew of ball hawks who recovered two costly Washington fumbles and speared the Huskies' passes with deadly consistency.

They presented a spectacular backfield star in Wilbur Moore whose hard running included dashes of 31, 16, 12 and 10 yards. He grabbed a Washington pass in the second period to set up the successful field goal bid.

Fullback Larry Buhler pressed Moore for honors, running 30 yards on one tackle drive and then single-handedly blasting through to the second touchdown by slashing 15 yards to the Washington seven and then charging over two plays later.

TURNING POINT.

The turning point of the game came late in the third period after Washington finally got its attack functioning and used a forward, a lateral and terrific line smashes to rush to the Minnesota 23 where it was first down.

On the first play, Jimmy Johnston shot a forward diagonally across the line of scrimmage. Tackle Bob Johnson, who had just come into the game and had not yet been slowed up by the hot weather, leaped high, speared the pigskin and thundered up the field. First one Husky player and then another was cut down as Johnson headed straight for the pay-off counter. Finally, only Jimmy Johnston had to be beaten and John Mariucci, stocky end, dumped him with a perfect block on the 10-yard line. This made it 9 to 0.

The second Minnesota touchdown in the fourth period came after Alan Rork, tackle, partly blocked McAdams' punt, the ball rolling out on the Minnesota 30. Shortly afterward Buhler ripped over for the score.

The punting of Harold Van Every for Minnesota was deadly, two kicks being downed inside the Huskies' five-yard line.

DON BUDGE WINS NATIONAL TITLE

Gene Mako Fights Hard But Is Beaten, 6-3, 6-8, 6-2, 6-1.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Donald Budge won the National Amateur tennis championship for the second straight year by defeating his closest friend, Gene Mako, 6-3, 6-8, 6-2, 6-1, in their final match before 15,000 fans here today. There was ever a doubt of the winner, though Mako played some fine tennis and never ceased to fight.

In what probably was his final appearance on the stadium court as an amateur, Budge for the most part was terrific. He blasted 10 service aces past Mako and scored 48 placements, balls his rival couldn't touch.

Mako had the satisfaction of winning the only set from Budge that the redhead has dropped while winning the Australian, French, British and American crowns in succession. It looked like Budge was really trying, too.

Alice Marble, of Los Angeles, won the women's title with a one-sided victory over Nancy E. Wynne, of Australia, 6-0, 6-2, in their final.

Tech Plays Mercer; Georgia Vs. Carolina

Alexander Plans Three Scrimmages This Week for Bear Game.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Georgia Tech's football players will enter their final week of practice Monday for the hardest opening game in many seasons against Mercer's Bears Saturday afternoon at Grant field.

Coach Bill Alexander plans scrimmages Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and will devote other days to polishing fine points of the game.

Lake Russell will bring the strongest Mercer team in years to Atlanta for the game and will offer the sternest kind of test to the Jackets. Observers report Russell has at his command the largest squad in history headed by a good first team and capable reserves.

Tech naturally will be favored to win but an upset is not impossible. It is hard to conceive of the Bears doing much with Alex's first two lines, but then the Jacket offense has not been clicking in practice and has been one of the big coaching worries.

TWO FINE ENDS.

The Bears have two of the finest ends in the south in Allen and Lawrence. Both are six-footers and plenty fast. Captain Rainey at guard is another outstanding performer and it should be quite a battle when he and Shorty Brooks tie up in the line.

Outstanding in the Bear backfield is Mattox, hard-plunging fullback, and Landrum, quarterback and an excellent blocker.

Tech's end situation has apparently been settled as no one seems capable of ousting George Smith and Bob Ison from the first string. Gay Thrash and Tom Allen are ready for reserve duty.

The other line positions have been intact all season and has Captain Jack Chivington at center, Brooks and Allen Wilcox at guards, and Glenn Cushing and Walter Rimmer at tackles.

Charlie Wood, Mack Furlow, Eston Lackey, Roane Beard, Jim Hart, Butch Aderholt and Junior Anderson are capable substitutes.

BACKFIELD MYSTERY.

However, the backfield remains a mystery. Howard Ector, quarterback, is the most dependable performer both on offense and defense. Bobby Beers, up from the Bee team, has improved so rapidly he may start against the Bears at tailback.

Billy Gibson has been hampered by a charley horse and missed a week's work but will be ready for the opening whistle. Juno Page, Buck Murphy, Buck Shaw, Earl Wheby and Neil Cavette and Roy Goree are other dependable performers.

Lewis Crockett has a bad leg and may miss the opener while it is hardly likely Joe Bartlett will see action as he is still in the hospital.

The opening backfield may consist of Gibson, Page, Beers and Ector, although Coach Alex may change his mind and substitute Murphy for Beers.

TARHEELS BEAT DEACONS, 14 TO 6

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Sept. 24. (UP)—Wake Forest's sophomore-spangled football team, playing in almost sultry weather before a crowd of 14,000, demonstrated today it is no setup for any southern team, but lost 14-6 to a strong University of North Carolina eleven.

Wake Forest took the lead in the first 10 minutes of the opening period, scoring when Jett, Wake Forest end, and Pate blocked successive Carolina punts on the Carolina one and Tingle recovered the second in the end zone. The Deacons failed to convert.

Carolina scored seven points in the second to go into the lead and added seven more with but three minutes left to play in the final period. The first touchdown came on a pass from Lelanne to Mallory after a 28-yard march. Maronic place-kicked the extra point. The second score came after Watson ran 41 yards to the Deacon's 24 and Carolina advanced steadily to the 1-yard line where Kraynick plunged over. Maronic again converted.

"Sweet" Lelanne and Mayberry, opposing sophomore backs, stood out with their superior running, passing and kicking. Carolina, pre-game favorite, often hit stone-wall resistance on line plays.

Score by periods:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Carolina | 0 | 7 | 0 | 7 | —14 |
| Wake Forest | 6 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —6 |

Touchdowns: Carolina—Mallory, Kraynick; Wake Forest—Tingle. Points after touchdown—Maronic 2.

Duke Easy Winner Over Gobblers, 18-0

GREENSBORO, N. C., Sept. 24. (UP)—Except for three brilliant scoring thrusts, Duke University played listless football in defeating Virginia Tech here tonight, 18-0.

The Virginia team was against an obviously superior opponent and never was able to offer a serious threat, although the Gobblers fought desperately.

Bob O'Mara, speedy Duke fullback, sprinted 54 yards around left end on a reverse play to score in the third period. Bob Spangler, quarterback, had marked up six points in the first quarter after O'Mara and Eric Tipton put the ball in scoring position by running 19 and 15 yards, respectively.

Kansas Wins Upset Victory Over Texas

LAWRENCE, Kan., Sept. 24.—(UP)—The University of Kansas, showing more life than had been suspected, defeated the University of Texas Longhorns, 19 to 18, in 90 plus temperature today before 10,000 fans.

Ralph Miller, a sophomore, paced the Jayhawkers to a two-touchdown lead in the first quarter and then retired until the Texans got hot in the last period. Miller passed and kicked and once he ran 90 yards for a touchdown after intercepting a pass.

Gamecocks May Prove Bulldogs' Toughest Foe of Year.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 24.—What very easily may prove the toughest game on Georgia's 1938 schedule lies directly ahead of Coach Joel Hunt's Bulldogs this week when they invade Columbia, S. C., to help Rex Enright's Gamecocks put on a gridiron show for a home-coming crowd that is expected to overflow the South Carolina stadium.

Coach Hunt, from the start of the season, has frequently told his charges they must be in tip-top form to withstand the powerful offense of the Gamecocks. He has pointed his team for that game and as a result fans can expect fireworks from the time the opening whistle blows until the end.

So it's easy to see that the game is a "natural," worth going miles to see. Both teams will "shoot the works" and both have plenty of ammunition.

Georgia and South Carolina have met on the gridiron nine times, Georgia winning all but two, one of which ended in a tie.

Here are past scores in games between the two schools:

1900—Georgia 5; South Carolina 5.
1901—Georgia 10; South Carolina 5.
1902—Georgia 0; South Carolina 17.
1908—Georgia 29; South Carolina 0.
1911—Georgia 39; South Carolina 0.
1919—Georgia 14; South Carolina 0.
1920—Georgia 37; South Carolina 0.
1924—Georgia 18; South Carolina 0.

GAMECOCKS TRIP XAVIER TEAM, 6-0

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Held in his tracks for more than three scoreless periods, big Ed Clary, University of South Carolina triple-threat star, broke through for 15 yards and a touchdown in the final minutes of play today to give the Gamecocks a 6-to-0 victory over Xavier University.

The game, played before 5,000 spectators under a sun more suitable for bathing than blocking, found the Muskeeters—pre-game underdogs—displaying unexpected strength and cunning.

Time and again, Xavier tacklers halted the vaunted Dixie passing combination of Grygo and Larry Craig before they could get beyond their own line—and Clary's one taste of success had its origin in part, to a series of Xavier bobbles.

With six minutes to play, after two Gamecock passes had failed, Clary gave the ball a tremendous boot from his own 30-yard line into Xavier goal territory. Art Sheetz, Xavier fullback, kicked out but Clary, signaling for a fair catch, was tackled by the opposition and Xavier was penalized 15 yards to its own 15.

Taking the ball, the big boy from Gaffney plunged through left tackle and the game's only tally. His try for an extra point went wide of the mark.

Boys' High and G. M. A. Clash Friday Night in Prep Grid Feature

TECH HI PLAYS IN NEW JERSEY MONDAY NIGHT

North Fulton Dedicates New Lighted Field, Meeting Gainesville.

By ROY WHITE.

Boys' High and G. M. A. will resume their inter-city warfare Friday night at Ponce de Leon park in the feature game of the week's football card. It's the first meeting of the two teams in several years and is another step forward in solving both the city and state prep football championships.

It is one of the few prep games here this week as most of the others are either out of the city or on a temporary vacation following tough assignments in opening games last week.

Tech High reached New York late Saturday and will battle Pompton Lakes at Patterson, N. J., Monday night and following with Union Endicott, in New York Saturday night.

North Fulton will dedicate a new lighted field Friday night a few paces south of Buckhead with Gainesville High as opponents. It marks the entrance of another strong football team within Atlanta's prep ranks and begins another rivalry in the North Georgia Interscholastic conference.

GOOD JOB.

Coaches Weyman Tucker and Weddington Kelly, the former University of Georgia end, have done a good work at North Fulton and Friday afternoon the North Fulton Wildcats without gaining a first down held a favored Marist eleven to a 7-to-0 score.

With the opening of another field for night football, Atlanta and vicinity are well supplied on all sides.

Russell has a fine lighted field on the south side. Ponce de Leon park and Grant field afford two good places nearer the center of town, North Fulton gives the north side an opening for night games and Decatur supplies the need on the east side.

Decatur High plays Russell High Friday night at East Point in an important North Georgia Interscholastic conference game, since both are unbeaten in their own ranks. Russell lost a 32-to-7 game to a strong, heavy G. M. A. eleven Friday night in the opener for both teams.

TYPISTS IDLE.

Commercial, fresh from an upset of the highly favored Lanier High Poets at Macon, will have an open date, before taking on Richmond Academy at Augusta October 7.

Marist also drew a blank for this week, but Coach Louie Van Houten would not turn his back on any propositions, either here or out of the city. In fact he would like very much to give the boys a chance to play.

The sudden collapse of Coach Selby Buck's Lanier High Poets is one of the mysteries of prep football. Never before in the past dozen years have the Poets dropped two opening games in succession. Lanier lost to Jordan High at Columbus September 16, 2 to 0, and was upset by an underdog Commercial Friday night at Macon.

Red Barron's Monroe Aggies gave Atlanta's fans an eye full Friday night when the starting eleven battled Boys' High to a tie score without making a single substitution.

GOTCH TO MEET LAYDEN MONDAY

One of the best scientific bouts ever seen in the south will be held at the West End Arena Monday night where Promoter Frank Bettis will throw into action Charlie Layden, the Denver kangaroo kicker, against Young Gotch, the Miami star.

These wrestlers are two of the fastest in their division in this section of the country and have never met before. The promoter has had more requests from the fans to match these two boys than has been asked for any match before.

Roughness will be the keynote in the semi-final and opening bouts. Robert Brown, the rough Canadian, who defeated Jack Ross here recently, will meet another of his kind when he tackles Sailor Al Olsen, the Boston Gob. This match is a winner-take-all, grudge bout.

Wild Bill Collins will again be seen in action. He will meet Irish Paddy Nolan. This match should rival the semi-final for action and roughness.

Decatur Slates First City Golf Tournament

Decatur's first annual golf tournament, open only to residents of the city of Decatur, will be played on the nearby Forrest Hills course October 1, it was announced Saturday.

Two days, October 1 and October 2, will be given over to the qualifying rounds. One match will be played each week.

Walter Baker has been appointed manager of the Forrest Hills course for the winter and spring, and will be in charge of all tournaments.

Plans for Decatur's first tournament call for 16 players in the championship flight and eight in all others. The winners and losers in the first round of the championship flight will form consolation flights.

READY FOR FORMER CHAMPION

Ben Brown, 20-year-old Atlanta middleweight, who has knocked out his last four opponents, faces the most important test of his career at Warren arena Monday night when he faces Babe Risko, former world's champion, in a return bout. They fought a draw several months ago.

Brown, Risko Fight Here Monday Night

Ben Primed for Big Chance; 38 Rounds of Boxing Offered at Warren Arena.

Ben Brown, trained and ready for the battle of his 20-year-old existence, goes into the Warren arena ring against Babe Risko, former world's champion, Monday night in what ranks as Atlanta's most important ring battle since the days of Young Stribling.

They fight 12 rounds or less. Neither man expects it to go the limit. Their first meeting, a ten-rounder, ended in a draw amid a storm of protests from Brown's manager, Sam Sobel, who contended Risko repeatedly used the outlawed kidney punch and should have had no more than two rounds.

Brown leaves no doubt of his plan of battle. He'll try for a knockout from the first gong. He realizes the cagey Risko has the edge in experience and ringcraft. Ben has knocked out his last four opponents, showing a terrific punch. He thinks he can hit Risko this time. And if he does, he is not worrying about the result. They don't get up when Ben smacks 'em with that right hand.

Despite the Atlanta boy's supreme confidence and apparent wonderful condition, Risko rules a slight favorite in the betting, the wise boys remembering his impressive showing in their last meeting.

If Brown can top the former champion, his stock, already high, will hit the sky. And he is ready and rarin' for action.

All boys on the card may be seen in public workouts this afternoon at Warren Arena from 2 until 4 o'clock.

In all, there will be 38 rounds. Frankie Allen, rising Atlanta middleweight, meets Joe Epperson in the eight-round semi-final. Paul Gentle faces Harold Rakestraw in a six. Those colored rivals, Kid Chocolate and Straight "8" Pryor, meet in a return six. There will be a four-round curtain raiser.

Ticket demand indicates a great crowd. Starting is 8:30.

Winners at White To Get Prizes Monday Night

Hook Sandow, professional at the John A. White municipal golf course, will present trophies and prizes Monday night to winners and runners-up in the recent club championship tournament.

The West End Businessmen's Association has donated a large trophy to be given the winner each year and it must be won three times to become a permanent possession.

Cotton Adcock won the championship, defeating J. W. Simmons. W. T. Whatley won the first flight, with P. B. McCarthy, runner-up. C. J. Mollison won the second flight from M. W. Anderson. Buster Brown and W. W. Williams were the winner and runner-up in the third flight.

Presentation of the prizes will take place at 8 o'clock at the clubhouse.

JIM FOXX ADDS TO HITTING LEAD; MYER IS SECOND

Myer, Averill, Heath and Chapman Are One Point Apart.

Jimmy Foxx, Boston's slugging first-baseman, added two points to his leading average of last week and continues to pace the hitters in the junior circuit with a mark of .349. Averages show him far in front in both total bases in which he has 380, and in runs batted in where he has 163.

Buddy Myer, Washington second-baseman, has pulled up into second position with .337, just one point ahead of Earl Averill, of Cleveland, who in turn is just one one point ahead of Jeff Heath, also of Cleveland, whose .335 is in turn just one point ahead of Ben Chapman, of Boston. Heath leads the league in triples with 18.

Hank Greenberg, Detroit first-baseman, the fourth player in major league history to pass the 50 mark in home runs, leads that department with 56 and is high in runs scored with 133.

Red Ruffing, of New York, leads the pitchers with 21 wins and six defeats. Buck Newsom, of St. Louis, leads in innings pitched, 304, and in strikeouts, with 207. He has won 18 and lost 15.

Pirates Beat Reds, Cubs Down Cards

Hartnett Homers as Bruins Win, 9-3; Dodgers Cop.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Pittsburgh Pirates clustered three runs in the second inning and added another in the eighth yesterday to beat the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 1 behind the six-hit pitching of Russ Bauers.

Blasting three pitchers for 15 hits, including Manager Gabby Hartnett's eighth homer, the Chicago Cubs kept pace in their stretch pursuit of Pittsburgh by beating the St. Louis Cardinals, 9 to 3. The triumph left them two games behind with eight to play.

Behind the six-hit pitching of Lefty Vito Tamulis, the Dodgers trampled the Phils 8 to 1. The Brooklyns collected 11 hits off two Phils pitchers, featuring three-run splurges in the first and fourth frames.

The New York Giants shoved a run across on two hits and an error in the ninth inning to nip the Bees, 9 to 8, in the first game of a double-header. Mel Ott's homer in the ninth gave the Giants the second game, 2-1.

Mel Harder's index finger went numb after he held the Detroit Tigers in check for six innings, and the Tigers hammered his successors for six runs and a 7-to-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

AAA PROGRAM TO RETAIN SAME GENERAL FORM NEXT YEAR

PLANS TAKE SHAPE FOR 1938 FESTIVAL IN PEANUT'S HONOR

Beauty Contest for Mules To Be Among Features of Dawson Event.

DAWSON, Ga., Sept. 24.—A pageant portraying the early history of this section, the crowning of a festival queen, a colorful parade, nightly fireworks displays, more than 10,000 square feet of displays, a mule beauty contest, and many other entertainment features will be presented during the annual Southeastern Peanut Festival, to be held here from October 31 through November 5.

H. S. Jennings, festival manager, has announced plans are rapidly taking shape for the annual event, and that assurances of co-operation and participation have come from many southwest Georgia counties, as well as from other Georgia points. The premium list will include many cash prizes for individual and community exhibits.

Members of the festival association have extended an invitation to Dr. George W. Carver, negro scientist at Tuskegee Institute, whose research work has resulted in the discovery of countless new uses for the peanut.

Among the major features of the event will be the selection and crowning of the festival queen, with beauties from many south Georgia counties competing for the honor.

Probably the most unusual of the entertainment features, Mr. Jennings states, will be the beauty contest for mules, in which fine stock from Terrell and its neighboring counties will be entered. To the best groomed, best fed and best all-around mule will go the title of "Miss Peanut" (or "Mr. Peanut," as the case may be), or some other befitting title. A new bridle and a bale of choice hay also will go to the winner, and suitable awards also will be made to the runners-up for "Glamor Boy" (or "Girl") of the barnyard.

MISTRIAL RESULTS IN DAUGHTRY CASE

Joe Newton and Son May Face Court Again at November Term.

SYLVANIA, Ga., Sept. 24.—(AP) Failure of a jury to reach a verdict had resulted today in a mistrial in the cases of Joe Newton and his son, Ralph, charged with complicity in the swamp slaying of Charlie Daughtry, wealthy Screven county planter.

After nearly 12 hours of deliberation, Foreman Harvey Taylor reported late last night the jurors were divided, 5 and 7, and could not reach a verdict. Judge J. T. Grice declared a mistrial.

At the request of Defense Attorney G. C. Dekle, the judge set bonds of $10,000 each for the defendants.

Solicitor General W. G. Neville said the Newtons probably would be retried at the November term of court.

Meanwhile, another jury tried and convicted Aaron Nelson, seventh defendant in the case, and recommended that he be extended mercy. He was a main prosecution witness.

Three others, Osborne Newton, John Burns and Lonnie Lanier, were convicted in the slaying and given life sentences. Albert Cobb, Savannah attorney indicted as an accessory, was acquitted.

A motion for new trial for Osborne Newton and Burns was set for hearing before Judge Grice in Glennville October 22. The hearing had been scheduled for today. A new trial hearing for Lanier is scheduled before Judge Charles Worrill in Cuthbert, October 8.

They're Always in Quest of New Industries

Constitution Staff Photo—Wilson.

City commissioners in Griffin are friendly and hospitable to new industries, co-operating with Spalding county commissioners, headed by J. A. Burnett, chairman, in any way possible to attract attention to the advantages offered by the city and county. Shown left to right above are John Stevens Manley, Judge D. R. Cumming, chairman, and W. B. Harris.

Griffin Holds Important Position Among Georgia Industrial Cities

Spalding's Rich Agricultural Lands Contribute Much To Enrich City; Progressive Improvements Are Undertaken by Municipality.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.
Staff Correspondent.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Sept. 24.—Griffin and Spalding county are evidence of a happy unity of the historic past with its tradition, and the progressive present.

Known variously as the "Iris City" because of its teeming blooms, the "City of Pimientos," due to the fact it boasts the largest pimiento pepper canning plant in the world, and the "Towel Town," because 70 miles of towels are manufactured here in a single day when the mills are in full blast, Griffin is recognized as one of the most versatile cities in this section of the state.

Population of the Spalding county seat has increased from 15,046 in the metropolitan area in 1930 to a current city directory listing of 21,800, but its progress and growth are not recorded in population figures alone. There have been huge increases in building activities, and public work and public improvements have kept pace with population trends.

Welcomes Industries.

C. T. Elliott, president of the Griffin and Splanding county chamber of commerce, backed by Judge D. R. Cumming, chairman, and John Stevens Manley and W. B. Harris, other city commissioners, likes most to tell of Griffin's famed hospitality. He and others point out that Griffin welcomes inquiries concerning business and industrial possisilities in Spalding county, and they now are engaged in a drive to interest new prospects throughout the middle west.

There are 15 major manufacturing plants in Griffin or on the outskirts of the city. These have a combined pay roll of more than $85,000 a week when the mills are all operating at capacity. In addition, there are numerous other smaller industries.

The city itself has an altitude of 980 feet. It is the capital of the county, which is in the heart of the Piedmont plateau, lying between the coastal plain on the south and the Appalachian mountains in the north. This section of the state is known commonly as the "red belt."

Improvement Program.

In co-operation with Spalding county, Griffin is seeking federal government assistance for construction of a new $10,000 abattoir, and street paving projects totaling about $16,000. The latter program already has been approved. A total of 4,000 feet of 10-inch water mains at a cost of $12,000 is nearing completion.

"Spalding county blazed the trail in growing pimiento peppers in the United States," Mr. Elliott said. "We are one of the largest production sections of this product in the entire world, and have the largest pimiento canning plant in the world. The capacity is eight cans a second or 200,000 cans a day.

"Our mills manufacture a large number of useful articles and thousands of workers are employed. The second largest towel mill in the world is in Spalding county. It turns out 70 miles of towels a day and 20 miles of bleaching and drying a day as a sideline.

Huge Hosiery Mill.

"The second largest infant hosiery mill in the United States is in Spalding county. It makes enough infants' hose every day when operating at capacity to give every child in Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi a change of hose.

"Griffin and Spalding county meet progress more than half way," Judge Cumming said. "We are proud of our history and of our traditions, but we have never permitted them to stand as barriers to our advancement."

Griffin was named for General Lewis Lawrence Griffin, first president of the Monroe Railroad and Banking Company. It was laid out by General Griffin and was named for him in 1840.

Spurned Railroad.

But for a decision of old settlers who asked for a plank road into Griffin instead of a railroad, Griffin might have become the greatest railway center in Georgia, pioneer residents say.

In the very early years of the 19th century there was considerable apprehension about locomotive engines. When Griffin citizens first had the choice of which road they would fight to obtain, they decided on a plank road over which horses, mules and oxen could travel. Atlanta went after the railroad.

Later, when General Griffin and his associates proposed a railroad into Griffin, J. H. Couper, member of the board of public works, conferred with the then Governor George M. Troup. The following interview was reported by Mr. Couper:

"After a very earnest conversation with Governor Troup, he said to me, 'Well, Mr. Couper, I will go with you in favor of railroads, but what power do you contemplate?' My reply was 'locomotives, of course.' 'Good, God,' he said, 'I can not stand that. I will go to the extent of horse power (that is horse-drawn coaches).'"

This was in 1826, and at the time there were only 22 miles of railroad in the world.

American-Born Population.

In support of the contention that manufacturers can locate advantageously in Griffin and Spalding county, leaders point out that 99.7 per cent of the population is American-born.

Spalding county has 60 miles of paved road and boasts it was the first county in Georgia to have a concrete road running from county line to county line, a distance of 18 miles.

Griffin has approximately 20 miles of paved streets and 45 miles of sidewalks.

The city is still a transportation center having 16 passenger trains daily in addition to numerous bus and truck services.

The Georgia Experiment Station, two miles north of Griffin on United States highway No. 41, has developed into one of the most valuable agricultural laboratories in the southeast. It was begun in 1887 from 130 acres, a staff of two members, and three small buildings, and today it includes about 700 acres of land, a staff of 40 members and has barns, experimental field plats and hundreds of other facilities.

Other Major Crops.

In addition to pimientos, Spalding county produces grains, cotton, peaches, grapes, pork and sheep, and is rapidly developing as a cattle raising area.

REA lines, supplementing privately operated services, form a network making power available to practically all sections of the county.

Spalding county was formed December 20, 1851, from land which composed sections of Pike, Henry and Fayette counties. It was named for Thomas Spalding, a wealthy planter and a member of congress. It lies in the fourth congressional district and the twenty-sixth state senatorial district.

KEEN-NOSED NEGROES SCOOP UP CONTRABAND

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 24.—(AP) Thirsty negroes with keen nostrils scented that officials at the state liquor warehouse here were dumping contraband into a sewer.

A number hastened to the scene with paper cups to scoop up free samples of "white lightning" which state agents say is becoming scarce with the advent of local option.

The discarded liquor was dumped from a variety of containers, ranging from hot water bottles to a dilapidated flower pot with a hole stopped up with a cork.

GORDON MEMORIAL WILL BE UNVEILED AT THURSDAY RITES

Judge John D. Humphries To Speak at Thomaston Ceremonies.

THOMASTON, Ga., Sept. 24.—A memorial sun dial, mounted on a fittingly inscribed marble base, will be unveiled and dedicated here at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in tribute to the memory of General John B. Gordon, who led a notable southern command during the War Between the States.

Members of John B. Gordon Camp No. 46, Sons of Confederate Veterans, will be in charge of the ceremonies at courthouse square, and will be assisted by members of Sharman chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, of which Mrs. Grady Fowler is leader. McWhorter Milner is commander of the S. C. V. organization.

Principal speaker at the ceremonies will be Judge John D. Humphries, of Atlanta, member of the Gordon camp, who will head a large delegation of other Atlanta members. He will be introduced by Mayor Hugh Thurston, of Thomaston.

The memorial will be unveiled by Robert Bruce Reeves and Veteran Davison, members of the camp.

The dedication site overlooks state highway No. 3, which extends through Griffin to the Florida line, recently designated as the John B. Gordon highway by legislative enactment.

General Gordon, who was born only a few miles from here, served the Confederate forces during the War Between the States, and later represented Georgia in the United States senate and as Governor.

HERTY BOARD NAMES WOOD PULP AIDES

Exhibit May Be Sent to World's Fair at New York.

The board of directors of the Herty Foundation yesterday appointed State Forester Frank Heyward Jr., as acting field director and Dr. Charles H. Carpenter as technical directors to carry on the work in pulp wood development started by the late Dr. Charles H. Herty at Savannah.

James W. Fowler, of Soperton, acting chairman of the board, announced Heyward had received consent of Governor Rivers temporarily to leave his post with the state forestry department to accept the acting field driectorship of the foundation.

Dr. Carpenter, chief chemist of the Herty Foundation laboratory, has served as executive director since Dr. Herty's death.

The board also named W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon News and Telegraph, to the executive committee and elected Elliott W. Reed, of Savannah, to the committee's chairmanship.

Fowler said the board also considered a pulp wood exhibit at the forthcoming World's Fair at New York and a plan whereby fellowships providing for study at the Herty Laboratory would be authorized through contributions of other southern states as a means of distributing the foundation's proposed $100,000 operating budget "through the states that are being benefited by the foundation's work and experiments."

RED CROSS NURSES TO HOLD INSTITUTE

Home Hygiene and Care of Sick To Be Studied at Meeting.

A four-day institute in home hygiene and care of the sick for Red Cross nurses will open at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Atlanta chapter's lecture room, 86 1-2 Luckie street, General James H. Reeves, executive director, announced yesterday.

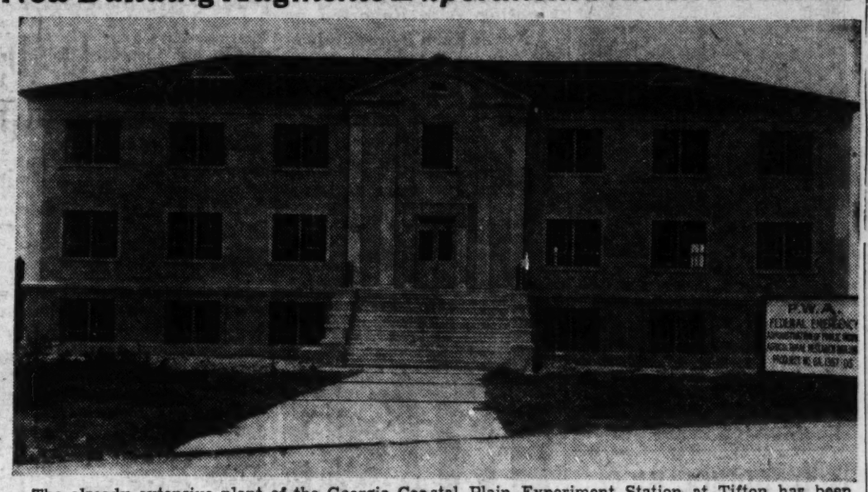

Miss Anna C. Gring, national field representative of the Red Cross, and Miss Alice Dugger, nursing representative for Georgia, will conduct the institute.

White nurses will receive their instructions in two all-day sessions Wednesday and Thursday, while negro nurses will attend similar classes Friday and Saturday. Registration headquarters for local and out-of-town nurses will be at the Atlantan hotel. Approximately 30 nurses are expected to attend.

Dr. Frank K. Boland, chairman of the Atlanta chapter, will address the nurses at the opening session. The institute is designed to fit the nurses for Red Cross instructors.

Meanwhile, Dr. Boland announced that Nat C. Wilson, assistant to the manager of the eastern area, American National Red Cross, will be guest speaker at the combined semi-annual meeting of the executive committee and board of directors of the Atlanta chapter at 12:30 o'clock Thursday at the Henry Grady hotel. The program will be based on home and farm accident prevention as a forerunner to the accident prevention campaign which begins October 24.

New Building Augments Experiment Station Facilities

The already extensive plant of the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station at Tifton has been augmented by this newly constructed building which will provide laboratory facilities for further research work in farm plant diseases and for a study of grasses suitable for south Georgia livestock grazing. It was built by the board of regents with federal aid at a cost of $60,000.

DR. BAKER'S BOOKS PLANNED FOR STUDY

Emory Professor's Works on Nature Designed for Grade Schools.

Publication of a series of textbooks for use in southern grammar schools written by Dr. W. B. Baker, professor of biology at Emory University, was announced yesterday by an Atlanta publishing house.

The work, entitled "Southern Nature Studies," is a series of supplementary readers for use in the fifth, sixth and seventh grades. The readers are designed to provide the school child with instruction and reading about the ordinary organisms of nature with which he is in contact in everyday life.

Collaborating with Dr. Baker were Lucien Harris, official of the Atlanta branch of the Macmillan company, and grandson of Joel Chandler Harris, famed Georgia author, and Rev. Wallace Rogers, pastor of the First Methodist church of Griffin and father of Ernest Rogers, radio editor of The Journal.

The textbooks are featured by numerous full-page photographs of southern birds by the Rev. Mr. Rogers.

Dr. Baker expressed a belief that the books might be tentatively adopted for state school system use in several southern states.

"In these readers we have endeavored to provide a nature study book for southern children," Dr. Baker said. "The field has been conspicuously devoid of such works before. In addition merely to trying to acquaint them with nature, we are trying to teach in the books the fundamentals of conservation and utilization of natural resources."

The new building, which has not been entirely completed, will have a seating capacity of 700 persons. The pastor has supervised the building of the church in addition to his other duties.

CLOTHING IS BURNED BY MYSTERIOUS FIRE

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 24.—W. E. Perry, United States commissioner and deputy court clerk, appeared in the federal courtroom yesterday in a meditative mood, still wondering "how come?"

The night before he was aroused from sleep by a choking sensation and found the chair on which he had placed his clothing in flames.

Mr. Perry reported there was no fire in the room when he retired, and that the chair was not near any electric wires.

NEW RESEARCH UNIT ACCEPTED BY STATE

Building at Coastal Plain Station To Further Agricultural Studies.

TIFTON, Ga., Sept. 24.—Chancellor S. V. Sanford today announced the formal acceptance, by the state board of regents, of a new agricultural research building at the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station near here.

The building was constructed at a cost of $60,000, of which PWA furnished 45 per cent and the regents 55 per cent.

S. H. Starr, director of the station, recommended acceptance of the building to the chancellor, and R. H. Driftmier, supervising engineer of the board of regents, approved the acceptance and pronounced the building constructed in accordance with the plans and specifications.

The large daylight basement of the new building will be used for the further study of grasses. Chancellor Sanford expressed a hope that a more nutritious grass suitable for the grazing of cattle in south Georgia may be discovered at the station at an early date.

"The encouragement of the livestock industry in Georgia is a paramount objective of the regents," Chancellor Sanford stated.

Spacious rooms in this research building will accommodate laboratories for research work with diseases of tobacco, cotton, corn, peanuts and other agricultural products.

A $4,000 greenhouse recently completed is now in use for the study of diseases connected with the growing of tomato, pepper, eggplant, sweet potato and other vegetable plants grown in south Georgia for early planting in the east and west. Last spring, plants with a total value of $600,000 were shipped from Tifton and vicinity. Forty-seven express cars were shipped from Tifton in one day.

U. S. FARM AGENCY WILL FIX ACREAGE FOR MAJOR CROPS

Federal Officials Studying Proposals To Remove Peanut Quotas.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Georgia farmers already looking forward to the 1939 growing season may shape their programs with the expectation that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program will be similar to that of this year, State Administrator Homer S. Durden announced today.

Durden said a tentatively-approved program for all states follows the recommendations of AAA field representatives and farmer-committeemen who conferred with Washington AAA officials recently.

This embraces farm acreage allotments for cotton, tobacco, wheat and, in certain designated commercial counties, potatoes.

A general allotment will be assigned for planting to soil-depleting crops on farms where feed crops or livestock products are grown for sale. Durden said the acreage devoted to corn will be included in this general allotment without a special allotment for the one crop.

AAA officials still are studying proposals to remove peanuts from acreage allotments, although this crop was handled under special arrangements this season. The question of including vegetable crops planted for commercial purposes also remains to be decided.

Payments to farmers will be based upon compliance with allotments and the continuance of approved soil-building practices. A maximum payment will be computed for each farm, Durden explained, which the grower may earn by complying with the various provisions of the AAA program.

Deductions will be made for excess plantings and for failure to carry out the soil-building practices specified.

Cotton acreage will remain around 27,500,000 for the nation, but the tobacco acreage depends upon final figures on 1938 production, Durden pointed out.

EVANS CONSIDERS RACE FOR SPEAKER

Howell-Talmadge Supporter Says He May Yield to Suggestions.

Randall Evans Jr., of Thomson, 32-year-old veteran of eight years in the general assembly and supporter of ex-Governor Eugene Talmadge, announced yesterday he was considering seriously making the race for speaker of the house of representatives when the legislature convenes in January.

The McDuffie county legislator is a supporter of both Hugh Howell, unsuccessful candidate for Governor, and Talmadge, but he says it is not at their request he is considering the race. Evans was one of the leaders of the anti-administration bloc in the last legislature.

The prospective candidate has served six years in the lower house and two years in the senate. During 1933-34, he was mayor of Thomson and also city attorney. He is now attorney for McDuffie county.

Complete text of Evans' statement follows:

I have received many urgent requests from people throughout Georgia to become a candidate for speaker of the house of representatives at the next regular session of the general assembly. These requests come from representatives and citizens who are very much concerned about the welfare of the state.

In response to these requests, I met with a large number of them Friday in Atlanta. After a thorough discussion, and in view of the vital questions which must be determined by the next general assembly, convening in January, it was the opinion of all present that I should make the race for speaker.

I have been a member of the legislature for the past eight years, six years in the house of representatives and two years in the senate. I have taken an active part in matters before the respective bodies and in parliamentary procedure, and I believe, and my friends believe, that I am well qualified to discharge the duties of the office of speaker.

My experience during these eight years has taught me the importance of having a presiding officer who will see that fair consideration is given to all questions coming before the body, and that fair treatment and courtesy are shown to each and every member, particularly new members and those who are not familiar with parliamentary procedure.

I am earnestly considering making the race, and I will make a definite announcement within the next few days.

Heavy fighting was reported in progress southeast of Teruel.

Atlanta Man Describes Hurricane As 'Enough To Curdle One's Blood'

Clifford T. Burgess Gives Account of Devastating Storm, Floods and New London Fire in Letter Written by Candlelight.

The hurricane along the east coast last week was described as "enough to curdle one's blood" in a letter written by candlelight by Clifford T. Burgess, motion picture producer of Atlanta.

The letter, received by Atlanta friends of Burgess, was written Thursday night at Hartford, Conn.

"An eyewitness account of the terrible hurricane, the floods and the New London fire would be sufficient to curdle anyone's blood," wrote Burgess. "I have been since 7 o'clock yesterday morning covering a straight-line distance of about 125 miles. I must have covered at least 500 miles in an effort to get to Hartford.

"It was terrifying. Trees toppled on all sides. One tremendous tree missed me by a few yards, and as I was stalled there for two hours while a crew chopped a passage through, another tree came down and top branches completely covered my car.

"I don't know how I ever got into New London. When I got as far as I could possibly go, the big fire broke out three blocks ahead of me. If the wind had not shifted, the entire town would have gone up, as fire engines could not get to the fire.

"It is hard to imagine the havoc wrought by the wind. Trees crashed through roof tops, tore down telephone wires, ruined automobiles and paralyzed traffic. Boats were blown out of the water and onto roads. I saw a car perched on a post in a swamp 50 yards off a road.

"In some towns near the coast, many persons had lashed themselves to trees with ropes."

Burgess, who conducted the screen test contest sponsored by The Constitution last year, was on a visit to New England to see relatives when the storm struck.

VOL. LXXI., No. 105. ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 25, 1938. B SECTION

HER PEOPLE AND HER PROGRESS

A LARGE and growing section of southwest Atlanta, consisting of the old Seventh and Tenth wards —now the Fourth—a home-owning community, dotted with schools and churches; where parks and playgrounds provide recreation; where millions of dollars are represented in various businesses, and where 60,000 to 70,000 splendid, neighborly, wide-awake church-going citizens live contentedly in their homes.

Building of Tavern in 1835 Was Beginning of West End

Known as White Hall Tavern, It Gave Name to Whitehall Street.

A tavern built at a cross-roads, now Lee and Gordon streets, was the beginning of West End.

This was in 1835, two years before the railroad's survey, located the site upon which Atlanta is built.

The tavern was built on what was then known as the Newnan road. It was known as White Hall, and was the dominating center after the War Between the States.

White Hall, the tavern, grew into the first community center, and it was from this tavern that Whitehall street secured its name. White Hall was a post office, an election precinct, and there the militia musters were held. Its daily mail arrived over the Lawrenceville-Newnan stage coach. Across the road from the tavern, Charner Humphries, who had built the tavern, operated a general store.

Much of the early history of West End was furnished recently by Wilbur G. Kurtz, prominent Atlanta artist and writer. We quote from one of his recent articles in which he says that back in these early days when Humphries' general store was a gathering place, "came Atlanta's first physician, Dr. Joshua Gilbert, with his long whiskers, his pill-bag and the little bell that summoned curbstone patients. Another of Dr. Josh's peculiarities was his insistence upon the name Camilla for all the little girls he ushered into the world; one of them still survives, but Miss Sarah Huff wouldn't stand for the name when she found Fulton county full of 'em. Dr. Joshua's first wife was a daughter of Charner Humphries."

Growing Atlantaward.

By 1850 a settlement at White Hall had begun growing Atlantaward, according to Mr. Kurtz.

West End was a separate community two years before the establishment of Terminus. When Atlanta was incorporated in 1847 its corporation line was a circle one mile from the zero milepost of the Western & Atlantic railroad. In 1866 a half-mile was added to Atlanta's corporation circle —this line passed through the intersection of Park and Peters streets. A few years later—with West End still without the charmed circle—the citizenry decided to incorporate. Their corporate area, as laid down, placed Greensferry avenue on the north, Holderness street on the west. Lumpkin street on the south, and the Atlanta circle of 1866—for the greater part—on the east.

Continuing, Mr. Kurtz declares

BUSINESS LEADERS HAVE STRONG BODY

West End's Businessmen's Association Active in Every Good Movement.

Doubling its membership within the last twelve months, with a total now of 400 of West End's most wide-awake citizens, the West End Businessmen's Association is truly an asset to that large section of Atlanta.

For the past twelve months George L. Wilson, as its president, has been one of the vital spark plugs in the organization that has kept it on the constant move for greater and better things for the West End section. He has been ably assisted by W. A. Moreland, who has been its faithful and com-

Business and Industry On the Move in West End

BIG CORPORATIONS COME TO WEST END

Scores of Large National Organizations Maintain Branch Houses Here.

No business or trading section in the city of Atlanta can boast of a greater representation, so far as large corporations are concerned, than the trading area around and through West End.

Large corporations—those with established branch houses—observe in West End a fine prospect for business, and many have established their branch houses and stores in this section.

Concerns like those mentioned below rarely ever make mistakes in locating their branch houses.

Where 'Lee Meets Gordon' Is Heart of That Community.

By ALBERT G. MATHEWS.

Whether or not General Forrest ever said the way to win a battle was to "git thar fustest with the mostest men," adequate transportation facilities are without a doubt absolutely essential to the well-rounded development of a community, state or nation.

Here, "Where Lee street meets Gordon" and visualize the heart of West End.

Lee and Gordon streets were first Indian trails, and by this corner came the stage coaches carrying the mail on the old Newnan-Lawrenceville post road.

Men still living will tell you of driving oxen up Lee street through the town of West End, into Atlanta. They will tell you of the one or two stores on the corner.

Younger men tell of the later developments. There is universal agreement the last year has seen more new building than ever before—which completes the development of both sides of Gordon street, from Lee to Dunn.

Oldest P. O. Substation.

Station "A," the oldest post office substation in Atlanta, metropolitan banking facilities, professional men, a theater and community newspaper, a hundred separate businesses within one block each way, almost every human desire from food, clothing and hardware to hairpins and cosmetics can be quickly and agreeably satisfied.

If it has not been built in the last two or three years it has almost without exception been modernized, so that even the most casual visitor, while sensing the traditions that everywhere abound, still feels the 1938 tempo of progress.

Community Centers.

Churches, schools, parks, playgrounds, Cascade Heights, Cascade Manor, West End park, Oakland City, Adair Park, Capitol View, Sylvan Hills, a dozen community centers, splendid suburban areas, clubs, various cultural facilities—most important, good people—all make the great southwest section a good place in which to live and rear children.

Whitehall extension recently opened; Lee street a boulevard to East Point; other improvements in the making. Fort McPherson; the municipal airport, one of the country's best.

Unexcelled railroad facilities have made possible the important industrial areas already developed and from this foundation advancement can continue to accelerate.

Southwest Atlanta has provided for and definitely wants and will welcome business and industry.

From the residential sections, its home lovers say, "Come, be my neighbor."

11,085 West End Children Enrolled in Public Schools

By ERNEST BREWER, Member Board of Education, Fourth Ward.

The West End section of the city takes pride in its schools. Of the 44 white elementary schools in the entire city nine of them are in West End. Of the 23,112 white elementary children enrolled in the city schools at the close of school last June, 3,804 were in these nine schools.

In addition to these, there is one junior high school, Joe Brown Junior High school, with an enrollment of 1,854, and the special school at Battle Hill with an enrollment of 35.

In this section of the city are located the Booker T. Washington senior and junior high schools, the Bush Mountain elementary school and the colored division of Battle Hill school, with a total enrollment of 3,392.

In all, therefore, West End is contributing 9,085 pupils to the school system. This number does not take into consideration those who go to the senior high schools; Boys' High, Girls' High, Commercial High and Tech High as well as the colored nights and the Opportunity school. In all there are 11,085 West End children enrolled in school.

The following facts about some of our schools might be of interest to some of the citizens of West End:

| School | Principal | Enrollment |
|---|---|---|
| Capitol View | Miss Sara Tuck | 305 |
| Connally | Miss Avaleen Morris | 253 |
| Harris | Mrs. Eva Thornton | 599 |
| Lee | Miss Rusha Wesley | [illegible] |
| Peeples | Mrs. A. S. Johnson | 634 |
| Ragsdale | Miss Fanny Spahr | 370 |
| Stanton | Miss Lillian Flynn | 251 |
| Sylvan Hills | Miss Lois Hollingsworth | 351 |

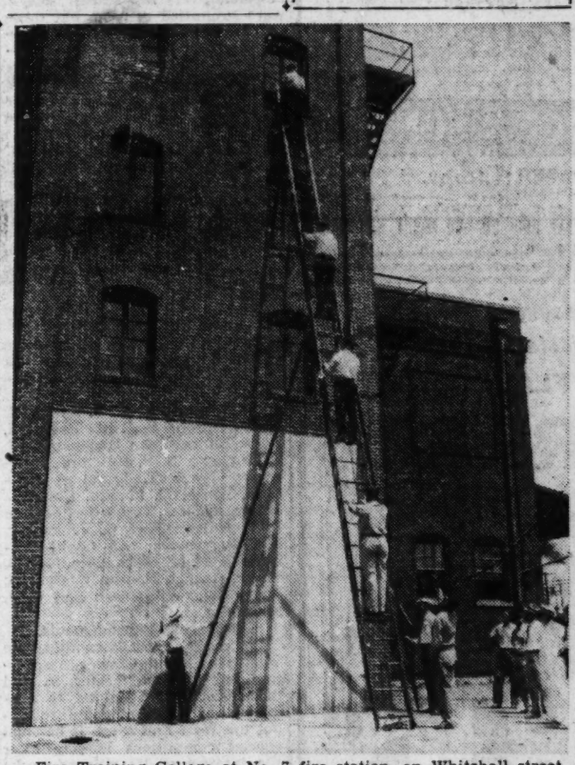

(The enrollment figures given are for last June, the last period for which complete figures are available.)

The Adair school has the distinction of contributing a new principal to the system, Miss Anna Senkbeil. Two teachers retired: Miss Kate Bogman, sixth grade teacher, Adair school, and Miss Ina Bennett, fifth grade teacher, Stanton school.

In many of the West End schools the children reported this fall to new classrooms and new auditoriums.

that the stressful days of the 60's did not absorb all the color and picturesqueness from West End. Her citizenry have been notable—her annals, interesting, if brief. Atlanta's first merchant—"Cousin John" Thrasher once lived there—that was when he built a large house on Ashby street, at West End avenue, in 1858—which later was known as "The Homestead"—residence of Dr. E. L. Connally. Jonathan Norcross resided there—fourth mayor of Atlanta.

Snap Bean farm finally succumbed to metropolitan encroachments, but "the Wren's Nest" still remains a memorial to the tender teller of those tantalizing tales of the "Tar Baby and Br'er Rabbit." The world, indeed, has beaten a path to his door—hither came a certain Andrew Carnegie—a James Whitcomb Riley—and a joyous gentleman in frock coat and striped trousers, who once said "My People" and made 'em like it!

BUSINESS LEADERS HAVE STRONG BODY

petent secretary for the past four years.

At the regular meeting held on Monday night, September 19—the time for the annual election—Mr. Wilson was unanimously re-elected president and presented with a handsome electric clock from the association in appreciation of his past services.

Secretary Moreland, who was awaiting an operation at Emory hospital, could not be present on election night, but he was unanimously re-elected secretary. In fact, he was elected honorary member and secretary for life, with many compliments passed upon his faithful services. Being absent from the meeting did not prevent the association from visiting the hospital at 11 o'clock that night and presenting him, on behalf of the organization, with a handsomely engraved gold watch with chain attached. A committee visited the hospital immediately after the meeting to make the presentation.

Officers and Directors.

Other officers and directors named were: Vice president, Frank Etheridge; treasurer, F. Young Howell; assistant secretary, Fred W. Collier; chaplain, Rev. A. Julian Warner; directors, J. C. Aldredge, Dr. C. R. Adams, Ed Deckner, J. C. Wingo, L. R. Brewer, J. P. Hill, Dr. A. C. Wall, S. D. Mullinax and M. W. Stallings.

Nearly two hundred votes had been cast throughout the day in a ballot box, and the large vote cast for the officers and directors was a compliment to the splendid work they had done.

Due to the absence of Secretary Moreland, very few annual reports were submitted or read, but these will be taken up at the next regular meeting. However, the chairmen of the various committees made oral reports, which showed the good work the association has been doing within the past twelve months for the West End area.

Ernest L. Brewer, member of the board of education, stated that through the activity of members, the council committee making up its program under a proposed bond issue, had included $350,000 for a new junior high school to be located in the Capitol View or Sylvan Hills district to serve the West End section.

21 New Members.

Twenty-one new members were added to the roster on the last meeting night. These were as follows:

C. E. Bradley, A. V. Cline, R. M. Davidson, F. Lee Evans, I. Gloer Hailey, John Henderson, M. L. Huffman, S. P. Hutchins, Lieutenant James T. (Jimmie) Malcolm, Ernest D. Martin, Claud L. Miller, Thomas L. Minter, George F. McNulty, Chief O. J. Parker, E. T. Parramore, R. F. (Bob) Pennington, M. M. Richardson, Earl B. Slider, Charles Henson Whitehead, Harry W. Williamson and C. J. Mallinson.

Promoting Improvements.

During the past 12 months, the West End Businessmen's Association has been interested in and has fostered and helped to promote many improvements throughout the West End area. It has had special committees looking after the interest of its citizens, seeking larger and better school facilities and guarding the health of its community. When city improvements are suggested or needed the association has come out wholeheartedly to secure them. It was largely responsible for the extension of Whitehall street, the new paved and convenient highway that leads along the railroad from Gordon street to McCall's crossing. The association hammered untiringly until the city reacquired the John A. White golf course, which, a year or so ago, had apparently been lost. This big golf course is now one of the joys of golfers in the city.

Just now the association is working on details and seeking to have Gordon street widened from Lee to Peeples street. This is, in large part, one of the busy trade thoroughfares in West End, and it is believed that 'ere long this improvement will be made.

For Branch Library.

The association has been working for some time to secure in the coming improvements for Greater Atlanta, a library branch for West End, and is also sponsoring and much interested in the establishment of a large botanical garden somewhere out toward the Chattahoochee river, off Gordon road.

The following have served the organization as president since its beginning: I. L. Falkner, first president, elected April 27, 1927; Hall Davis, H. Chambers, Walter Whittington, Robert Catlin, Dr. A. C. Ayers, Charles Babb, Ben Burgess, A. G. Mathews, J. H. Merritt, Roy Warren and the present encumbent George Wilson.

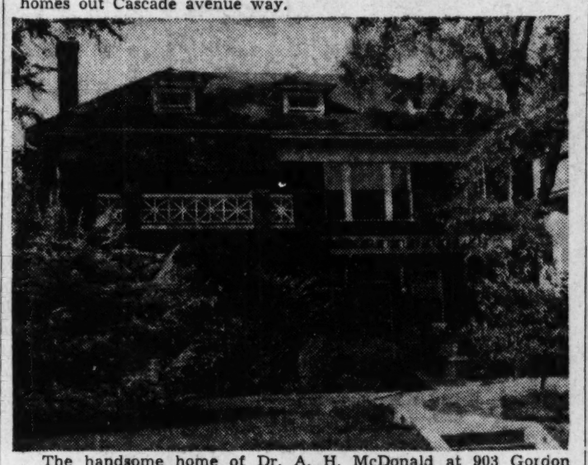

With its practically 400 live, wide-awake businessmen, the West End Businessmen's Association is not only an asset to West End, but it is one of the big elements in progress for the entire community.

RALLY DAY TODAY.

The Berean Bible class of the West End Baptist church will hold its rally day today, with a "Swan Song" for retiring officers. L. P. (Pete) Wilson is the regular teacher. A special musical program has been arranged.

One of the pretty new homes in Cascade Heights, on Boulevard Granade. The lot, one of good size, was recently sold to Mr. and Mrs. Mayer Schaine by George L. Wilson, selling agent, and the home, representing around $6,000, has just been completed by them and they have moved into it. It is typical of a number of pretty homes out Cascade avenue way.

The handsome home of Dr. A. H. McDonald at 903 Gordon street. Dr. McDonald has been one of the live druggists in West End for 28 years, being president of Medlock Pharmacy, Inc.

One of the pretty homes recently completed for Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Reid on Belvedere avenue, Cascade Heights, in the $8,000 to $9,000 class price. The lot, 100x200, was sold a short time ago to them by George L. Wilson, selling agent.

riums through the co-operation of the Board of Education and the WPA. During recent months some $100,000 have been spent for repairs and additions.

Children reported to Adair, Harris, Peeples, Ragsdale, Stanton and Sylvan Hills to find that their rooms were "spick and span" and that the entire building had been redecorated inside and out and extensive repairs had been made on the building and grounds.

At present West End has two members of the board of lady visitors—Mrs. J. L. Richardson, wife of the city clerk, who has served in that capacity for seven years, and Mrs. T. Ralph Grimes, wife of Deputy Sheriff Ralph Grimes.

Fellowship Class To Give Minstrel

The Fellowship Bible Class of West End Baptist church will present a minstrel show on the night of September 29, at the East Point auditorium, East Point.

This class presented this minstrel at the Joe Brown High school in West End with great success. All those in West End who have requeste dthe class to repeat the minstrel, are invited to the East Point presentation.

The minstrel is presented, not with the idea of making money, but for the fun, fellowship and pleasure the cast of 70 members derive from the show. Recently the class, which is one of the oldest classes in West End church, changed from strictly a men's class to the co-ed system. The attendance was almost doubled immediately. Plans are now under way for the annual banquet of the class. Announcement of this important event will be made shortly by the committee in charge.

Walter R. Thomas, past president of the Atlanta B. Y. P. U. Association, has taught the class for the past 15 years. The officers of the class are: John S. Holmes, president; Fred Risse, Griffin Brown, Wallace Snyder, vice presidents; Miss Clyde Thomas, secretary; B. T. Hardin, treasurer; Anne Galloway, pianist, and Clyde Verlander, chorister.

BIG CORPORATIONS COME TO WEST END

They have come into West End not only because of the prospect of the patronage of a large group of citizens, but because railroad service is available. Three railroads—the Central of Georgia, the Atlanta and West Point and the Southern—pass through, making freight and transportation handy and available.

Among some of the larger concerns represented by West End branches, and located so near to each other, are the A. & P. Tea Company, Rogers, the Western Electric Company, Sears & Roebuck, American Bakeries Company, Woolworth, Georgia Power Company, Sinclair Oil Company, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Firestone Tire Company, Lane Drug Stores, Jacobs Pharmacy, Singer Sewing Machine Company, First National Bank, Gulf Oil Company, Austin-Western Road Machinery Company, H. J. Heinz & Company, General Electric, Candler warehouses, Montgomery-Ward, Georgia Milk Producers' Federation and many others.

MUSICAL AT HOSPITAL.

Cascade Chapter, O. E. S., presented a musical program recently at Hospital No. 48 for the patients. Mrs. Hugh Schneider presided and was assisted by Mrs. J. P. Booth. Mrs. James A. Aldredge, worthy matron of the chapter, and Mrs. H. Grady Andrews, co-chairman of the hospital committee, made short talks.

WEST END BOASTS LIVE WEEKLY PAPER

West End boasts a live community weekly paper—the Times—serving southwest Atlanta, which is now nearing its second year of service. This paper is under the management of H. W. Perkins, with H. L. Williams as news editor. The West End Times is strictly a community newspaper, forwarding the cultural, educational, religious, and civic interests of the section. The paper is widely read by residents of West End and surrounding communities, and has a splendid circulation.

It's a great temptation to a man to put up a front when he has an army behind him.

When you consider buying your home
why not think first of its location? West End has the highest percentage of home owners of any section in Atlanta. Home owners are the best people of any community, therefore you will make no mistake in making your home among us. You will find West End a place of friendliness and good neighbors. You are invited to visit Cascade Heights, Beecher Hills and Cascade Manor as you look West End over. There will be no obligation to buy. It will be a pleasure to show you around.

Since 1871, when Atlanta's population was 22,000 and the city's first horse-drawn street railway was built out Peters street from where Whitehall crossed the downtown railroad tracks, and was called the West End line—the Georgia Power Company and its predecessors have had an active interest in this progressive section of Atlanta.
Today, with modern electric street cars, buses and trackless trolleys transporting tens of thousands daily, with homes and business throughout the West End area enjoying the many benefits of electric service, with an up-to-date store and office an integral part of the Community—our interest in West End is at its highest point in history, and growing all the time.

Interesting Spot Is Firefighters' Training School

The Georgia State Fire College, a training school for Atlanta firemen, which also provides training to firemen in adjoining states, is one of the interesting spots of West End.

A training tower seven stories high, with windows at each story, was built adjoining the fire station only a few years ago, and four years ago under the leadership of Fire Chief O. J. Parker, the State Fire College was organized.

Twice each year Atlanta firemen take a course of training in hoisting ladders, in bringing bodies down the ladder, in the use of fire nets, and many other necessary things that require quick thinking and quick action at the scene of a fire.

In addition to training the Atlanta firemen, once each year in May firemen are invited to come in and participate in the exercises from Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, South Carolina or any other nearby state. During the four years of the courses in instruction being provided at the training college, between 600 and 800 firemen from other states have been trained in the art of fire fighting. Captain P. C. Bouck is stationed at No. 7 and is assigned and in charge of the training of firemen.

Incidentally it might be stated that also at No. 7 station all repair and remodeling work of Atlanta fire equipment is done. Tom Medlin, master mechanic, is in charge of this department, and has recently completed a new pumper, built entirely by the workers in the fire department.

Advantages Are Cited to Farmers Who Wish to Modernize for Winter

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24.—With heavy harvesting out of the way, and revenues from crops now being realized, the American farmer is in a more advantageous position than any other class of property owners to undertake winter modernization and repair of his home and farm buildings, according to Frank Carnahan, secretary of the National Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, which is fostering a nation-wide "modernize for winter" campaign.

Not only has the farmer the time in which to do the work, and his accumulated profits with which to partially, at least, finance it, but he also has a two-fold plan of financial assistance under the terms of the recently revised national housing act, Carnahan pointed out.

The Federal Housing Administration recently had the law amended to not only permit farmers to borrow short-term money under Title I of the national housing act, for the purposes of property improvements and construction of new buildings, but also to allow him to obtain up to 20-year loans under Title II to construct or repair the farm home and other buildings. If the property meets FHA standards and an amount equal to at least 15 per cent of the loan is used to construct or repair the farm home or other buildings, an FHA-insured mortgage may be used to replace present burdensome obligations.

Haven of Rest Is Ideal 'Home For Old Women'

"The Home for Old Women" is an established institution in West End. It is located in a handsome home at 891 West End avenue. In this well-suited home, which is the pride of West End people, about 100 old ladies are spending the "eventide" of their lives—and they are all well cared for and happy.

As a matter of fact, some few years ago the name "Eventide" was suggested as a new name for the home, but it had been so well and so long known by the name of "Home for Old Women," it was decided not to change the name.

Miss D. Haralson is the superintendent, and assisting her are house physicians, resident nurses and attendant maids. Every facility for affording peace, comfort and happiness is provided for the dear old ladies that make up the guests in this home. It is provided with radios and reading rooms and many other conveniences. The home is supported by the Community Chest, the city of Atlanta and occasionally donations are made from individuals. It has no endowment.

At 6 o'clock each evening vesper services are held and all the ladies take part. Those who are sick or unable to attend, send down their favorite selections of Scripture to be read. From time to time throughout the week many young people from various church circles visit the home and entertain the old ladies, and shower upon them fruits and flowers and other things.

Miss Haralson, speaking of the guests of the home, says:

"Our ladies remind me of girls at college. They have their intimate friends, with whom they enjoy congenial work and play, and all try to co-operate and show consideration for each other and a sincere desire to share both joys and sorrows, visiting the sick in the hospital and offering little attentions to them. Often as I go by a sick bed, I will find a little bouquet of flowers, or a card or note on the table, expressing a desire that the patient may soon be well."

LEGIONNAIRES TO MEET

Sons of the Legionnaires Post No. 147 will mobilize Tuesday night at the dugout on Ashby street to participate in the fall maneuvers. Commander Dr. L. M. Burrow, of the squadron, requests that sons and daughters of all ex-service men feel free to attend. Parents are especially invited.

MOVES TO NEW HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Elsner and family, formerly of 515 Lee street, are now residing at their new residence at 415 Ashby street.

"The Wren's Nest," Home of Uncle Remus

Home of the beloved story writer, Joel Chandler Harris, where he lived while writing "Br'er Rabbit" stories, at 1050 Gordon street in West End.

Every man, woman and child in West End is familiar with "The Wren's Nest." It is the home where Joel Chandler Harris, famous writer of "Br'er Rabbit" stories and verses, lived for many years until his death some 31 years ago. It is located at 1050 Gordon street, and since his death has been preserved and maintained by the Uncle Remus Memorial Association.

Thousands of visitors from all sections of the country constantly come from year to year to pay tribute to this beloved citizen of West End. It is one of the historical and greatly beloved spots not only in West End, but in the south. The home is cared for by Mrs. Arthur Hale, official hostess. In its various rooms are exhibited a bust of Mr. Harris, paintings and pictures and books of many kinds. In addition, many small trinkets and keepsakes of Mr. Harris are also exhibited—a Bible belonging to his mother, the Testament she gave him, his watch chain, his fountain pen, and the lucky left hind foot of a rabbit, the latter having been one of his prized possessions.

GROWING WITH WEST END

NEW TWO-STORY ADDITION TO ONE OF THE SOUTH'S LEADING CAKE BAKERIES

The Dortch Baking Company has just completed the new two-story building pictured above at 499 W. Whitehall St., S. W., which adjoins their building at 505 W. Whitehall St., S. W. The ground floor of the new structure is occupied by offices and the shipping department, the second floor will add more than 4,000 square feet of floor space to their manufacturing departments. In addition to the new building, they have recently purchased the property facing 120 feet on Park St., S. W., and which adjoins their W. Whitehall St. property at the rear. The bakery also shows their confidence in West End's future growth in purchasing property at 509 W. Whitehall St., S. W., which adjoins the plant on the south.

Starting from a humble beginning on Murphy Ave., near Fort McPherson in 1928, the company has continued to grow, until today their products are sold throughout the southeast. Four years ago a branch plant was established in Birmingham, which has grown steadily. However, Atlanta remains headquarters. About one hundred and twenty-five persons find employment in the company's plants, in addition to the many distributors throughout the south. The products manufactured include a large variety of cakes and cookies, which are sold by leading food dealers throughout the section they serve. (Adv.)

Sell for less money, by bringing the merchandise DIRECT FROM THE FACTORY to the consumer—thus reducing expense to the absolute scientific minimum. But, Maintain the Quality.

Sell for less by BUYING FOR LESS. Buy for less through the instrumentality of centralized buying and cash buying. But, Maintain the Quality.

Attractive Parks And Playgrounds Dotting West End

The people of West End are proud of their many parks and playgrounds. Something like 40 acres are devoted to recreation grounds for grown-ups and children with Mozley park perhaps the largest of any. In addition to the parks there is the nearby John A. White and the new Charles R. Adams parks, all under the supervision of George Simons.

In Mozley park, with its 32 acres, is a beautiful clubhouse, swimming pool, barbecue pits, baseball and tennis grounds. Howell park, at Gordon and Peeples street, consists of about two blocks. Dargan park, at Lucile and Dargan place, consists of two blocks. Adair park covers four acres. It is near Stewart avenue, but is visited by many living in distant sections of the West End area. The Charles R. Adams park, adjoining Cascade Heights, is the newest of West End parks. Through the aid of the federal government a large swimming pool has been built, tennis and baseball grounds added, a handsome clubhouse erected, where the Garden Club holds its meetings. It is also a branch of the Carnegie library.

INJURY JINX STRIKES; 5 MISHAPS IN 5 DAYS

After suffering five accidents in five days, Allen Drew, of Farmington, N. H., is wondering when his injury jinx will stop.

First he sprained his ankle but continued working only to have a large tank crush his foot. He suffered further injuries when his car crashed into a tree. At home a window fell on his neck. Shortly after he returned to work an electrical discharge from a testing machine knocked him into a five-foot pit.

CLUBS FOR WOMEN AIDING WEST END

West End Club Formed in 1923; Civic Club Organized in 1924.

The women of West End, both in clubs and as individuals, have done much to bring growth and prosperity, health and happiness, to their community.

In West End there are several strong women's organizations. Among the oldest, perhaps, is the West End Woman's Club, which was organized in June, 1923. The motto of the club is "To uplift and help others." The slogan is "Each for the other and all for the club."

Those who were instrumental in its organization, and who have been and are now active in its work, declared at its formation that the object of the club was to create and maintain an organized center of thought and activity among the women of West End and to aid in the promotion of their mutual interests, in the advancement of education, philanthropy and general cultural and civic welfare, and to prvide a place of meeting for their comfort and convenience. All of this they are achieving.

The club has a beautiful clubhouse on Cascade avenue. The lot upon which it is built having been donated by Mr .and Mrs. I. N. Ragsdale in 1924, the building being finished in 1927.

West End Civic Club.

The Civic Club of West End, located at 1115 Gordon, was organized and federated April, 1924. It has a membership of around 250. This club maintains a number of divisions that have been outstanding in their work for the community, both in West End and throughout the city. One of its many achievements has been the raising of money for the Tallulah Falls School. It holds each year a spring flower show which attracts thousands and has become an annual and semi-annual event. It has a junior division which has accomplished much in co-operation with the parent club. In the past, among some of the outstanding things it has accomplished, aside from its help to the Tallulah School, is its needlework guild, its work for the blind, forget-me-not and poppy sales, its work in the community chest for hospital and Red Cross.

Garden Clubs.

Throughout the section of West End, Oakland City, Adair Park, Cascade Heights, Sylvan Hills and other sections in and around the area, there are a large number of garden clubs. The first club was organized about 11 years ago and a total of about 10 clubs is now in existence, and each club has vied with the other in doing things that have added beauty and prestige to their section.

All in all, the women of West End have been wonderfully cooperative with the various men's clubs and organizations in striving for the welfare and betterment of their community.

WATCH PRESENTED TO CLUB SECRETARY

That was quite a surprise party that visited Emory hospital on Monday night, September 19, beyond 11 o'clock, to present to W. A. Moreland a handsomely engraved gold watch as a gift from the West End Businessmen's Association. The committee, consisting of George Wilson, Dr. Charles R. Adams, R. S. Lowrance and Rev. H. H. Dillard found Mr. Moreland, who had just been reelected secretary of the association, in bed sound asleep. He had gone to the hospital for an operation on Tuesday, the next day—a minor operation, however, and consequently Mr. Moreland was able to receive company even that late at night. Mr. Moreland was very much astonished to see this group of friends coming into his room, nearing midnight, and awakening him. He seemed at a loss to understand the object of their visit, but when President George Wilson, of the association, unwrapped and presented to him the handsome watch, engraved "For faithful service," he was almost overcome with astonishment and gratitude.

Mr. Moreland has been the very competent secretary of the association for four years, and has been a great factor in building the West End Association to its present strength and prestige. He is also the secretary of the Park Street Methodist church.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR PRESTON W. C. T. U.

The Preston West End W. C. T. U. held its September meeting last Tuesday, Mrs. J. S. Price presiding. "Love," taken from John 3:16, was the devotional theme.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. J. S. Price; vice president, Mrs. Susie Barrett; treasurer, Mrs. O. A. Sharpless; recording secretary, Mrs. J. B. Davis; corresponding secretary, Mrs. O. T. Camp. Beginning in October, the meetings will be held at the Park Street Methodist church.

Foreign Co-ops To Be Discussed In Rohde Talk

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Rohde, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, will discuss the Scandinavian co-operative movement at a meeting sponsored by the fifth district of the Georgia Education Association at 8 o'clock Saturday night, October 8, at the city auditorium.

A national and international figure, Mrs. Rohde has spoken in Atlanta on previous occasions. She addressed the annual convention of the Georgia Education Association here last spring.

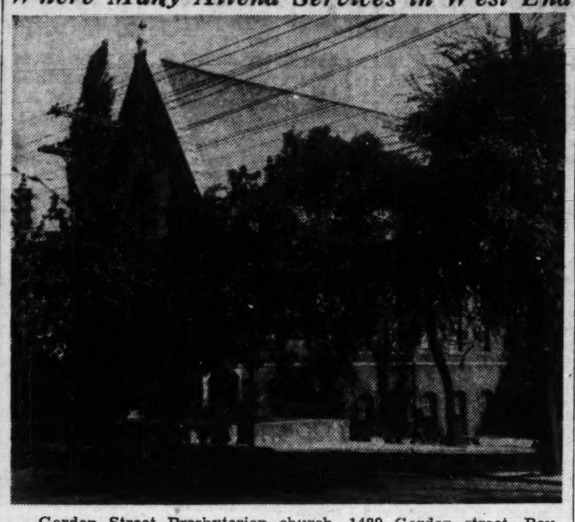

Mrs. Rohde is a world-traveler, and her experience in England, Egypt, the West Indies, and her services as congresswoman from Florida and minister to Denmark have given her a grasp of economic conditions in many countries.

General admittance will be 50 cents. Tickets will be on sale at the Cable Piano Company and Jacobs Drug Store at the corner of Marietta and Whitehall streets. Teachers may secure tickets for the lecture at the G. E. A. office, 403 Walton building.

WEST END PEOPLE ARE CHURCHGOERS

Practically All Denominations Represented in Many Houses of Worship.

West End is known for its many churches. This entire southwest section of the city is dotted with houses of worship of all denominations. That they are well attended, one needs only to observe the great outpouring of Sunday school children and the grown-ups who can be seen each Sabbath morning on their way to services.

Many of the ministers of West End churches are outstanding among Atlanta pastors and religious leaders in church work. West End pastors are not only always ready, but unhesitatingly co-operate with ministers and churches located in other sections in the city, and contribute much to the cultural as well as the spiritual life of the community.

The total number of church-going people in the West End section, running into many, many thousands, no doubt exceeds in proportion to population any other particular portion of the city.

Throughout the entire West End section, in these churches, there are many young people's societies. These young folk take great interest in sponsoring charitable programs and other interesting features of church work. Practically all denominations are represented—Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Catholic, the Church of Christ, and many others.

Among some of the prominent churches in the section might be mentioned:

Park Street Methodist, corner of Park and Lee streets. Rev. Irby Henderson is the pastor.

Cavalry Methodist, at 1471 Gordon street, Dr. Walt Holcomb, pastor.

Gordon Street Baptist, at Lucile and Gordon, Rev. T. F. Harvey, pastor.

An industrial bureau, completely divorced from municipal administration, and designed to attract new industries to the city of Montreal is being advocated by Montreal businessmen.

REALTY SALESMEN NOT 'EMPLOYES'

Social Security Act Does Not Include This Class for Tax Purposes.

The Treasury Department, in two test cases brought before it by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, has ruled that salesmen of real estate companies in the cases presented are not "employes" for purposes of the taxes imposed under the federal social security act.

The rulings were handed down in the case of Walter W. Rose Investment Company, of Orlando, Fla., and in the case of the Whitcomb and Keller Mortgage Company, of South Bend, Ind. In each case it was held that the contract, together with the operating arrangement between the salesman and the broker, establishes the status of the salesman working for the company as that of an independent contractor. Salesmen of the firms in question are compensated by sharing in the commission collected.

The rulings are of prime importance because they establish as outside the requirement of social security taxation the salesmen of any real estate company operating under substantially the same broker-salesman conditions as the companies in question.

It is highly important for all real estate firms to understand that the exemption established is not a blanket exemption of all real estate salesmen working on a commission basis, the association points out through George P. Ellis, its comptroller. "The ruling is on a type of contract and operating arrangement between a real estate office and its salesmen which creates an independent contractor relationship rather than an employer-employe relationship. It furnishes a plan which, if followed by other offices, will enable them to qualify for a like classification," Mr. Ellis states.

NEW CONCEPT OF WAR

In the 20 years since the World War ended there have been many changes in ideas. The idea of war itself has changed. No longer is it possible to think of a war in terms of men, guns, ammunition, and supplies. Indeed, today the first thought of war is that of bombarded civilian populations.

It is a new concept which has given a new caution to the diplomats of today and a new willingness to sacrifice the cost, known as prestige, to avoid war.

The very strongest argument against war is a memory.

On the sunny slopes of the hills beyond the village of Chateau-Thierry, in France, stands a towering monument to the American boys who died on those same slopes. Not many miles away are the hills and forests of Belleau Woods. In neat, orderly rows, with white duplicate crosses, sleep the American boys who died there. Atop one of the hills is the shattered ruin of an old building which was one of the objectives. In the woods are a few old trenches more than half filled and grass grown.

Now comes the immediate threat of another war and we are not done counting the cost of the last. The memory of the last war is so keen that today those responsible for deciding war or peace must pause before the awful possibility, not solely of the possible war itself, but of what lies beyond that war.

The World War was justified in the name of democracy. There was a great remaking of maps. Yet out of that war came the two most powerful totalitarian states the world has known in modern times. In them the last vestiges of democracy have been wiped out. There were some democratic methods and some democratic spirit in the nations which the emperors ruled before 1914. In the totalitarian states today there is none.

That war saw the British empire changed from the old idea and concept of empire into a world-wide association of dominions and posessions who, themselves, still are busy counting the cost of the last war. Canada, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, and the smaller units of the great empire, think now in terms of what a new war would mean to them. They admittedly are not the cohesive force they were in 1914. Their peoples, like every other people in the world, are seeking to estimate all future European quarrels in terms of themselves and their own welfare.

America, too, is trying to estimate that probable struggle in terms of what it means to the people of America.

It is more than passing strange that Adolf Hitler, who himself was a soldier, should be the one man apparently eager to embroil the world in another war. In 1914 most of the nations of the world believed, aside from their economic commitments, that there was something definitely dangerous in what we then called the "Kultur" of the German people. That mental qualification remains today. Germany has chosen between guns and butter. Again there is forced a choice between two philosophies of government.

No one knows the answer. No one knows the proper course.

There are worse things than war. That is no argument in favor of entering one but it is something about which to think. It is not too trite to say there are worse things than dying in war. It is possible, the "Kultur" of the totalitarian states, if it is spread over the world, would be a worse thing than war. No one knows the answer.

All we do know is that the old concept of national dignity and prestige is not worth as much as we thought in 1914; that we are not done counting the cost of the last war; that a terrible responsibility weighs upon those who must decide to plunge a nation into war; that surviving the last war are millions of people in all nations who know that it was a terrible and completely futile experience; that we do not think of war any more as a "front" but we think of it in terms of civilian populations bombed and gassed; that we know it to be a ghastly horror which would destroy many governments and many people.

Knowing that little about it, it is possible to understand why the world is willing to take much from the man in Berchtesgaden. But there again no one knows.

The mills of the gods keep grinding and none may lift the lid of the hopper to see within. There is just no telling what nations or what people will be grist in the mill as troops march and guns roll toward that dark day when war is to come again.

PUBLIC CONFIDENCE

On three separate days there recently appeared in print three separate items.

The first was in a syndicated Washington political column. Secretary Ickes was asked if he would accept an invitation to speak in a near-by city in favor of a sewage disposal plant advocated there. Grinning, Ickes replied:

"No, I've decided not to speak. You see it might be construed as an interference in local affairs and I believe that states and municipalities ought to have the untrammeled right to dispose of their sewage as they see fit."

The second was an Associated Press report from Washington. Mr. Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator, was quoted as saying he would request a deficiency appropriation early next year. "The $350,000 appropriated by the last congress will establish only three or four industrial committees to determine minimum wages."

The third was also a press report. Mr. Harry Hopkins, reflecting the current attitude said:

"The public is demanding more and more from its government and ought to elect candidates who will give it to them."

These three quotations illustrate much that is pertinent to current affairs in government. They illustrate, too, why many people object, not to President Roosevelt himself, but to the leadership about him. Mr. Ickes' statement was nauseating and smart alecky. The people of the near-by city who were attempting to make a better and more healthy city by obtaining an adequate sewage disposal plant know Mr. Ickes department has dumped millions into politics. That city of American people will not appreciate the presence in the administration of a man who speaks on a serious subject in what patently is an unworthy manner. It was not only smart alecky, it was in extreme bad taste.

There has been a grave danger that in the criticism of President Roosevelt even fair minded people might have their minds directed away from the truth.

The truth is that few, if any, presidents in the history of America have done more constructive jobs for the nation than Mr. Roosevelt.

The people really have not forgot how he lifted the nation out of the depths of economic despondency in 1933. They have not forgot the extremely constructive benefits of a civilian conservation corps, the maritime commission, and the securities and exchange commission. The people remember unemployment benefits and old age insurance measures which, while not perfected, are steps toward social security. The people remember slum clearance and better housing and rural electrification which present to the rural communities some of the comforts long enjoyed in the cities. The people know the national youth administration has saved thousands of American boys and girls from economic despair.

The people do not want to forget those things but many of the leaders about Mr. Roosevelt have treated serious problems of the American people facetiously, politically, and in a manner which creates animosity and builds up ill will towards the administration.

It is obvious the American people are alarmed about government spending. They will not be reassured by Mr. Harry Hopkins, who admits the public is demanding more and more from the government and who advocates electing candidates who will themselves advocate greater spending and no economy of government.

Mr. Elmer F. Andrews, the wage-hour administrator, is a capable and competent man who must know that he frightens the people of America when he declares the $350,000 appropriated by the last congress not only will be insufficient to set up the wage and hour administration but actually will pay for the organization of only three or four committees. Those people who are alarmed about government spending will not be reassured to learn that it will cost about $100,000 merely to set up and organize a committee to determine minimum wages for each industry.

These three items are shown only as exhibits which may explain some of the objections encountered by administration measures.

They also may explain why there is opposition to some of the leadership which Mr. Roosevelt has summoned to Washington. These items are selected, not because of any special significance beyond that contained in dozens of similar items appearing in the press, but merely to illustrate the general idea.

THE "MOOCHING" EVIL

To find a criminal court judge condones even the most simple phase of police "mooching" in this day is amazing—and something that his superiors should quickly find occasion to rebuke.

Atlanta has been fortunate in being able to eliminate this practice, apparently entirely, yet it would seem such is not the case in Chicago. In that city a citizen accused of taking fruit from an outside display stand of a grocer was haled before Judge Joseph B. Hermes, who ordered that he pay to the grocer one half of a cent for the plum he had "lifted," plus four and one-half cents. This last was "to remind you that only policemen can take fruit free."

This may appear to many a minor incident, unworthy of notice, and that any "mooching" from a grocer's stand would by the same token be practically unnoticeable. Yet it was testified in Atlanta, in an investigation several years ago, that this police practice cost shopkeepers—at best hard-pressed to make ends meet—a considerable sum each year when they were regularly victimized by the few patrolmen who demanded free goods.

If this "mooching" in Chicago is common practice, it may be safely assumed that vicious grafting will be found among the officers who so far forget their public duty and oath of law enforcement as to stoop to petty thievery.

"Kind sir," said the Bohemian fugitive, "will you help me by caching a Czech?"

A typhoon and a tycoon are not necessarily the same. The latter is a big wind only when recounting the secrets of his great success.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

O'CONNOR DEFEAT WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—For the White house circle, as one member delightedly remarked, finishing the purgeless purge by beating Representative John J. O'Connor was "like Harvard losing the whole preliminary schedule, but winning the Yale game."

The fractiousness of the purge-embittered senate will not be diminished by the White House victory in the sixteenth New York district. But the bumbling chairman of the rules committee was not only the most powerful single individual whom the White House attacked. He was also the most hated. Long ago the White House circle promised itself the pleasure of dancing on his grave, and now his political grave is dug, and he is in it.

PRACTICAL PURGERS Too much national significance should not be given the O'Connor defeat. It apparently assures the President of the subservience of the most powerful committee in the house. But, for one thing, the defeat was procured by a campaign on a low political level. The candidates themselves talked very big about "loyalty to the President" and "White House dictatorship." Yet, when you listened to the street corner speakers, you discovered that the real issues were whether John O'Connor lived in the sixteenth New York district or in Bay Shore, Long Island, and whether the fact that his opponent got a wooden leg in the World War entitled him to sit among the lawmakers. The real reason for John O'Connor's misfortune is that, in a primary, it takes an organization to beat an organization. No doubt the issue of "interference" counted for something in Georgia and Maryland, but it did not count for a tenth as much as the fact that Senators George and Tydings had the county courthouse gangs behind them. In John O'Connor's district, the purge committee arranged to put the local equipment of the county courthouse gangs behind their candidate, James P. Fay.

Mayor F. H. La Guardia was mobilized, and lent his secretary, James Kieran, and his close political adviser, Major William J. Walsh, to the Fay campaign. Ed Flynn, Sartap of the Bronx, was ordered to the front by the President himself. Edward V. Loughlin, one of the district leaders, was persuaded (by what inducements it is not recorded) to come out publicly for Fay. And the bailiwick of O'Connor's strongest supporter, District Leader Mike Cruise, was invaded by Cruise's own nephew, Jerry, a New Deal henchman.

Moreover, for the first time in the purge, the entire campaign was intelligently and ably co-ordinated. Instead of the powers of king's messengers, the White House purgers were given absolute carte blanche. They set up headquarters in New York, and they acted as a clearing house for all the interests involved, making sure Jerry Cruise had what he needed to convince his uncle's precinct captains, reconciling the differences between the Flynn and La Guardia crowds, and in general doing an extremely shrewd job of practical politics. Perhaps the most interesting result of the O'Connor defeat is its proof that the urgers can be practical politicians if they are allowed to.

OH, WEEP FOR SIMPSON Nobody should feel sorry for John O'Connor, a statesman whose virtues have been vastly exaggerated by the President's enemies, who enjoyed not only the official indorsement of Tammany Hall, but also the lavish backing of certain large New York bankers. The man who needs sympathy is Kenneth Simpson, New York Republican leader, who is now saddled with the unsavory O'Connor as his party's congressional candidate.

The crass, numbskull stupidity of the Old Guard Republicans has rarely been better demonstrated than by their choice of O'Connor, and their repudiation of Kenneth Simpson. Simpson argued very sensibly that a damaged Tammany product would not be a useful recruit. Therefore, he put Allen Dulles, a decent, moderate, thoroughly well-informed fellow, into the field the moment O'Connor proclaimed for the Republican as well as the Democratic nomination.

Kenneth Simpson is no raging red. He is a solid, sensible conservative. And he has the wisdom to see that his party cannot win elections with the same spavined, broken-winded old hacks, wheezing denunciations of the President and "regimentation." He wants new faces. Unfortunately, the hacks and the President-haters are too strong for him in some areas of the party organization. They think they have a vested interest in the Republican party, and they would rather hang on and see the party die than let go and see it win. That is why Kenneth Simpson was repudiated in the sixteenth New York.

By EARLE HOLDEN,
Guest Conductor.

This business of being guest column conductor is not all that it's cracked up to be. It's easy for the regular editor of the column. All that he has to do is to pack his bag and set forth on a two-weeks' jaunt, leaving his task and work in the hands of his friends.

So we put the copy paper in the typewriter and get set to do a column. But what kind of a column? What shall we talk about? What would the editor desire? Any reader can see that by this time we are down to the second paragraph and even haven't started and we were cautioned to hold the copy down to two pages. But every little bit helps.

We will take off the coat, perhaps that will help us to concentrate properly, since all newspapermen we have observed did their best writing with their coats off. There, that's better. We have more arm freedom and now we really will get down to brass tacks in writing one of the best guest columns that has ever been published in a paper. Which leads us down to the third paragraph. We're getting along just fine.

Brain Fog.

Now, if we can just control our thoughts and get them synchronized perhaps we will be able to hunt and pick the first word on the keyboard which will get our column off in fine style. Maybe it would be best to concentrate a little more on the subject of which we are going to write about. But what was the subject? Our brain seems somewhat fogged. After all it is quite an honor to be selected to write a guest column and we want to make this one stand out. Maybe we will be able to do better than the other fellows who will also write columns. And just look, here we have dashed off another paragraph, which is rapidly filling the space allotted to us. This column writing business is great fun.

Let's see. We had an idea then. Was it about the war? No, that wasn't it. There's too much war talk already. Maybe if we light up a cigaret that will help. We have noticed that newspapermen do their best writing when they are smoking. Ah, that's better. Let us inhale a couple of good puffs from the ciggie and then we will be able to really go to town. Let's see. What about politics, that always makes a good subject for a column writer. No, the election is over and we'll leave any comment along those lines to the regular editors. Politics are just everyday stuff and we want this column to be outstanding, as we said in the beginning. Let's check up and see how much space we have left. Having jotted down another paragraph we must be getting along just swell.

Here We Get Going.

We could write something of human interest. But what could it be? Something along those lines hight really fit better a column of this kind. Perhaps if we opened our collar we could breathe better. We have seen newspapermen writing their copy with their shirt collar wide open. There, that's better. Shirt sleeves, cigaret in our mouth, collar opened, now we feel more like a newspaperman ought to feel. Boy, will this be a column, and how! Now we're honestly going to get started and here goes.

Why don't those thoughts in our brain get settled down. Around and around they go and where they are going to stop nobody knows, not even us who are supposed to do the column today. And if that fog would just let up perhaps it would give the old brain a chance to function. How does Ralph Jones find the ideas for his columns? He has to do one every day and here we have been assigned the task of doing only this one. Boy, it must be great to be a columnist, and be able to say anything about anybody at any time. That gives us an idea, have we any enemies we could talk about? No, that would be bad business. Let's see, maybe if we rolled our shirt sleeves up we could feel more comfortable and then really get started. Up goes the sleeves and my goodness that feels swell. We have seen newspapermen with thir sleeves rolled up. Now we are going to get going in a big way. War, politics, human interest, sports, the President, look at all the topics of the day that we could discuss is this column. Didn't Ralph tell us to write about anything that comes to our mind. If only those thoughts would settle in one place in the brain, we believe that we would really have something. And just look how far we have progressed. Is this a column or isn't it?

Maybe we could think better if we had a snack to eat. We have seen newspapermen take time off for a snack. Well, so long, folks, we'll start to write our guest column after we have slipped out and had our snack. Then we know that we will be able to get down to brass tacks. Boy, those column writers sure have it easy, Oh, yes!

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

"Cupid had a sad day Wednesday if he spent any of his time around the superior court, for there were four matrimonial tangles spread upon the records of the court."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Thursday, September 25, 1888:

"The Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons of the State of New York, Hon. Frank R. Lawrence, has appointed Right Worshipful Wm. Abram Love, of Atlanta, the representative of the Grand Lodge of New York near the Grand Lodge of Georgia."

Real Indian Ware.

Uncle Sam is laying plans for an Indian handicraft shop where purchasers can be sure they're getting the real thing, not a machine-made copy.

Secretary Ickes is providing sales and exhibit room in the new Department of Interior building. A private, non-profit making organization will pay for decorating the rooms and will sponsor the sale of Indian wear.

Indian goods are to be displayed against a background modeled on an old Spanish mission at Cocospera, in old Mexico. Indian murals will decorate the walls.

One Word More

By RALPH McGILL.

Harry Lee And His Very Good Luck Just the other day there was a luncheon. During the course of it, Harry Lee very mildly said something about his book.

"What book?" I asked.

"My book," he said. "It is coming out in the next few days."

Well, it did come out. And having received from Harry Lee an advance copy, I have read it. It is to appear on the shelves of the nation's book stores this week. It will have, I am sure, a very good reception for the simple reason the book merits it.

I read it down in the basement bomb-proof room with only the cocker spaniel, Trammel, for company. What is more, I read it in one sitting.

I found myself taking sides in the book, becoming angry at this character and, after a while, a bit angry at Harry Lee. He had much of himself in the book and I found myself taking a paternalistic attitude. I wanted to quit and go up and ring up Harry Lee on the telephone and say, "Look, here, really now, you ought to quit going with a girl like 'Gena.' She is a very dumb, stupid sort of girl and you really are acting very immature in this matter. It will distress your mother no end. Let me speak to her."

This proved, of course, that Harry Lee had drawn his characters so well they are not flat in the papers but come out of them, so to speak. I got frightfully annoyed with some of the people in the book. This proves, of course, only that your reporter is getting set in his ways and probably is, at times at least, an old curmudgeon.

Still, and at that, the young man in the book came very near marrying Gena. She was awfully well-drawn, this girl Gena. I had to remind myself now and then it actually was not Harry Lee because he is a fine young artist with a most delightful wife and baby. He wasn't about to marry Gena at all. At any rate, I found myself wanting to shake a few shoulders and to argue about things they did. Which proved to me the characters were not flat in the pages.

It Is Written In, and About Our Town The characters in this book are produced in Atlanta and are, of course, fictionized characters. It demonstrates, does this book, something which the late Thomas Wolfe wrote in his little book, "The Story of a Novel." Someone had asked Thomas Wolfe where was the best place in which to write a novel. The question was asked by one who felt he had a novel thumping behind his brisket and needed only to get to England or France and write it.

Thomas Wolfe said the best place in which to write a novel was Grand Rapids, Mich., or Peoria or just any place where there was room to put a typewriter or a tablet of paper and a chair. There is no best place to write a novel. Not having written one, I don't know, but I know rather well people who have and there is quite a lot of sweat in any novel.

Anyhow, Harry Lee, who has a job and a wife and a baby, didn't need southern France or England in which to write his novel. He wrote it in Atlanta and he took incidents and events and experience of his life in Atlanta and made them into a novel. A large and successful publishing house has brought it out. It will sell well and Harry Lee will make enough from it to be secure enough to go ahead with his work, which is writing.

He already has another novel started. This first one required three years of effort. The next one is sure to be a better novel because he has the touch and will be a better craftsman after this first novel.

When I had read the book I told myself: "Now, look here, you think about it. Just because you like him and just because his mamma is one of your favorite people, don't let that influence your judgment. But, that sort of argument wasn't at all necessary because the characters had been alive of their own accord. That is the test.

It Is Called 'Fox in the Cloak.' The novel is called "Fox in the Cloak." You remember the Spartan youth who hid a fox in his cloak. It did rather serious damage to him. The urge to paint was the fox in the cloak of the young man in Harry Lee's novel.

Another thing I liked about the novel was the absolute absence of anything regarding "the situation." Not once did he get off into a discourse on economics. I know the importance of economics and recognize it as the impelling force of most things. Now and then, though, I get tremendously tired of stories of involved economical disputes and "the situation."

He had the economic story running as one of the strongest threads in his story. He did it strongly. It colored his whole story and life. Yet not once did he drag it out by the ears and make it "the situation."

It is more effective, thereby, and the story is better. I suspect it is possible to make a more effective complaint regarding economics and working conditions by this type story then by one of the "proletariat" novels.

I liked the book. A great many people are going to like it. And there will be, I imagine, a demand for Harry Lee's writings. All of which are done in Atlanta and not in France or England or sunny Italy.

Versailles in Germany.

On a lovely island in the Chimsee, in Germany, stands one of the most amazing palaces in Europe—an almost identical reproductiton of the cheaeau of Louis XIV at Versailles. The copy was built at tremendous expense by Ludwig II, the "mad king" of Bavaria, who cherished a great admiration for the French King and his famous country estate.

PECORA'S DILEMMA

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY.

Up here, in the Berkshires, where the maples are turning and politicians are scarce, I have been reading, word for word, the testimony in the Hines case and Judge Pecora's decision on the mistrial.

I had a special interest in this case. For a year or more, I had been writing an article for "The Atlantic Monthly" on the rackets of New York. Lawyers were keeping me down. This could not be said and that could not be said. Finally the article appeared as I wanted it. Most of the testimony at the Hines' trial justified me.

In this article, I made the point: ". . . the racketeer pays for his right to mulct others, not only of their money and possessions, but also of their legal rights. He is a protected person. He is always protected in his privilege to violate the law and the rights of others. It must be assumed, even where it cannot be proved, that he pays for such protection. Whether he splits with politicians or works under some other arrangement, the racketeer is responsible to the politician. The man higher up in every racket is a politician.

"Even where racketeers have been caught and convicted, as under the Dewey prosecution in New York, rarely, if ever, are the political protectors of the racketeers apprehended. They are hardly ever bothered, because the tie-up is remote and generally unprovable. Everybody in New York thought that he knew who the top politician was in most rackets during the past decade. Until recently no one attempted to prove it."

PREFERRED TO SEE HINES CONVICTED

It is obvious from this quotation, written many months before the Hines' trial that I have some admiration for Thomas Dewey, that I hate racketeers, that I should have preferred to see Hines convicted.

Nevertheless, I can understand Pecora's dilemma and I fear that if I were in his place, I should have decided as he did.

Naturally, the mistrial decision aroused considerable bitterness. First of all, it seemed shameful for the taxpayers to have to bear the terrific expense of two trials when one would have sufficed. Secondly, there is a fear that some of the gangster witnesses may not be as ready to testify as they were this time. Admitted perjurers, they might again become confused and they may not be able to remember as well several months from now as they did at this trial.

Finally, there is the factor of Thomas Dewey. He represents in the public mind David battling Goliath. He has done an amazingly fine and important job in ridding New York of as ugly a mob of racketeers as ever congregated in an American city. Furthermore, he is a popular candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor and there seems to be an impression among politicians that he can win. Although nobody knows what his views on political, social and economic questions are, there is a very general assumption that his intentions are right, his ambitions clean and his star sure in the heavens.

TECHNICALITY SPOKEN OF WITH CONTEMPT

But all this has nothing to do with the Hines case. Nor has it to do with the technicality on which he based his decision for a mistrial. I was surprised to observe that so many usually sound and learned men spoke of a "technicality" of the law with contempt.

Do they not realize that our very liberties are based on "technicalities of the law?" The same men criticize the National Labor Relations Board and other government agencies which practice administrative laws, as legal horrors. Do they not realize that the viciousness of the NLRB, its outrageous examinations, its bias and unfairness, arise out of the fact that its examiners are usually not bound by the rules of evidence?

The essence of our system of criminal law is that the accused is innocent until a jury has declared him guilty. The benefit of the doubt is with the defendant. One of the principal functions of a trial judge is to protect an accused person from the jeopardy of an unfair trial. The district attorney, all the lawyers in the courtroom, as officers of the court, are bound to co-operate with the judge in protecting the defendant from unfairness.

That principle of law, our greatest safeguard against political intrigue and mob rule, applies to all of us. Al Capone, Jimmy Hines, Earl Browder, Harry Bridges, you and I—all of us depend upon that principle to give us a chance. The principle of a fair trial exists only in Anglo-Saxon countries. It is the jewel in the crown of British and American jurisprudence.

OTHER COUNTRIES—OTHER PROCEDURES

Other countries have other procedures. In continental Europe, the trial judge must assume that a man is guilty of an offense if the examining magistrate says so. Then it is up to the poor devil to prove that it is all a mistake, that he is really innocent. In Soviet Russia, in the political trials, evidence is accepted as proof of guilt which no British or American court would permit as better than hearsay. In China I know of men imprisoned because they spoke badly of a powerful politician.

In the disappointment and annoyance over this decision, we have forgotten the many legal battles fought in old England to protect the individual from the oppressive despotism of officials, and although in the Hines' case, no official was despotic, it is refreshing to find a judge who remembers that they once all were despotic and oppressive and that that might happen again. There was a judge in Milwaukee last winter who threw a case out on a technicality because he was protecting justice rather than government. Pecora faced the same central problem, and responded to it in the same way.

The suggestion has been made that Pecora should have "stretched a point." Maybe. It is easy to be a curbstone critic. Maybe Pecora had already "stretched several points," for I find in the record many instances of criticisms of lawyers' conduct.

STRETCHING POINTS IN ALL DIRECTIONS

But I should like to raise an altogether different question: Are we not already "stretching a point" too much in all directions? The Communists and their liberal stooges were thrilled at the star chamber proceedings of the La-Follette committee, but they are not so thrilled by similar procedures on the part of the Dies committee. We all laughed when Judge Pecora's committee permitted a midget to be put in Mr. Morgan's lap to make the front pages of newspapers, but it is not so funny when Shirley Temple's name is innocently mentioned as a greeting-sender. Are we not getting terribly mixed up as to what is and what is not propriety in our courts, before our administrative boards, before congressional committees? Are we not forgetting not only the principles of law but the right of the citizen to fair and decent treatment?

The citizen may answer: "We must get rid of the rascals at any cost." That, of course, was also the reply of the Black Legion in Michigan. It is the excuse for the Ku Klux Klan. It is what starts a vigilante movement. It can be used by any mob against any man, good or evil.

The National Labor Relations Board constantly crops up as I write this. There the defendant is ipso facto guilty. He is always these days an employer. And because he is an employer he is guilty. I am thoroughly familiar with the Wagner bill and I am sure that if I were on the labor board I could, if I were so minded, operate the board in such a manner that I could cripple all trade unions in the United States. Where there are no "technicalities" it is possible to make anyone guilty whom those in power desire to make guilty.

DID NOT ENJOY REBUKES OF DEWEY

I am making no defense of Jimmy Hines. I have been around New York a bit and have heard things and I fear that I could not be an impartial juror in any case which involved him. Nor do I enjoy the spectacle of Thomas Dewey being rebuked in court any more than his most ardent admirer.

But it will be a sad day in the United States when the technicalities of the law are "stretched" by our judges to meet popular clamor or in response to public opinion. I fear that too many judges are too keen in their response to what is, for the moment, public opinion.

Let me recall an incident: A British newspaper on which I worked in China was involved in a libel suit. The judge and the editor happened to be warm personal friends. All morning the case was being battled over. The editor and I lunched at the Shanghai Club. The judge passed our table. He said, "Good morning" to the editor as though he had not seen him before.

It struck me as queer. The editor had been before that judge that day for three hours; yet he greeted him as though he had not seen him.

The editor explained it to me. He said: "In a British court, the judge never knows anyone personally or socially. One party may be an intimate friend; the other party a perfect stranger. But to him they are absolutely equal. In court, I was Mr. X——a defendant. Here I am a friend. And the two must never be the same."

That is carrying a technicality to a fine point. And it makes for the greatest justice ever known to man.

Analysis

Oh, my! Another autumn's here.
They come 'fore I expect 'em;
But they're not bad; they're made of—well—
Suppose we just dissect 'em.

They're made of Labor Day, and frost,
Bright leaves of gorgeous hues,
Those first school days, some campaign talks,
And sad election news,

Columbus Day, gay Halloween,
Then Armistice, Thanksgiving,
(I'm sure we all like that part best—
And thank God that we're living!)

New clothes, and thoughts of Christmas gifts
For those we must remember—
If autumn makes you sad—cheer up!
It should end next December.

Battle Flag

Third Regiment Georgia Volunteer Infantry, C. S. A.

Embalmed with tears and gently placed,
Where once it proudly waved,
This emblem of a cause now lost
Is honor's token saved;
Shreds that felt the cannon's breath,
Stars now dimmed by years,
So lightly held its bearers death,
They never knew their duty's fears.

Before its bars in reverence bow,
Low to your knees your spirit bring,
Close to its folds whisper your vow—
The homage due a sovereign king;
It floated o'er the south's best flower,
It waved before the hosts of Lee,
Undaunted in its crucial hour
Its soul soars in eternity.

The Law And the People

By PEYRE GAILLARD.

No greater truth is to be found in the annals of crime than that the perpetration of one wrongful act leads almost inevitably to the commission of another. So it is not surprising, as an example, that what started out to be nothing more than a simple conspiracy to "pick up" some easy money on the part of three gentlemen, residing near Baltimore in 1872, led to the murder of one, a long prison term for another and death on the gallows for the third.

One day the morning paper carried a brief account of the death of W. S. Goss, a chemist. There had been an explosion in his laboratory. The building, an outhouse, caught fire and was destroyed. The charred remains were removed from the ruins by Goss' brother-in-law, William E. Udderzook, with the assistance of a few neighbors. The verdict of a coroner's jury—death by accident —would doubtless have closed the more or less unimportant incident, for the time being at least, except for one circumstance:

$20,000 Claim Filed.

Scarcely had the body been put under the sod when Udderzook filed claim against the insurance company for $20,000.

But he stuck out his neck, so to speak, for he soon discovered that the man who came to adjust the claim was not the same smiling individual who sold the policy. The following facts were soon brought to light: The insurance was less than a year old. The insured had withdrawn all his funds from the bank the day before the fire. He had also executed a will. None of his personal effects had been immediately discovered in the ruins, although a thorough search had been made. But one week later, Goss' brother searched and found the dead man's watch, chain and keys!

This chain of peculiar circumstances led to the belief that a conspiracy had been hatched to defraud the company. The claim was declined. The adjuster felt that time was on his side; that something more incriminating would eventually turn up as a result of withholding payment. This simply shifted the burden of proof to the claimants. And Udderzook accepted the challenge. He filed suit against the company.

Teeth Led to Truth.

This, it seemed, was reason enough for insisting on having the body exhumed. Examination showed that the head was intact. And the teeth, such as they were, were uninjured by the fire. Inasmuch as the autopsy indicated every tooth in the dead man's month was either gone, or had fillings, or bridgework, all the dentists in the vicinity were called upon in an effort to determine who had done Goss' dental work. But none had ever treated Goss for the simple reason that Goss had a mouthful of perfect teeth.

This was testified to by his wife, with whom he had lived for 14 years, as well as all who knew him. It was perfectly clear, then, that the dead man was not Goss. But in the face of this conclusive evidence—all brought out during the trial—the jury brought in a verdict for the full amount of the policy, $20,000, plus interest.

Quite naturally, the "claimants" were jubilant. Success was within their grasp. All they had to do now was collect the loot and divide it up. But a motion by the company for a new trial, which was granted immediately, led to the eventual undoing of the conspirators. For, at that point in the proceedings—belatedly to be sure —the company, as well as the authorities, set out to find the real Goss.

A Criminal "Reasons."

But Udderzook, the ringleader, was quick to grasp the significance of this. He long had been harassed by the thought that the "deceased," well known for his over-indulgence in the art of elbow-bending, might turn up at any moment in a happy frame of mind to queer everything. A living, but missing, Goss meant further worry, as well as a three-way split in the money if they succeeded in collecting it; a living, discovered Goss meant arrest on a charge of conspiracy. So he also set out to find Goss.

Knowing exactly where to look, he got there first, rented a horse and buggy and took his brother-in-law for a ride in the country, ostensibly to talk things over. The gist of the conference was never known, for Goss didn't come back. His body, with head bashed in, was discovered a few days later in a shallow grave by a farmer who had been attracted to the scene by the circling of inquisitive buzzards.

Thus it may be seen how one criminal action inevitably follows hard upon another. First, the life insurance was negotiated with deliberate fraudulent intentions; next, the body was acquired under false pretensions, although, it is generally admitted, anybody with a box to put it in and a wagon to haul it away could obtain a cadaver, in those days, for purposes of "research." Then came the fire. Step by step, one crime led to another—fraud, conspiracy, arson, perjury and murder. From the very moment Udderzook suggested insurance to his brother-in-law, the three conspirators were plunged head-long, willing or unwilling, into a series of crimes culminating in murder.

Mordecai Manual Noah was born, 1795, in Philadelphia, where he won fame and fortune as the country's first notably successful playwright. He used the fortune to try to advance his plan to gather all the Jews in the world on Grand Island, in Niagara river. He started construction of a New Jerusalem there.

Night Baseball.

In 1909 night baseball began, with a game between Grand Rapids and Zanesville of the Central league. Grand Rapids, the home team, won, 11 to 0.

English Journalist Appraises Crisis

The probable results of the Chamberlain policy of yielding to Hitler in the Czech crisis are analyzed here by a noted journalist, who was for several years head of the press department of the British foreign office. From 1910 to 1920, he was chief correspondent in the United States for The London Times. He is the author of "aspects of British Foreign Policy," "The Frontiers of England," and other books.

By SIR ARTHUR WILLERT.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(By Wireless)—What will be the practical result of the latest and most spectacular retreat of the democracies before the dictators?

Prime Minister Chamberlain's supporters still hope that good may come of it. Some argue that Germany's diplomacy may become less dynamic now that she is in a fair way of gaining a large slice of Sudetenland. They point out that Chancellor Hitler has often intimated that he does not desire to conquer alien territory, that he has said that he is willing to allow France to keep the Germans of Alsace-Lorraine and that he does not want to take German Switzerland. Germany, therefore, ought now to be territorially satisfied, except for comparatively unconsidered trifles like Danzig or or Memel.

A more prevalent argument is that, before long, it will be possible to do business with Hitler based upon the economic condition of Germany. Much has been heard lately both in London and Paris of economic difficulties and consequent social unrest in Germany. A Czechoslovakian triumph for Hitler may temporarily palliate this unrest, but cannot banish its causes.

TWO MAIN OBJECTS OF CHAMBERLAIN

Chamberlain's supporters recall that, when he eliminated Anthony Eden and took over control of the foreign policy, he had two main objects in view. He wanted to make friends with the dictators and, at the same time, by rearming on a vast scale, to reassert British influence abroad and show the dictatorships that they could not stand the strain of an indefinite race in armaments with countries as rich and as well supplied with raw materials as Britain and France.

Chamberlain's policy so far, of course, has been an almost unqualified failure. He failed either to make friends with the dictators or to frighten them.

But, say his friends, peace has anyhow been preserved. Britain, day by day, is rising out of the chaotic state of unpreparedness in which she was until recently. Germany may have scored again, but a Sudeten triumph will not help her any more than the Austrian triumph, now that she has spent on raw materials all the gold she found in Vienna and Austria's foreign securities. Considerations such as these may incline her to talk constructive appeasement.

This should all the more be the case if, after the fear of immediate war has been banished, conditions in the United States and Britain improve and if an Anglo-American trade agreement is signed before long. The more effectively the democracies seem to be running their economic systems, the more likely Germany is to grow tired of Marshal Goering's self-sufficiency campaign.

ANGLO-GERMAN TRADE AGREEMENT.

According to present arrangements, negotiations for an Anglo-German trade agreement should begin in the course of the next few months. If, meanwhile, the political situation can be kept in hand, the first steps toward economic appeasement may then be possible. The greater the economic stringency in Germany, the better also the chance of Chamberlain's being able to persuade Hitler to consider an effort to check the armaments race. And, if things could be brought to that stage, a comprehensive effort to put the world straight might be in sight.

Arguments such as these will not prevent Chamberlain from having a rough time when parliament meets to discuss his latest venture in world affairs. Appreciation of his courageous initiative last week has given place to widespread uneasiness about the results of the Anglo-French surrender. The labor and liberal parties have decided to unlimber all their guns against Chamberlain, and there is a movement of revolt among some of his own followers.

Outraged pride is by no means the only reason for this opposition. Grave fears are entertained that considerations such as those cited above are unsound. This does not mean that the failure of Chamberlain's effort to stave off immediate war is apprehended. Stories current today that Germany is calling up more army reserves and massing more troops on the Czech frontier are discounted as merely indicating that she is preparing to employ the obvious tactics of making Chamberlain still negotiate under the threat of armed force.

GERMANY'S AIM: WORLD DOMINATION

It is pointed out that nothing yet has happened to show that Germany is ready to give up her campaign for the domination of most of Europe and perhaps the conquest of part of Russia simply because she has succeeded in weakening Czechoslovakia. On the contrary, Hitler's Pan-German propagandists have always said that elimination of Czechoslovakia as the eastern bastion of the democracies was part of their European plan, just as their European plan is preliminary to an ultimate effort for world domination.

Regarding the argument that Germany may be forced to make terms with the democracies by economic factors, it is recognized that she is having a hard time economically. But it is pointed out that this does not necessarily mean that she is yet ready to desert economic nationalism and cooperate with the democracies for the improvement of international trade. In the first place, she is doing a satisfactory amount of barter trade in central Europe and other parts of the world, and, in the second place, she has a considerable foreign debt outstanding and an important part of her foreign trade is financed by a most complicated system based upon a gradual buying back of that debt at prices far below par.

The possibility of an early general election is being discussed in political quarters. It is expected that, after an acrimonious debate, Chamberlain will, as things now stand, receive a vote of confidence from parliament, and it is wondered whether, in that case, he may not ask the country to renew his mandate.

First opinions are that he would be returned with a reduced majority. But the size of his majority would depend largely upon how effective British participation promised to be in the guarantees to be given of the integrity of what is left of Czechoslovakia. His supporters also think that the argument that the recent bitterness and bloodshed had shown that it would have been impossible for all Sudetenland to remain under Czechoslovakia would tell in his favor.

New York Skylines

By CHARLES ESCOURT JR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Reflections after watching New Yorkers return, wan and shattered, from vacations in the open spaces:

In the course of years in town, a man gets to the point where the smell of fresh air becomes peculiar and downright offensive to him. When you've accustomed your lungs to breathing a compound of human breaths, exhaust fumes, cement fillings, the fragrance of the juice of fats ($10 an ounce) clothing-filtered and dust-peppered nitrogen, the whole rolled thick as pudding and basted with tobacco smoke, the process being accompanied by the shriek of metal, the groan of stone, the grunt of rubber, the crash of wood and the jar and thud and clatter of human feet and voices—then pure air will taste like unsalted bread. It just doesn't seem to have any bang.

THEY NO LIKE.

There are some, however, who just never get used to the town. Watching the explorers try to acclimate themselves to the town is sad. These are the babies who acquire a lust for pure air as an occupational disease.

Lincoln Ellsworth, when here, wanders around with haunted, wondering eyes. He has an apartment overlooking the East river and is able to breathe air that has not yet really settled down to town life. But "I don't know how you stand it," is what he says. "I can't get enough exercise here," he adds before tearing off to climb mountains in Africa as a course of training for his expedition to the Antarctic.

Vilhjalmar Stefansson, forced to live here more or less permanently, has solved the problem in his own fashion. He keeps the windows of his apartment closed all year 'round. Through the stifling heat of recent days, he sat tranquilly enough behind the closed windows explaining to everyone who wanted to know that no air at all was a lot better than New York air.

Peter Freuchen, a bearded, red-faced giant, broad as a scow and knotty, has spent a good part of his life in the clotted atmosphere of Eskimo igloos. But if you catch him on the broad reaches of Fifth avenue (once every 10 years), you'll find him clutching at his throat as if he were strangling.

The only two I ever met who seem to have solved the problem were Cap'n Bob Bartlett and Sir Hubert Wilkins. Cap'n Bob, between voyages to Greenland, lives in a room big as a closet fronting on a chronically dark court. With his ties draped over the bureau mirror, his books piled on all the available chairs, his typewriter resting on his bed, his pants draped over the window sill and sundry gear stacked in the sink, he is quite happy. "It makes New York seem temporary," he explains. And when he wants a breath of air, he presses his nose flat against the windows of the town shops. "Window-shopping," he says, "offers the best landscapes a man could ever see in a lifetime." Which is startling enough from a man who has seen more landscapes than most.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, being another one of the exceptions that proves the rule, spends his town-time in night clubs. Lady Wilkins used to sing in one and maybe that accounts for it, but his beard waggles as briskly in a breeze blowing from a cellar saxophone as in a gale blowing off the South Pole.

NECESSITY IS THE MOTHER

There are other less fortunately situated who also have solutions to the problem of breathing. Commuters, of course, with their patches of earth to which they rush like creatures possessed. And, for those who simply must be within a half hour of their offices, staggering apartment developments which invent a kind of country life for their inhabitants within sight and sound and smell of the town.

Fifteen minutes from town is a section of apartment houses which has set aside valuable footage to satisfy the lust of people for the good earth. Tennis courts, of course, and a nine-hole golf course on which no hole is big enough to permit a drive. You go around with mashie and putter. Then they have what they call farms. A man can rent a farm in an empty lot up to eight feet by ten feet in area and there plant what he wants. It's harvest-time now and you can see the farmers rushing home triumphantly carrying the harvest in paper bags.

A half hour from town on the subway there is another apartment house fronting on the lower bay where the sea breezes blow constantly. It has a swimming pool, recreation room and completely equipped gymnasium in the basement, a sun-deck on the roof, gardens with real flowers growing in it in front and a golf course around the corner. Rooms are expensive though and families with children and a maid park these encumbrances in a single bedroom. They have beds that stack one on top of another for the children—and they call it civilization.

But, if you want to appreciate the extent of the suffering of town-dwellers who love fresh air, you really have to go fishing one week end in the boats that put out of Sheepshead bay. Fifty feet long they are and they put out between 4 and 7 in the morning, carrying upwards of 100 passengers who have to stand sideways to fit on. Standing sideways and, when there is no more room that way, hanging by their toes from davits and bowsprits, they spend most of the day disentangling their lines and cursing each other out. But they come back week after week because at least the air with which they curse is pure.

By M. ASHBY JONES.

THE WAR WITHIN.

Of course, men vary in their experiences, but there are some universal experiences. When we speak of a "war within one's personality" have we not touched upon something which is common to us all? Every man who has ever tried to do right—to be what he believes he ought to be—has a fight on his hands. All of us realize that it is hard to be good, even according to his own standard. Each of us recognizes two forces which seem to contend within us for supremacy. They always line up as "I ought" vs. "I want"

We are born without character. A new-born baby is neither good nor bad. It is a bundle of possibilities. Within the mysterious realm of a baby's spirit, limitless wants lie sleeping. The world without—his environment—will gradually call these wants into consciousness. The first which will appear are simply animal—all the desires for bodily satisfaction. The world now is making its appeal only through the five senses. Then later the dawning senses of beauty and curiosity wake up. Gradually, first through mother love, comes affection, answering the call of affection. All of these varying wants multiply with astounding rapidity.

Our Wants.

Early in this development wants begin to come into conflict. The most casual examination of one's own experience at any moment, reveals a number of conflicting desires. Sometimes there seems to be a babel of voices bidding us go in opposite directions, perform a variety of acts, each contradictory to the others. Here is the first revelation of personal freedom—the power to choose. The confusion of voices must be silenced, before a choice can be made. The presiding officer, the "I," must take charge and choose which want shall be satisfied. But the question is, by what standard shall the choice be made?

Early in the development of the person, comes the sense of "I ought," or, "I owe." With it comes a corresponding desire to do what I ought, and to pay what I owe. But often this "I owe" another conflicts with obtaining something "I want" for myself. The issue may come in the form, shall I satisfy my body at the expense of another person? Here, as so often, the conflict is between the animal and the spiritual self. There is no wrong in eating, or in satisfying any of the bodily desires, except when this is done at the expense of the welfare of another, to whom one is under obligation One is thirsty, so one is drinking. Unrelated to anyone else, there can be no wrong. But suppose one is drinking at the expense of the rights, or the happiness, of others?

Character is developed in these struggles. Desires grow as we feed them by yielding to them. So often the body cries out for food, at the same time the soul calls for nourishment. The body demands drink, but one must drink at the expense of obligations to the home, business and society. To yield to the body means to strengthen the appetite of the body, and when the contest fronts one again, the body is stronger. So, also, will the spirit grow as it resolutely turns from some attractive bodily indulgence and ministers to the higher desires of the spirit.

Choice and Character.

We rebel against this law of conflict, and wonder why we were not created good. God could have made accurate machines, but even God can not make a good man. Goodness is the voluntary choice between right and wrong. It is even more than that. It is the choice of right, when wrong is so attractive as to make up want to do wrong. It is the triumph of the higher desire over the lower.

Life is often depicted as a man standing where the road divides into two. One leads up a hard rocky climb, with difficulties at every step. The other winds into a beautiful valley of easy gradual descent. The rocky climb is "I ought," and the valley road is "I want" of self-indulgence. But that is a very inadequate revelation of life's truth. The mountain-top, with its circled horizon of radiant beauty, shouts to the hesitant traveler, "only from this vantage point can the soul see and be satisfied." And even the jagged rocks of obstacles, and the steps of difficulties, shout "I dare you. Only he who climbs conquers." And there is something in every man made in the imagine of God, that may respond to that mountain top to the "beautiful, the true, and the good." That I believe to be the voice of Jesus. And His faith is: "They will hear my voice."

Georgia State Parks - - - - - - - - - Indian Springs

A stone footbridge in Georgia's oldest state park, Indian Springs. There are facilities for almost every form of holiday enjoyment here. Not the least fascinating is found in the miles of cool and shaded walks through the wooded hills. The trails wander away into the dim distance and tall pines whisper their songs of peace as the gentle winds touch their tops. Such footbridges as that shown in the picture add a touch of man to the beauties of nature. They conform with their setting, add, instead of detract, from the quiet charm of the scene.

Georgia Parks—Indian Springs

By ELMER RANSOM.

It was as early as 1827 that the fiery governor of Georgia, George M. Troup, served notice on James Barbour, secretary of war under the New Englander, John Quincy Adams, that Georgia was preparing for war with the United States. And while this may present a comic-opera tune in 1938, it was then a martial note to the President of these United States.

Georgia, according to the views of Governor Troup, formed a loyal and important bulwark of the new colonies and had been treated outrageously, lied to without compunction and victimized by chicanery and double dealing. The governor was determined that the Creeks, occupying roughly the territory between the Chattahoochee and the Ocmulgee rivers, should be removed from the state even though Georgia had to face, at one and the same time, the Creek arrows and federal bayonets. It was not the first nor the last time that Georgia was to demand its prerogatives as a sovereign state, exercising its own right of self-determination.

The territory under dispute included the famous watering place, Indian Springs, 50 miles from Atlanta, long revered by the Creeks for the healing power of its mineral waters. It was at Indian Springs in February, 1825, that the treaty with the Creeks was ratified whereby the Indians were to give up their lands in Georgia, receiving in return an equal amount of territory west of the Mississippi and $400,000 in gold. General McIntosh was murdered as the result of this treaty. When John Quincy Adams entered into the Presidency of the United States he disallowed the treaty and came near to precipitating a civil war.

"Allies of Savages."

Governor Troup later called the national government "the unblushing allies of the savages," and the harassed President hastened to make a treaty with the Creeks, which in 1827 removed them from the state.

Thus Indian Springs, the most popular of all the Georgia state parks, is an important landmark in the history of our state. The mineral springs from the days of the savages to the present have been believed to possess rare curative powers, and were esteemed as a watering place by the landed gentry of Georgia prior to the Civil War, when planters left their spacious acres during the hot summer months to spend their time at Indian Springs.

This writer does not know why it should be so much cooler at Indian Springs than it is in nearby territory. Doubtless science has somewhere found the answer, but the fact remains that this is true. Riding out of the hot city on an August day we used a blanket for covering before the night was over.

$30 for Paper Cups.

It is no unusual sight to count eight to ten thousand visitors on a week end at the springs and on more than one occasion the park service has taken in as much as $30 on paper drinking cups which are retailed by mechanical conveyors at one cent each.

It is the oldest of the state-owned lands, never having been given over to private parties. Since its original acquisition in 1825 it has been retained as a health resort by the state for the people of Georgia.

A large casino with varied amusements is available for the use of guests. Ample picnic grounds, lighted at night, provided with tables and open-air fireplaces, cater to parties from all over the state.

A stone building houses the newly opened museum of Indian relics which is being added to every day and is a source of interest to all park visitors. No charge is made for the use of these facilities.

Miles of Cool Walks.

Miles of woodland walks, cool and shadowy, invite the hiker. Jack's lake, eight miles away, provides boat racing, swimming and fishing and, while the writer had no opportunity to fish this lake, it is reported to be well stocked with bream, bass and jack fish.

The State Park Service does not itself provide facilities for overnight visitors as it does at some of the other parks but the erection of cabins is contemplated. I believe the plan also includes an artificial lake to be stocked with bass and bream. When this is done and the enthusiastic fishermen of the state are also lured to this historic and beautiful spot, the facilities of the park will have to be extended and enlarged because now it is taxed to capacity during the summer months.

A Story Is Told.

A story is told of a patient arriving at Indian Springs about the time this writer was born. The gentleman, I believe, was on a stretcher, suffering what the doctors termed an incurable malady and having but a few weeks at most to live. He is now beyond ninety, hale, and vigorous.

Your reporter is no part of a physician and refuses to commit himself on the curative properties of mineral waters. Possibly the quiet serenity and loveliness of the place exerts also its healing magic. I do know this, however. If you listen to any one of dozens who go regularly to the springs you will come to believe that De Soto missed his way and that here lies the true Fountain of Youth.

Happenings In Church World

By DR. HERMAN L. TURNER.

The next Lutheran world convention, according to an announcement issued from the Lutheran Church House, New York city, will be held in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1940.

The first world convention was held at Eisenach, Germany, in 1923; the second in Copenhagen, Denmark; the third in Paris. The proposed convention in Philadelphia will be the first to take place in America. The Rev. Dr. Frederick H. Knubel, president of the United Lutheran Church in America, was elected vice president in Paris of the international organization.

Architects of world reputation are invited to submit plans for the erection of an up-to-date college of medicine at Ankara, according to the Near East correspondent to the Christian Century. A sum of $6,800,000 has been provided for the buildings. As was demonstrated by the census taken in 1935, Turkey ranks among the countries with the fastest growing population. Inasmuch as she has only one physician for each 5,516 inhabitants instead of one for 2,000 as is desired, there is an increasing need for medical forces, especially in Anatolian rural and urban centers, a need which the Istanbul faculty of medicine, with its remarkable staff of Turkish and refugee professors, is not able entirely to meet.

New Missionaries Sail.

Twenty-eight young people appointed by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in the past year will sail during the summer for Africa, Brazil, China, Guatemala, India, Iran, Siam and Syria. Joining with the Presbyterian group in a conference held in Hartford, Conn., were outgoing and furloughed missionaries of the Reformed Church in the United States and the Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist, and United Lutheran churches.

Churchmen prefer order to peace, according to London correspondent: A manifesto has been issued by the Archbishop of York and many other leading churchmen declaring that "the maintenance of international law must, on moral grounds, come first." The government should take action to check outrages such as the bombing of British ships in Spanish harbors "not so much in defense of British interests as in defense of law." It is a paramount obligation, they say, to avoid general wars, but an even greater evil as involved in international anarchy.

High Art Museum Will Run Gamut In Extensive Series of Showings

By ELLEN ST. JOHN BARNWELL.

Art treasures are to appear in Atlanta at the High Museum of Art. From originals by Rubens to those of the bizarre, must-discussed Mexican Diego Rivera the plans announced today give promise of a brilliant art calendar.

Prominent points throughout the nation and Europe are sending pictures here that have been selected with consideration for the varied art tastes in Atlanta. These exhibits are brought through the Atlanta Art Association, of which Walter C. Hill is president and J. J. Haverty, chairman of the board. Lewis P. Skidmore, director of the museum, has arranged for two displays to be current within the same dates in the different galleries.

October 1 to 15 will hold the craft show from the Blue Ridge studio, Tryon, N. C. From October 15 to 30 the collection of period paintings from the Dothitt gallery of New York city will be shown.

November 1 to 15 brings the Binyon water colors from Washington, D. C., to gallery three, while currently displayed in the auditorium gallery will be choice selections from the Southern States Art League, in which 16 states will be represented.

Georgian To Exhibit.

Lamar Dodd, art instructor at the University of Georgia, will show his oils, which have won favor in eastern cities with recent summer paintings, from October 15 to 30. In connection with the Dodd showings will be musicals and lectures. At the same time the lead pencil studies of Amanda Watkins, art teacher of the Mount Berry schools, will fill gallery three.

December 1 to 15, Newton Merrill, of Clearwater, Fla., will display his canvases done in Mexico. December 1 to 22 will see the auditorium gallery showing the work of local Atlanta artists.

From December 15 to 30 will be shown the colorful peasant fabric and hand-blocked art cloth done by Domenica Mastalio, of New York city. From December 24 to January 5 will hang the work of the Association of Georgia Artists.

New Year Plans.

The coming of the new year will bring etchings and lithographs from American artists and also will include recent paintings by Ben Shute and Robert Rogers, instructors at the High Museum Art school. Lithographs which have won national recognition for Lamar Baker will be seen. Baker has returned to Atlanta from three years' study in New York city.

The all-old-masters' show will follow, bringing originals by Rubens, Van Dyke and other famous artists. These will be sent from the Newton gallery of New York city. Contrast for those who want what is being done today will be the canvases of Diego Rivera, from the collection owned by Mrs. Van Horn Moseley. Textile oddities from the Pacific islands also will be shown.

In addition to the gallery hangings there is a lecture series to be announced later. At present, seen in the museum are the rare bird pictures held over by popular request for another week. This exhibit from the Walter C. Barnwell collection, has been enlarged to include the bird miniatures which are colorful hand-tinted etchings done in London, 1808, by H. D. Symonds.

The public is invited free of charge. The museum is open from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock on week days and from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock on Sundays.

Urban League

By JESSE O. THOMAS

The purpose of the Bulletin is to chronicle the worthwhile things done for, by, and with the Negro, as a basis of increasing inter-racial good-will and understanding.

The Pittsburgh Urban League has recently added to its staff an education secretary, who has submitted a very comprehensive program for youth guidance, adult and parent education.

A. Aims of the youth counseling service:

To develop an individual counseling service for out of school youth, primarily the 18-25 age group, for purposes of educational and vocational guidance.

To make the community conscious through group meetings, conferences, literature, of the need for adequate counseling and guidance of youth; make community willing to co-operate in placement of youth; make them use their training.

To make larger numbers of youth conscious, through youth meetings, institutes, literature, and conferences of the need for planning a vocational future.

B. Metthods: In establishing a practical guidance program, the counselor is dependent upon the development of efficient procedures for accomplishing three essential functions: (1) The acquiring of knowledge of community facilities contributing to educational and vocational opportunity; (2) The acquiring of knowledge of the individual to be served; (3 The bringing about of a satisfactory relationship between the individual and the educational or vocational facility.

The acquiring of community facilities contributing to educational and vocational opportunity. (a) Educational: Public school offerings—familiarity with curricula; types of courses; extra-curricula program; adult education extension service; private school offerings, correspondence courses, high school courses, business schools, manual training and industrial schools; higher education, college facilities and professional and technical training; vocational training; apprenticeship training; scholarship aid.

(b) Vocational: Knowledge of the local employment picture; information on general employment trends; co-operation with the industrial department of the Urban League in determining current facts on employment; development of a special consultant service whereby a number of persons representing various vocational fields will be approached to act as consultants for a few youths interested in a particular type of work; gradual accumulation through use of the occupational index of occupational information for use by applicants; the sponsoring of tours made up of a group of youth interested in the same type of vocation, to factories, industrial plants, and other places of work; the sponsoring of group meetings of persons interested in a particular vocation under the leadership of persons outstanding in the field.

The acquiring of knowledge of the individual to be served will be gained through:

(a) Personal interview; personnel forms and record of service sheets will be compiled to cover essential information needed in following the case.

(b) Securing the school record in those cases where needed.

(c) Administering general intelligence tests to secure some indication of the intelligence record of out-of-school youth. (Adequate co-operation from the school will mean securing records available on intelligence, health, personality traits and the like).

(c) Co-operation with the department of psychological testing, University of Pittsburgh. A limited number of individuals that represent special guidance problems might be referred for further testing. Psychological tests will also be administered by the child guidance clinic in unusual cases.

(e) Family contacts, conferences with teachers of persons who have known the individual, in order to determine essential traits of personality.

LOTS GOING FAST IN CASCADE AREA

Three Subdivisions Along Thoroughfare Report 25 New Homes.

Out just beyond West End, close by and along Cascade avenue, many home-owners are taking advantage of the opportunity to purchase building lots on which modest little homes of $6,000 to $7,500 are fast going up.

Three separate subdivisions are furnishing the opportunity for these lot purchases — Cascade Heights, Beecher Hills and Cascade Manor. As selling agent for all three tracts, George L. Wilson reports that within the past four months approximately 25 lots have been sold to prospective builders in the Beecher Hills subdivision. A number of pretty homes have been built in this tract, two or three are now under construction, and new streets have been laid out and graded. The lots in this tract, as are the lots in other subdivisions, are large and shady and well laid out.

Cascade Manor is the newest of the subdivisions. It is very near the end of the Cascade car line. In this tract 20 lots have only recently been sold, says Mr. Wilson, and six modest but very attractive little homes are under construction. In this property is also all city conveniences, with streets well laid out and graded.

Cascade Heights is the oldest of the subdivisions and has grown unusually fast within the past two or three years, being dotted all over its length and breadth with many attractive bungalows and homes, ranging in price from $6,000 to $8,000. Six or eight new homes are now under construction and 30 lots have been sold within the past three months. Practically all the home-building has been done by the purchasers of lots, and most, if not all, the financing has been under the FHA plan.

The entire area around these tracts is ideal for home building. Close by are schools and playgrounds, including the Dr. Charles R. Adams park, with swimming pools, tennis courts, etc., and the John A. White golf course. Mr. Wilson states that more interest has been shown in the purchase of lots in these various subdivisions for the past three to four months than in a long time.

Peachtree Home Landmarks To Give Way to Business

Two more old residences—landmarks along Peachtree street—are giving way to progress.

Sale was announced yesterday by John S. Baldwin Jr., vice president of Draper-Owens Company, realtors, of the old R. O. Campbell home, at 1055 Peachtree, and the leasing for 25 years of the adjoining M. T. Salter estate property, both deals being made with Consolidated Realty and Investment, Inc., a local group of capitalists.

This sale and lease, together with a sale approximating $15,000 for Highland avenue property, to be improved with stores by the same corporation, runs the realty transactions close to $100,000.

The Campbell home property adjoins the Farrell property on the corner of Eleventh street. A large frame building of 10 or 12 rooms, built many years ago, will be torn away. The lot is 85x350, extending through to Juniper street. No consideration was announced, but the property is assessed at $21,000. This was sold outright.

The adjoining Salter property, with a large old frame residence, is 88x350, running through to Juniper street. For the 25-year lease on this ground the total rental will approximate $50,000. Both lots will be graded level with the street, just as soon as the old homes can be removed, and work will be started on a series of stores. Work will begin at once.

The Highland sale made by Mr. Baldwin was at 1396 and 1400 Highland avenue, N. E. On it at present is an old building. This will be removed, and a portion of the property—that under the zoning laws—will be improved with stores. This property is near Lanier boulevard, in the edge of Morningside, and it is understood sold for about $15,000.

PICTURE TO DEPICT EVERY-DAY SAFETY

Atlanta Building Owners and Managers To Bring Sound Film Here.

The Atlanta Association of Building Owners and Managers announce showing at the Atlanta Athletic Club, September 28, "Approved by the Underwriters," an educational sound film on the protection to life and property from fire, accident and crime.

The picture depicts actual tests of products used every day by persons in all walks of life; products upon which rely for our every-day safety. It shows how the tests are conducted and why—some devices pass and others fail.

Featuring the picture is that of crime prevention tests to prevent burglary, robbery and theft, showing the many devises and systems employed in many of our banks and mercantile establishments for revealing and frustrating criminal attacks.

The picture is a product of the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., Chicago. In other cities where shown, it has met with enthusiastic approval and comment for its great lesson in the prevention of accident and crime.

Heads of the Atlanta fire department, police department, and other interested groups have been invited to witness showing of the picture.

AUGUST BUILDING TOPPED YEAR AGO, GAIN OF 88 PER CENT

Residential Construction in Fulton and Near-by DeKalb for Aug. $885,000.

Atlanta played a part in the national upswing of residential building during August. Contracts here moved far over the level recorded for the corresponding month of last year.

In his monthly comments on building, R. M. Hairston, manager of the Dodge reports division of F. W. Dodge Corporation, said, "Residential building contracts awarded in the Atlanta metropolitan area during August topped the contract value for August, 1937, with a margin of more than $400,000. This follows the trend of every section in the 37 eastern states."

The August contracts for residential building in the Atlanta metropolitan area, including Fulton and DeKalb counties, amounted to $885,000. That includes a gain of 88 per cent over the contracts awarded in August, 1937, valued at $470,000.

The total of all residential contracts awarded in this area during the eight months was $6,582,000. The corresponding total in 1937 was $4,914,000.

In the 37 eastern states, the Dodge news staff found August residential contracts which totaled $99,732,000. That is 36 per cent over the contract valuation of $73,448,000 recorded in August, 1937. At the same time, August contracts were 13 per cent over the July, 1938, contracts, $87,978,000.

INDIANS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Only about 200 Indians now are living on Pennsylvania's one remaining reservation in Warren county. About half are "drifters." They perform in circuses, act in "wild westerns," or go on periodical medicine-selling tours.

NYA Says States Should Act If Parents Can't.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The National Youth Administration advocated full state responsibility today for the food, clothing and medical care of needy school children.

Citing other recognized state aids to schooling, an NYA study concluded:

"Consistent with this movement, and in the absence of financial ability on the part of parents, it would seem reasonable to assume that the state's responsibility should extend to include provision of the food, clothing, medical services and school supplies that many children now lack in adequate amounts."

Daylight Saving Time Retires; City Clocks Are Set Back 1 Hour

Atlanta Is 59 Minutes Ahead of Other Cities Making Change.

Daylight Saving Time hibernated last night until next spring.

It retired for the winter in favor of Central Standard Time in Atlanta and surrounding communities.

Clocks were set back one hour last night when Atlantans and their neighbors went to bed though the official hour of abandoning Daylight Saving Time was 12:01 o'clock this morning.

In that one particular, Atlanta got ahead of New York and any number of big eastern and northern cities. Because New York and the others did not go off Daylight Saving Time until 1 a. m., a full 59 minutes after Atlanta took that step.

And, the city was far ahead of most European countries, which hold on to the time saving system until October 1.

Just in case you are interested in statistics, 30,000,000 people worked and played under Daylight Saving Time in the United States this year—in New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Delaware, and in 748 cities and towns in 11 other states.

That isn't all. In Canada, 30,000,000 more enjoyed the extra hour of daylight during the summer, and most of the people in Europe had it. It is estimated that Daylight Saving Time affects 145,000,000 persons each summer now in all the world.

ONLY JOINT ACTION CAN WIN, SAYS KING

Senator Declares United World Democracies Can Block Dictatorship.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Senator King, Democrat, Utah, declared today that only determined joint action by Democratic nations could block the "predatory course" of Germany, Italy and Japan.

Those three nations, he said, "have been so successful in their aggressive and militaristic policies that to check them would be a task which could only be successfully accomplished by the democratic forces of the world joining in moral protest and in the formulation of plans which would convince these nations that they might not continue their predatory course without meeting formidable and successful opposition."

"We're to blame," King said, "for general conditions which have grown up in the world since the last war."

King voiced the opinion that "formidable and determined" opposition by France, England and Russia probably would be sufficient to forestall German invasion of Czechoslovakia.

OLGA BACLANOVA SUES FOR SECOND DIVORCE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Olga Baclanova, former stage and film star, today started divorce proceedings against Nicholas (Nikky) Soussanin, her second husband.

The couple were married in 1929 after the blond Russian beauty had obtained a divorce from her first husband, Vlademar Zoppi, Moscow lawyer.

3 STATES DELAY CHANGE IN TIME

By the United Press.

The return from daylight saving to standard time was postponed one week in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, to give relief workers in storm areas as much daylight as possible in which to carry out emergency rehabilitation programs.

The postponement, ordered by governors of the three states, appeared likely to cause some confusion, because railroads had already announced new standard time schedules effective Sunday. There is no time for a second revision, the railroads said, and the new schedules will stand.

Mrs. J. Murrah Urges Observance Of Fire Prevention Week Oct. 9-15

By MRS. J. MURRAH,
Of Columbus, State Conservation Chairman.

The committee of conservation in Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, accepts as a challenge the proclamation of President Roosevelt that the week of October 9 be observed as fire prevention week and will participate in the movement to educate old and young to protect the forests from fires. We realize that it is public willfulness and carelessness that cause practically all of the forest fires in Georgia.

The now disproved belief that the woods burning is desirable to reduce boll weevils and hasten the early grass for grazing are accepted as the cause of the large number of incendiary fires. It must become a habit of all to be sure that the lighted match is out before it is thrown away. The puting out of the camp fire must become a habit. Georgia has the largest forest acreage of any state in the Union. Help protect this acreage from fire.

One great damage that fire does to the forests is the destroying of young seedings. Many acres would reforest naturally if fires were kept out of the woods. The land on which forests grow covers about one-third of the area of the United States. Forest fires have been fewer since the establishment of the CCC in which project the boys have built miles of new roadways over which fire-fighting trucks can be sped in; they have constructed many miles of fire lanes and fire breaks, and cleared dead trees and underbrush from many acres.

They have taken away the inflammable rubbish from miles of road sides where the careless travelers might drop matches; and they have strung telephone lines to connect the lookout towers with the fire stations. This group of young men are saving a vast amount of the things which the forests can give. There are in the forest lands 615,000,000 acres. There are 127,000,000 people in the country—we must get much more from the forests. Forests are expected for such things as houses, railroad ties, paper, rayon, movie films, fruits, nuts, game, turpentine as well as places in which to rest and play.

Forests protect the land from erosion by wind and water and help to control the floods. By the turn of the next century, those of us who will be here may have domesticated the forests so that they will yield an ample, perpetual harvest. They may have been developed so as to protect the land as no army of men could protect it. By their help we may conserve that precious water power which can be transmuted into electricity and that in turn into leisure. If we have done this we will have reshaped our world into a far better place to live in than it is now.

Official activities for the membership of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs will be launched for the year at the meeting of the executive board on October 6 through the recommendations from the president, Mrs. Albert M. Hill; the resolution introduced; and the plans presented by the officers and chairmen for goals to be accomplished. Resolutions should be sent at once to the chairman of the committee, Mrs. A. P. Brantley, 51 Inman circle, Atlanta. On October 5, there will be meetings of the executive committee, the finance committee, the district presidents' luncheon, and the Tallulah Falls school trustees' meeting and dinner.

The Dorothy Juniors of Eton have elected new officers, as follows: President, Prince Scarbrough; first vice president, Mary Lynn Long; second vice president, Evelyn Gregory; third vice president, Geneva Campbell; recording secretary, Eloise Mantooth; corresponding secretary, Helen Pierce; treasurer, Helen Harris. The program committee for the year: Vivian Gregory and Dennie Sue James. Miss Dorothy Jackson is the sponsor.

The state chairman of press and publicity, Mrs. Harvie Jordan, expresses appreciation to the Lavonia Woman's Club for the year's subscription to the Lavonia Times. This gift is a mutual help to club and chairman and is one of the greatest favors a local club can render state headquarters.

At the recent meeting of Boulevard Park Woman's Club Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge, was the speaker, having for her subject "The Importance of Knowing Your Own State." Miss Conger is immediate past president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and a pleasing, well-informed speaker. She will be in Atlanta several days attending meetings of the board of education, of which she is a member.

Mrs. Harold Wey, executive secretary of the student aid committee, has returned to Atlanta after several months' travel in Europe. Miss Marian Woodward, chairman of student aid, will not be back from her summer home in Connecticut in time for the meeting of the executive board, October 6, and Mrs. Wey will represent the committee.

Club friends of Mrs. Howard McCall, of Atlanta, are glad that she is out again after her recent illness. She is frequently at state federation headquarters and continues her "Parliamentary Law Pointers" for the club page.

The state president, Mrs. Albert Hill, and the first vice president, Mrs. E. M. Bailey, have invited the district first vice presidents to attend the meeting of the executive board and meet for a conference preparatory to starting an intensive drive for club extension. Mrs. Bailey will submit her planned campaign for approval. District vice presidents are: First, Mrs. J. W. Daniels, Claxton; second, Mrs. H. T. McIntosh, Albany; third, Mrs. R. C. Collier, Montezuma; fourth, Mrs. Wilbur Freeman, LaGrange; fifth, Mrs. Chester Martin, Atlanta; sixth, Mrs. Leonard Booth, Macon; seventh, Mrs. W. A. Hill, Calhoun; eighth, Mrs. Alice B. Longino, Douglas; ninth, Mrs. J. B. Bond, Toccoa; tenth, Mrs. D. I. Barron, Monroe.

The nation will observe the eighteenth American Education Week, November 6-12, 1938. Through nearly two decades of observance, this event has become significant in American life. The program adopted this year is based on the general theme, "Education for Tomorrow's America," and is of unusual significance to all citizens interested in maintaining a high standard of educational opportunities for the boys and girls.

September meeting of Crawford Woman's Club was held at the clubhouse with Mrs. L. L. Whitley and Mrs. Ed Faust as hostesses. The president, Mrs. E. H. Furcron, presided and reports from officers and chairmen showed a keen interest in the activities planned for the year. Two finance committees reported $41 made on recent barbecue. Nine dollars was appropriated for kitchen supplies. An interesting program on "Forestry" was enjoyed.

Travelogue Is Seen By Wadley Club.

Miss Elizabeth Donovan, of Wadley and Statesboro, was speaker at the September meeting of Wadley Woman's Club. Hostesses and program committee were Mesdames W. D. Evans, W. H. Donovan, S. W. Overstreet, J. B. Stephens, Ben Jordan and B. A. Watson.

Miss Donovan gave a travelogue of her European tour, describing customs, traditions, and old-world splendor of England, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, France and others of the eleven countries embraced in her travels.

The speaker made the trip as guest of the Rosenwald Foundation, in recognition of her marked success as supervisor of elementary education at South Georgia Teachers' College. She was introduced by Mrs. W. D. Evans, who also presented the guest prize.

General Federation President's Letter Read at Institute

In speaking at the recent club institute of Fifth District of Georgia Federation, Mrs. Hinton Blackshear, of Atlanta, had the subject, "What the General Federation Means to Us and What it Expects of Us." In her talk, she quotes a letter from the president of the General Federation, Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, who writes: "I hope you will tell the club presidents that I expect every president and every club member to read regularly The Clubwoman GFWC. In this way they can keep abreast of the Federation program and prepare themselves to co-operate when such co-operation is feasible.

"I expect every club to send to headquarters or to the various department chairmen for additional material on subjects in which the members are most interested and on which they are working. After clubs have 'carried through' on the programs which fit their needs, I expect them to report their activities to their district or state chairmen that they may be embodied in reports which go to the general federation chairmen.

"I expect every club, if possible, to send representatives to district, state, and general federation meetings. If clubs cannot be represented at national meetings, I expect them to study the resolutions submitted on the general federation's call and send in by mail a vote on each resolution. If asked by the general federation of state federations to support certain national or state legislation, I expect every club to study carefully such legislation, and indorse it if the members see fit to do so.

"If the legislation is indorsed, I expect every club to notify its representatives in congress or the legislature. In a word, I expect every club to be a part of a broad program which has for its goal 'Adjusting Democracy for Human Welfare,' the theme I have chosen for this administration."

Students' Club Issues New Yearbook

Again the Students Club of Columbus issues an intriguing outline of study for the current year. The arrival of the program from this group, organized in 1895 and federated in 1897, is an anticipated event at state headquarters in the beginning of each autumn.

An interesting feature of the book is the inclusion of the titles of previous programs since 1895. History, travel, romance have been included in these studies and this year "Islands of the Sea" will feature the monthly meetings.

Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy will tell of the "Golden Isles of Georgia" at the October meeting and Mrs. J. W. Woodruff will talk about "Bermuda," and Mrs. Robert Carter will be hostess.

Officers are: Mrs. George Burrus Jr., president; Mrs. Alvan Howard, first vice president; Mrs. J. M. Flournoy, second vice president; Mrs. C. L. Mullin, third vice president; Mrs. B. B. Littlejohn, recording secretary; Mrs. Ralston Cargill, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. J. Meredith, treasurer. Critics are Mrs. James J. Gilbert and Mrs. F. S. Porter. Publicity director is Miss Louise Randall.

Winder Juniors Hear English Speaker.

Winder Junior Woman's Club met Tuesday night at the clubhouse, the president, Louise House, presiding.

Meeting was opened by Rubye Hendricks giving the Junior Club Woman's prayer followed by Anne Seawell introducing the guest speaker for the evening, Anne Baillis, of England. Miss Baillis arrived in New York on the Queen Mary when the record trip was made. She compared English and American customs which are very similar with only a few exceptions. Women in England do not take a very active part in public life as the women in America, nor do they have organizations as we have here. Miss Baillis expressed her admiration for the people and the country of the United States. Lucy Clair Harris accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Griffeth gave a most entertaining tap routine.

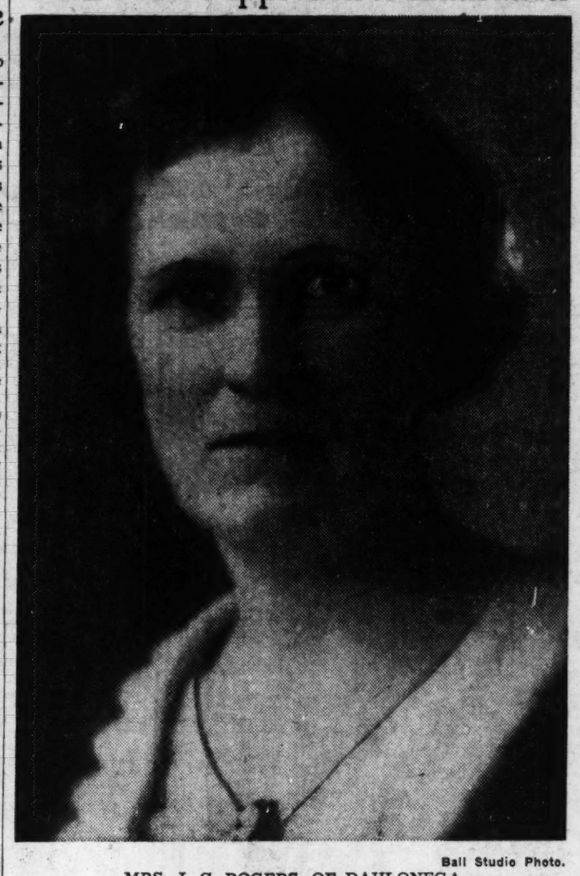

New members who were accepted in the club are Leda Elder, Bernie McDaniel, Evelyn Redfern, Jim Dillard and Frances Haley.

The finance committee was appointed by the president to make plans for a dance. A note from Mrs. T. A. Herrin and Mrs. Lois Hall was read inviting the club members to the closing summer exercises at Russell field of the recreation center in which the club has been quite interested.

Committees appointed for the coming year are: Program, Imogene Herrin, chairman; Johnnie Adams and Geraldine Scarbrough, social; Mary Booker, chairman; Emily White and Tootsie Lay, hostess; Daisy Howell, library; Kathryn Dillard, scrapbook; Marquerite Harrison, publicity; Lonie Reese Harris.

Mrs. Rogers Issues Message On 'New Approach to Education'

Ball Studio Photo.

MRS. J. C. ROGERS, OF DAHLONEGA.

By Mrs. J. C. Rogers, of Dahlonega, State Chairman of Education.

That so many of you are present at this conference is an evidence of your interest in education, and of your devotion to the ideal of service fostered by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. It is this devotion and the remarkable service rendered by federated women through past years that have drawn me into club work. Since I am such a newcomer, perhaps I should be personal enough to say that education has been very close to my heart since earliest girlhood days, so close, in fact, that I married it and for the past 25 years have lived with it without a divorce! And now as your state chairman, I feel, indeed, the challenge not only of the new day but of the wonderful achievement of past leaders which is recorded in the progress of our state.

The rallying slogan of our president, Mrs. A. M. Hill, "Meeting the Challenge of the New Day" is like a trumpet call to leave our valley of pessimism for the heights where new horizons are rapidly opening to view. We are called to face the Dawn of a New Day. The challenge to education has been accepted. Experiments in education are being carried on every where. After careful investigation into the causes of crime in youth, prevention is being assumed through education in the public schools. The Copeland experiment, with its congressional appropriation of $75,000, is demonstrating this same idea through a 10-year program in the public schools.

Henry Ford has turned schoolmaster and with 6,000 graduates and 2,000 enrolled in his schools he is experimenting with illiteracy in the jungles of Brazil and hammering at tradition in New England. He has also established unusual schools in England, Michigan and at Ways, Ga. Our own state with its revised curriculum outlining the new activity program, its added appropriations, free schoolbooks, county libraries, and lengthened school terms, equal to any in the country; its only limitation is the financial aid to carry it on.

We clubwomen should familiarize ourselves with the new curriculum and its demands and then help create public opinion for added appropriations, both state and federal. Then our nine months school term will cease to be merely an aim but will become a reality in every school in the state. Federal aid has been given the state in the valuable contribution made by the National Youth Administration and the WPA aid. Vocational and industrial arts training has been added by the NYA to 35 schools in the state and a trained specialist has been employed to direct arts program. But the state-wide program of the Department of Education must have larger appropriations for its completion.

But how are we, as clubwomen, to meet the challenge of the New Day in Education? I will be specific and answer in terms of our divisions of education as follows:

1. In Character Education: Since we are the most criminal nation on earth and the majority of our crime is committed by youth, there seems a serious lack in the education that produces such youth.

(a) Crime prevention through education has become a goal in the state of Illinois and in the Copeland experiment in the District of Columbia. The Copeland experiment is: With the aid of extra teachers the backward, delinquent or problem child, instead of being pushed forward at the end of two years of failure, further beyond his depth, is directed into vocational training or other activities suited to his capacity. A case history is made of him and parental re-education is attempted to improve home conditions.

(b) Character development through moral practice is urged in the schools with the creation of public opinion against all forms of dishonesty, especially cheating and the "ghost writing" of themes and essays. (c) There should be watchful opposition to sale of indecent magazines.

2. Adult Education: No longer must adult education be considered merely for the eradication of illiteracy. All adults need continuous education in order to keep step with new thought.

(a) The extension courses offered by the University of Georgia should be studied by every club in Georgia.

(b) Public speech forums should be sponsored by clubwomen for adult civic education in every community where such forums do not exist.

(c) Courses should be given in parental re-education concerning the problem child, adolescence and family relationships.

(3) Conservation of Youth: (a) Youth must be prevented from crime through individualized education and vocational training including the arts.

(b) Youth's unemployment must be met with increased educational and arts training and by planned recreational activities.

(c) Youth must be saved from subversive propaganda and "isms" by youth forums for free discussion.

(d) The public school grounds and buildings should be used during the after-school hours as a community center for wholesome recreation and civic activity, if no other community center is available.

4. Library Service: The State Department of Education has already made possible libraries for every county in the state, and all except 27 counties have secured libraries. The clubwomen of the state should help secure libraries for the remaining 27 counties and should help to establish materials bureaus in every library as an aid to the new activity program.

The State Library Commission has offered to aid the clubwomen in this service by furnishing lists of free materials and of inexpensive pamphlets.

I wish to plead that speech or oral English be made a required course in our curriculum from the first grade throughout the public school. It seems futile to offer speech courses only in college unless the foundation is laid in the grammar grades where habits are formed. Careless and incorrect speech has been too long a stigma on the culture of Georgia. We as clubwomen and all the citizenry of Georgia should resent the practice of politicians during campaigns of resorting to incorrect speech in order to be "one with the people." Let us create a state-wide demand for correct and adequate English spoken with proper enunciation. To this end may oral English become a planned part of every child's training at home and at school.

Mrs. Rountree Heads Cedartown Club.

The first fall meeting of the Woman's Club was held Friday afternoon at the Woman's building.

The feature of the meeting was the election of officers, which included the re-election of Mrs. F. L. Rountree as president; Mrs. A. C. Fulmer, first vice president; Mrs. J. G. Witcher, second vice president; Mrs. R. D. Cantrell, third vice president; Mrs. Russell Irwin, secretary; Mrs. J. W. Florence, treasurer; Mrs. Harry Trumbo, parliamentarian, and Miss Della Russell, publicity chairman.

A splendid number of members were present and plans were perfected for work of this organization for the coming club year.

'Dollar Per Member' Is Tallulah Slogan

The "Dollar a Year for Tallulah" slogan so well presented recently by Mrs. J. A. Corry, Tallulah Falls chairman for the fourth district, seems to be gaining attention with clubwomen all over the state.

Mrs. Phil Ringel, of Brunswick, president of the eighth district clubs, writes: "At our district executive board on October 13 I am going to urge that all clubs certainly give the sum of 40 cents per capita which has long maintained as the Tallulah allotment in the eighth district. I believe, however, that quite a number of our clubs are going to want to put themselves on the 'dollar per capita' list."

Mrs. Herbert Bradshaw, of Waycross, who is Tallulah Falls chairman for the district, was very eager for her home club to have a place on that list last year and all the Waycross clubwomen were so pleased at the success of the party which Mrs. Bradshaw and Mrs. John Bennett put over that Mrs. Bradshaw thinks the other clubs of the district will want to do as well this year. She says: "I certainly hope so with all my heart.' I visited Tallulah Falls school for the first time after the club institute in July and was deeply impressed with what I saw there. The school is all our trustees say and very much more. Now I can talk intelligently about Tallulah and its activities and I hope something I may tell will help to make every club in the eighth district a 'dollar per capita' club this year."

Fourteen clubs were on the "dollar per capita" list last year. The first in order must always be the Jewell-Mayfield Club which has been $1 per capita for many years. Pelham Woman's Club is a big champion of the dollar per capita idea and with these two were numbered Columbus Wynnton Study Club, LaGrange Woman's Club, Atlanta Every Saturday Club, Atlanta Rhododendron Club, Macon Woman's Club, Waycross Woman's Club, Gainesville Study Club, Gainesville Arts Study Club, Clayton Woman's Club, Winder Junior Woman's Club, Augusta Woman's Club, Athens Woman's Club.

Royston Clubwomen Adopt New Motto

At the first autumn meeting of Royston Woman's Club, the president, Mrs. Branson James, proposed the adoption as a motto: "Sincerity, Service, Co-operation." New members accepted were Mrs. J. H. Duncan, Misses Faye Shirley, Elizabeth Bowers and Miss Urquhart. Visitors welcomed were Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer; Misses Decora Adams, Sara Duncan, Betty Ann Adams and Frances Brown.

Mrs. L. H. Persells reported the club institute held in Athens in July and stressed many activities for the local club. As chairman of adult education, Mrs. Persells asked that a membership in the Junior Literary Guild be given the school library, assuring the newest books each month. The necessary amount for this project was voted.

Responding to a warning from the chairman of public safety, Mrs. S. F. Ginn, a boy patrol from the high school will be appointed as a means of education in safe driving. Miss Edith Payne, chairman of library service, reported an increased number of readers and additional new books. The secretary read an inspirational letter from the district president, Mrs. Stewart D. Brown, of Royston, outlining plans for the year.

Mrs. J. A. Dyar, a charter member who has been active through the years, serving as president and holding various important offices, sent regret that ill health would prevent her attendance. The expressed sentiment was that her presence will be greatly missed, and all wished for Mrs. Dyar a speedy recovery.

As chairman of education, Mrs. Stewart Brown introduced Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, who related an account of her travels abroad, illustrating her talk with souvenirs of her trip. Nevin's "Gondoliers" was appropriately rendered as a piano duet by Betty Ann Adams and Frances Brown.

Jefferson Club Begins Activities.

Inaugurating its fall activities, the Jefferson Woman's Club met Monday at the Log Cabin, which the members have chosen for their clubhouse, and where future meetings will be held.

The program chairman, Miss Joyce Storey, presented an interesting program. A piano solo was rendered by Waggoner Alexander. A symposium on "Vocational Education" featured the program. Miss Storey opened the discussion, and was assisted by others, who gave splendid papers on different phases of the subject.

The business meeting, presided over by Mrs. M. M. Bryan, was marked by reports, motions and discussions relative to the future work of the club.

The treasurer reported $53 spent on repairing the Log Cabin, with a balance of $31 in the treasury. Mrs. C. H. Legg announced a flower show to be held in October.

Mrs. L. H. Isbell, chairman of education, asked for donations of magazines for distribution in the rural schools and communities.

The president announced that a visit to the Tallulah Falls school is planned for October.

Mrs. Aderhold, chairman of public health, announced that recently typhoid serum had been given a large number of citizens. Also milk was being furnished a tubercular patient, and food was being given the needy. She requested donations of second-hand clothing, shoes, etc., and stated that a baby layette was needed at the present time.

At the conclusion of the meeting, a reception was held for Martin Institute faculty.

Parliamentary Law Pointers Are Given

Do—Endeavor to speak distinctly and in your natural voice. The importance of correct enunciation and proper tone cannot be overestimated, for the voice proclaims one's culture and even one's health.

Do—Voice appreciation, or compliment an officer or a member, in the form of a motion, or present resolutions of thanks. In giving a rising vote of thanks, members disregard parliamentary procedure and spring to their feet (before the chair can even state the motion) without having expressed a word of gratitude.

Do—Use the two little words "I Move." Never say "I make the motion."

Do—Say "Madam President, I second the motion," without rising and without waiting for recognition.

Do—Say "the chair will entertain a motion," not "Do I hear a motion?" Wait until the chair states a motion before speaking to the motion.

Do—Say when presiding, "Is there a second to the motion, or is it seconded?" (Then pause.) Ask only once. If not seconded, the chair says, "The motion is lost for want of a second." Never say, "Do I hear a second to the motion?"

Do—You know that the acceptance of an amendment to a motion must come voluntarily from the one who made the original motion? The chair should never ask the member who made the motion to accept an amendment offered to the motion.

Do—Remember there are seven important articles a president should carry to every meeting over which she presides. (1) A notebook containing the order of business. (2) A gavel to obtain and maintain order. (3) A watch to time the meeting. (4) A pencil to check each item of business. (5) The constitution and by-laws, and standing rules, to settle doubtful points. (6) The parliamentary manual to aid the chair in ruling. (7) A calendar, to settle future dates.

Do—Bear in mind that the ballot is used to enable members to conceal their views on the question to be decided by ballot. Members may vote for any eligible person by ballot whether that person has been nominated or not. Never say "secret ballot." "Ballot means secret."

Do—Pause long enough when speaking to think of the word you need. Your speech then will not be ruined. It is best to organize your thoughts before rising to speak.

Do—When changing by-laws use the term "to amend or to revise," as these two phrases include all changes.

Do — Remember that a quorum should be named in by-laws. If there is no rule providing for a quorum, understand that the majority of an enrolled membership constitute a quorum; a quorum (named by a by-law) should be as large as can be depended upon for being present at all meetings to transact important business.

Do—Remember a quorum is necessary. Not providing for a quorum causes a lot of trouble. For the only business that can be transacted in the absence of a quorum is to endeavor to obtain a quorum, and to adjourn or take a recess. A unanimous consent cannot be given and a notice given out at this time is not legal. It is very necessary to provide in your by-laws for a quorum.

Do—You know that it is bad form to thank an assembly or radio listeners at the close of your speech? Thanks should come from the ones who requested you to speak.

Do—You know that you, as an officer or a committee chairman, should not fail to be ready with a written report and should present it at the annual meeting, for you should do your bit and thus make history for your organization.

Do—Respectfully submit a narrative report and hand it to the recording secretary to be filed. Only narrative reports containing recommendations are ever adopted by a vote of the assembly.

Mrs. Wood Urges Wider Use Of D.A.R. Historical Magazine

By MRS. JAMES N. BRAWNER, Atlanta, Editor Georgia D. A. R.

Mrs. J. Thomas Wood, of Savannah, chairman of the D. A. R. Historical Magazine, urges all officers, chairmen and regents of chapters in the state to use the national publication more widely, and stresses its value for program material. She issues the following statement today:

"As state chairman of the National Historical Magazine committee, I am willing this to submit your assistance in our plan for increasing the number of subscriptions to this splendid magazine. You know your state chairman can plan the work but actual results are accomplished by the chapters. I am hoping to have each chapter double its number of subscriptions this year. Please appoint the best worker you have as your chapter chairman and send her name to me at once. We must secure an increased circulation of the magazine among the members of the society and a wider acquaintance with the National Historical Magazine outside the society.

"Become familiar with the subject matter of the magazine and this will enable you to discuss more intelligently its real worth, not only with the members of our society but with the reading public. Please give two minutes at each meeting to have the magazine presented. I feel that the publication is so fine and oustanding that it will sell itself to the members if given sufficientt publicity.

"Two prizes are offered this year. A silver loving cup to the chapter securing the largest number of new subscriptions. Then the state regents' award of $10 each to the two chapters having the largest number of current subscriptions, per capita, and one additional subscription to the magazine to be placed at the chapter's direction to the next five chapters having largest number of subscriptions per capita. To be on the honor roll the regent must be a subscriber to the National Historical Magazine. Every state chairman should feel duty bound to subscribe to the magazine.

"Let's be loyal—read the magazine, it will help you to live up to the aim of the D. A. R., and (1) to perpetuate the memory of the men and women of Revolutionary times; to preserve family history and genealogical records, and to help the living element, particularly the children, to be better and happier Americans."

Mrs. Harrison Hightower, state regent, calls the attention of all regents and chairmen to two changes that have been made in the roster of regents since the directory was published. Corrections on page 175 of the 1938 proceedings should be as follows: Mrs. T. Lee, Dawson, regent of the Stonecastle Chapter, and Mrs. H. P. Dobbins, Perry, regent of the General Daniel Stewart Chapter.

King's Daughters and Sons Meet Here for State Convention Oct. 6-7

Good Deed Circle, of Atlanta, with Mrs. C. F. Goree, president, will entertain the state convention of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons here on October 6 and 7. Seventy-five delegates and visitors will attend and the program will include services both day and night at North Avenue Presbyterian church, with holy communion on the morning of October 7 at St. Mark's Methodist church; a luncheon at the Atlanta Woman's Club, and a reception at the home of Past State President Mrs. Harriett Clark Gurr.

The King's Daughters was among the first organizations to draw together women of different churches for religious, philanthropic and educational work. It was the outgrowth of the "Ten Times One Is Ten" clubs. These "tens" were bands of women and men interested in philanthropic work.

The original ten founders of the Order of the King's Daughters met for the first time in the home of Mrs. Margaret Bottome, in New York city, on January 13, 1886, and formally organized the order. Mrs. Bottome was elected president and retained that office until her death in 1906. Mrs. Bottome was famous for her Bible talks.

Of the various names proposed for the order, the one suggested by Mrs. Theodore Irving, one of the founders and a leader among Christian educators, was most favorably received. The new society was therefore called "The Order of the King's Daughters."

At the end of the first year the order numbered several thousand members, and from this time its growth became phenomenal. Near the beginning of the second year a constitution was formulated, stating as its objects "the development of spiritual life in its members, and the stimulation of Christian activities in the world." Men and boys began to seek admission into the order, and in 1887 the name was changed to include "sons," and the Order of the King's Daughters and Sons was incorporated in 1888. A dominion branch was formed in Canada in 1887, and later provincial branches were organized. In 1891 the title was changed to the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons. Many circles include both daughters and sons, and in recent years junior circles of sons have been increasing.

As early as 1888 state branches began to be formed for the mutual benefit of circles in the state. Today there are hundreds of institutions supported by circles and branches. Many branches support a united work in addition to each circle's own undertakings. All of this work, like the order itself, has grown from small beginnings.

The Silver Cross magazine, edited and published in New York city, is the official organ; headquarters for the order are located in New York city; the state branch for Georgia is in Savannah, headed by Miss Kate C. Hall, state president and international secretary; the Atlanta circle is "The Good Deed Circle," Mrs. C. F. Goree, president; Mrs. C. R. Golden, vice president, and Mrs. Elizabeth Russell, secretary.

The marriage of Miss Frankie Eloise Marbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bayne Marbury, to Marvin Elliott Hubbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hubbell, of New Rochelle, N. Y., was solemnized last evening at 8 o'clock at the Peachtree Christian church by Rev. Robert W. Burns. Mrs. Victor B. Clark, organist, and Ellis Williams, soloist, presented a program of music while the guests were assembling.

The choir loft was banked with palms and garlands of smilax graced the chancel rail. On either side of the altar were groups of palms and arranged in front of each group were seven-branched candelabra holding gleaming white tapers. Clusters of Easter lilies adorned the base of each candelabra and vases of Easter lilies were arranged on each end of the altar. Bouquets of Easter lilies marked the pews reserved for the families of the bride and groom.

Ushers for the wedding were Arthur Armstrong and Fred Boardman, and the groomsmen included Dr. Ralph Aiken, Arthur Andrews, Cole Bradley, Jack Gillentine, Walter Leon and James Roberts.

The bridesmaids included Mesdames Ralph Aiken, Fred Boardman and Sydney Smith Jr., and Misses Louise Brown, Pauline Roberts and Jean Turner. They wore stunning gowns fashioned of spring green velvet fashioned along Princess lines with a softly gathered fullness concentrated in the front of the bodices. The gowns wide puffed sleeves, with the modish broad shoulder effect, were trimmed with contrasting Empire green velvet bows. They carried Talisman roses and yellow chrysanthemums tied with yellow satin ribbon and bandeaus of Talisman rosebuds were worn around their hair.

Mrs. Herbert Bayne Marbury was her daughter's matron-of-honor and she wore a gown of Empress green velvet made like those worn by the bridesmaids. Her bouquet was formed of talisman roses and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride was accompanied to the altar by her father, H. B. Marbury, by whom she was given in marriage. They were joined at the chancel rail by the groom and his best man, Benjamin Hubbell.

The bride wore a gown of deep ivory slipper satin fashioned along lines of the ante-bellum period. Short puffed sleeves finished with ruffles of Chantilly lace and a yoke and narrow turn-over collar of Chantilly lace were becoming features of the beautiful gown. The full skirt extended into a train of several yards in length and was covered entirely by the bride's wedding veil of illusion tulle held to her hair by a coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies centered with a trio of deep purple orchids.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Marbury, the bride's parents, were hosts at a reception at the Biltmore hotel at which they were assisted in receiving by the bride and groom, and by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hubbell, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and by Mrs. J. H. Burland, of Kingston Ontario, Canada, the groom's sister.

Mrs. Hubbell was attired in rust colored chiffon velvet made with puffed sleeves. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of orchids and valley lilies. Mrs. Burland wore a peach colored lace gown with coral colored velvet bolero jacket. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of orchids and valley lilies.

Mr. Hubbell and his bride left after the reception for a wedding trip to Bermuda. They will return to Cambridge, Mass., for residence. For traveling the bride donned a costume suit of cinnamon brown wool sheer worn with a dyed fitch jacket. She wore dark brown accessories and a shoulder cluster of orchids.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hubbell, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Mrs. J. H. Burland, Kingston, Ontario, Canada; Miss Kathleen Nixon, also of Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leon, Miss Constance Leon, and Mrs. Francis Carpenter, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. S. L. # Atlantans Meet Sir Hubert And Lady Wilkins On Recent Trip

Honolulu Provides Many Thrills For Mrs. Woolford and Daughters

By Sally Forth.

MEETING Lady Wilkins, wife of the distinguished arctic explorer, Sir Hubert Wilkins, is considered the high light of a recent trip to Honolulu enjoyed by Mrs. C. Boyd Woolford and her attractive young daughters, Charlotte and Isabelle. It was aboard the streamlined City of Los Angeles, en route from Chicago to Los Angeles, that the Atlantans experienced the pleasure of an introduction to the titled English lady, and an added thrill came when the train reached its destination and Sir Hubert met his wife, to the accompaniment of a barrage of newsreel cameramen and press representatives.

As you know, Sir Hubert is one of the most interesting personalities of the day and is always news. And, to quote Mrs. Woolford, his wife is as charming as he is interesting. The Atlanta trio was fortunate enough to enjoy a radio program with Lady Wilkins, during which her husband was interviewed in New York by Robert Ripley, and they are still marveling that, while they were being whisked across the continent, their journey proved very slow as compared to Sir Hubert's, for after the interview, he left New York by plane and reached Los Angeles some hours before they arrived.

Sir Hubert and Lady Wilkins were en route to their native Australia for a visit prior to the former's departure for South Africa. His next expedition will be to the South Pole, where he will go under the ice in a submarine. And, of course, no one will be more interested in the successful culmination of his daring venture than Mrs. Woolford and her daughters.

The trio sailed from Los Angeles on the Lurline, and one of the big thrills of the trip for Charlotte was the birthday dinner that marked her sixteenth anniversary. Special menus were printed in honor of the lovely young southerner, and the orchestra played "Happy Birthday." Several distinguished guests on board autographed Charlotte's menu and it forms a most interesting memento of the day. Perhaps the most treasured signature is that of Edgar Rice Burroughs, creator of "Tarzan," whose adventures you read each day in The Constitution.

This was the first visit either of the girls had made to the Pearl of the Pacific and they were intrigued with their arrival in Honolulu. Friends met the boat and dropped leis over their shoulders, these garlands of flowers typifying the traditional welcome of Hawaii. The days on the island were filled with a variety of interests, each of which proved fascinating to the southerners. They enjoyed a native feast, where a pig was stuffed with red-hot lava rocks and baked in ti leaves under ground for hours, and later was served with poi and other typically Hawaiian delicacies.

Speaking of the trip, Mrs. Woolford says: "We enjoyed sight-seeing at Schofield Barracks and visited sugarcane plantations and pineapple fields. Sugarcane and pineapple take about 20 months to mature, and the ground has to be irrigated and fertilized. We went to the Samoan village, where we saw boys making hats from the fresh, small shoots of the coconut trees. It kills a tree to make a hat, but they are interesting. We each bought one, and then found we could not bring them home, as no plant life can be taken aboard ship. Later we went to the other side of the island to a house where the owners serve luncheons and raise hibiscus. It was the most wonderful collection of hibiscus I ever saw. They pick the blossoms and string them on a straw and make bouquets for the table, which last all day without fading. They have 5,000 varieties, all too lovely for description.

"Another of our big thrills," continued Mrs. Woolford, "was riding in an outrigger canoe. We had two natives take us out; we all rowed and they would tell us what to do. When a big wave came, we were carried in on its crest. It was just like flying for several miles. We would like to do it every day."

Charlotte and Isabelle are at the age when they get quite a thrill out of movies and movie stars, so they were greatly excited over seeing Joe Penner, Gracie Allen and George Burns. "Joe's wife was with him, but no duck," they report. Gracie and George, as you know, are partners in real life as well as on radio and screen, and the Atlantans saw them on several occasions in Honolulu and later on the Matsonia returning home. An encounter with the comedians in Honolulu provided the best laugh they had on the entire trip.

It seems there is something about the Hawaiian climate that makes one's slippers seem a bit too small. Experienced travelers are aware of the fact and always include a comfortable pair of old shoes in their luggage. Gracie, however, forgot to take comfortable shoes, or perhaps she had no old ones. For on the evening she caused so much merriment, she appeared beautifully gowned in full evening dress, but wearing a pair of Georgie-Porgie's shoes!

A HOST of friends of Mrs. R. T. Dozier will relinquish her with regret when she leaves this week to make her home in Montgomery, Ala. Her young daughter and son, Jane and Taurice, are already in Montgomery, where they entered school last week.

Mrs. Dozier came to Atlanta as the bride of the late beloved "Pat" Dozier, a well-known newspaperman, who for several years was connected with the editorial department of The Constitution. Since that time her charm and friendly, gracious manner have won for her an enviable place in social and cultural circles here.

On going to Montgomery for residence, Mrs. Dozier returns to her girlhood home. As the former Julia Andrews Marks, she was a popular belle and a member of that city's Junior League. A representative of one of Montgomery's most prominent families, she is the only daughter of the late William H. Marks and of Mrs. Marks, with whom she will make her home. Scores of friends will extend her a warm welcome and rejoice in her return.

MRS. LAMAR RUCKER had the honor of giving the first prenuptial party honoring Laura Ann Phinizy, popular Athens belle, whose betrothal to Bob Segrest is formally announced today. On Friday Mrs. Rucker entertained a group of the bride-elect's lifelong friends, who will attend her as bridesmaids, at a luncheon at her home in Athens.

Immediately after the guests were seated at the flower-bedecked table, which featured the bridal motif, a newsboy in the person of young Byron Booth, distributed galley proofs of Sunday's Constitution, in which the Phinizy-Segrest engagement announcement was scheduled to appear.

Changing quickly his newsboy attire to that of messenger bearer, Byron delivered telegrams of congratulations to the bride-to-be, who read them aloud. Cleverly worded, many of the messages were humorous and full of advice to the prospective bride. Several of the messages bore felicitations from kings and queens — all make-believe, of course!

The only disappointing note sounded at the luncheon was the absence of Mrs. Rucker's daughter, Nellie, who is in far-away Germany studying at Heidelberg University. Nellie and Laura Ann grew up together as across-the-street neighbors and began their school days as kindergarten classmates, continuing through their high school years.

Since Nellie is unable to be one of Laura Ann's bridesmaids, it is particularly appropriate that her mother should give the initial party for her daughter's close friend. Then, too, the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Barrett Phinizy, the former Martha Glover, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Rucker are lifelong friends. The latter, as you know, was before her marriage Nita Black, of this city, and she and Mrs. Phinizy made their debuts in Atlanta society during the same season.

The group invited for the announcement luncheon included Nell Johnson, Mary Cobb and Sarah Erwin, Agnes Jarnagin, Mrs. Charles Hight, Mrs. Hubert Owen and Mrs. James White Jr., all of Athens, and Mary Myers, of Rome.

The Phinizy-Segrest wedding will be an important event of December 17 in Athens and will assemble many distinguished guests from that city as well as from all over the south.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 24.—The marriage of Miss Kathryn Holland, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William Merideth Holland, and Virgil Blount Hooks Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Blount Hooks, of Forsyth, Ga., was brilliantly solemnized here Friday evening. The ceremony was read at the Holland home, 3821 Beverly, before the members of the two families by the Rev. Marshall T. Steel, pastor of the Highland Park Methodist church. This was followed by a reception also at the Holland home.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a lovely gown of lustre duchesse satin fashioned on molded lines, with a fan-shaped train. Her illusion veil fell in graceful folds from a bandeau of pearls, and the bride's flowers were calla lilies, white spray orchids and lilies of the valley. A single strand of pearls was her only jewelry.

Mrs. Colin McRae Jr., the sister of the bride, was her matron of honor and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Robert Lanier Cousins, of Atlanta, Ga., was the bridesmaid. Their frocks of turquoise velvet were similarly designed with shirred bodices, short sleeves and low circular necklines. Pear-shaped bouquets of fuscia gladioli completed their costumes.

George F. Cox attended Mr. Hooks as best man, and the ushers were Benjamin G. Habberton and Irving Schweppe, of Atlanta.

Rev. Steel read the service before an altar banked with southern smilax in which were placed myraids of calla lilies.

Purchase of Memorial Edition Of Jefferson Davis' Book Urged

From Miss Mary Lizzie Wright, of Elberton, Editor Georgia Division, U. D. C.

Mrs. Frank A. Dennis, general chairman of republishing of the "Rise and Fall of the Confederacy" by Jefferson Davis, writes: "The United Daughters of the Confederacy memorial edition of the 'Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government' by Jefferson Davis will go to press October first. Only one more week in which to purchase the set for $4.

"For only one more week will the opportunity be given to have the special illuminated title page inscribed for gifts; only one more week in which to have your own name perpetuated in a record which is bound in the books. Your name will remain forever among those who made possible the republishing of this monumental work by the president of the Confederacy.

"In March I wrote asking you and your chapter to co-operate by securing orders from at least 10 per cent of your membership. Please check your list and see if you have reached this goal. Personally solicit an order from each member; it is far more effective than just an announcement in the chapter meeting.

"The resolution to republish the edition was made by Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, when she was serving as historian general. Now, as president general, this work is her pride and joy. Let us go to the general convention and say to her, 'Your vision was true, we Daughters of the Confederacy are earnestly desirous of having our books of the south in our own homes, in our schools and in our libraries available to our children.'

"Send orders with check direct to Garrett & Massie, publishers, Richmond, Va. Print names for accuracy, giving name of school, library, institution or individual to whom the books are to be presented."

Morgan County Chapter, Madison, Mrs. Kirby-Smith Anderson, president, has a feeling of pride in the work accomplished during the year. One of the main local projects has been the paying off of the last note on the chapter house and the purchase of a piano. The chapter has contributed to all state causes, paying assessment of $20 per capita to Jefferson Davis monument fund; is working to be a star chapter; made many contributions to comfort of veterans in Soldiers' Home as well as honoring the only remaining veteran in the county, Lieutenant Colonel Ab Winter, with a birthday party; large map of Morgan county in its early days placed in museum, and many historical books and pamphlets given to school library; observed Memorial Day jointly with C. of C., assisted by American Legion and Auxiliary; two crosses of honor and one of military service presented; much historical work done locally; compliment to Mrs. Hunt, division president; Mrs. Dennis, division director C. of C., and Mrs. Allen, general director, with a tea on Jefferson Davis' birthday; sponsored an active C. of C. chapter.

Charles D. Anderson Chapter, Fort Valley, Miss Wilma Orr, president, met at the home of Mrs. M. T. Wise with Mrs. J. E. Hollingsworth, joint hostess. Mrs. J. E. Broadrick was elected historian to fill the vacancy due to the death of Mrs. Mattie Flournoy. Mrs. A. M. Lamar, program chairman, presented the new yearbooks. The following program was enjoyed: Miss Sarah Lowe read an article on the "Life of Jefferson Davis," written by Miss Mildred Rutherford; Mrs. Arthur Vinson gave an article on "The Alabama," printed in the Century Magazine in 1885; Miss Luck gave items of current interest and the concluding number was a medley of "Old Southern Airs," played by Mrs. Charlie Jones.

Wayside Home Chapter, Millen, met at the Community House with the president, Mrs. P. W. Martin, presiding. Annual reports showed much work accomplished along all lines of U. D. C. endeavor. New officers were elected as follows: Mrs. C. M. Turner, president; Mrs. A. H. Tarver, first vice president; Mrs. A. H. Sparks, second vice president; Miss Minnie Holland, recording secretary; Mrs. Lynwood Brinson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. E. Hobbs, treasurer; Mrs. P. W. Martin, registrar; Mrs. Celine Dinkins, historian; Mrs. Ira O. Parker, parliamentarian, and Mrs. Charles Anderson, press reporter. Mrs. Parker, chairman of program, presented a quartet, consisting of Mesdames Lynwood Brinson, W. H. Sheppard Jr., D. W. Johnson and D. W. Harrison, who rendered selections of "Old Southern Airs," an account of the reunion at Gettysburg, and also of the union at Columbia, S. C., was given by Miss Minnie Holland, who has the record of attending 31 consecutive reunions.

Brewton, president emeritus of Brewton Parker Junior College. A musical program was given by Mrs. W. C. Somers, soloist, and Mrs. Clyde Tanner, of Douglas, organist.

Miss Jean Jones, maid of honor, wore ashes of roses moire taffeta and carried a bouquet of orchid gladioli tied with tulle of deeper shade. The bridesmaids, Misses Blanche Rattray and Mary Mercer Dozier, wore similar dresses of Spanish wine moire taffeta and carried pink gladioli tied with wine tulle.

The lovely bride entered with her father, William Otis Davis, by whom she was given in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, E. Monroe Davis. She wore white slipper satin featuring a square neckline, Elizabethian collar, paneled skirt, flaring from the hipline and tight sleeves. Her finger tip veil of tulle was worn with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies and bride's roses.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Davis entertained the bridal party and immediate families at a wedding breakfast at their home on Jackson street.

The bridal couple left by motor for their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a dress of blue crepe, with vintage accessories and a shoulder bouquet of bride's roses. Mr. Sockwell, with his bride, will reside in Atlanta on their return from their wedding journey.

Mrs. R. G. Vinson Heads Membership Drive of State Legion Auxiliary Units

By MRS. C. B. McCULLAR,
State Editor, Milledgeville.

Membership is the all important activity for Georgia's Legion Auxiliary as September draws to a close. The returning of the delegates from the Los Angeles convention with renewed inspiration for Georgia units is expected to result in a tremendous increase in membership activities, and the drive led by Mrs. R. G. Vinson, of Thomasville, gets into its second phase. Mrs. Vinson wrote to units this week urging them to contact Legion posts in order to complete their lists of those women who are eligible for membership in the auxiliary. Not only wives of post members, but mothers and daughters and sisters are sought by membership leaders for enlistment in this year's roll. Mrs. Vinson gives these four important points in planning unit membership campaigns: "First, an effective plan for a campaign, worked out in detail in advance; second, a complete and accurate prospective list. Contact your post for the names of eligible wives, mothers, daughters and sisters of your post members; third, good organization of membership teams and a keen spirit of competition between teams or between unit and post or between neighboring units; fourth, appropriate and timely publicity. Effective newspaper or radio publicity and talks before women's organizations in advance of your campaign does much to insure success."

Mrs. Ernest Brannen has been chosen as president of the unit at Statesboro. Other officers, Mrs. Dan McCormock, vice president; Mrs. Hugh F. Arundel, secretary; Mrs. Maxey E. Grimes, treasurer; Mrs. H. P. Jones, historian, and Miss Mattie Lively, chaplain.

Adel's Cook County Unit No. 91 has chosen these leaders: Mrs. H. C. Wills, president; Mrs. C. J. Adkins, first vice president; Mrs. H. W. Nelson, second vice president; Mrs. A. J. Moody, chaplain; Mrs. Chesley B. Griffin, secretary; Mrs. Pearl Purdom, historian, and Miss Martha Nelle Bradford, treasurer.

Organization of a new unit at Douglasville brought joy to that area this month. The unit was organized by Mrs. Clifford Russell, and the following officers were installed by Mrs. W. S. Davison, of Baldwin, department president; Mrs. T. P. Groover, president; Mrs. Fred Huey, first vice president; Mrs. Floyd House, second vice president; Mrs. Harold Warren, secretary; Mrs. Henley Hutchinson, treasurer; Mrs. Hoyle Kemp, historian, and Mrs. Luther Doris, chaplain. The members of the new unit and their guests were entertained by the post at a supper.

Brief messages from Mrs. W. S. Davison, department president, who has been en route to and from the national convention in Los Angeles, report a fine trip, and a stop off at the Grand Canyon by members of the Georgia delegation. The delegates from Georgia entertained at tea during the convention in honor of Mrs. F. I. Dixon, of Thomasville, Georgia's candidate for southern vice president. Convention news of interest to Georgia will appear in this column next Sunday and in the October issue of Gala News.

Mrs. Carl Saye, of the department's official family, installed new officers at Athens recently: Mrs. T. W. Paschal, president; Mrs. L. Florence, first vice president; Mrs. D. W. Bridges, second vice president; Mrs. Henry West, secretary; Mrs. Jacob Joel, corresponding secretary; Mrs. D. A. Gann, treasurer; Mrs. M. A. Hubert, chaplain; Mrs. C. Daniel, historian; Mrs. Mayo Buckley, sergeant at arms, and Mrs. H. B. Hodgson, director of junior activities. The unit is preparing for its annual Legion fair in October. Mrs. D. A. Gann and Mrs. H. B. Hodgson are chairmen of Fair Week. Honor guest at the first fall meeting was Miss Moina Michael, Georgia's poppy lady.

Mrs. J. B. Wingate has been installed as president of the North Augusta unit. Mrs. B. L. Boylston is first vice president; Mrs. J. C. Lynch, second vice president; Mrs. L. E. Ergle, secretary; Mrs. S. L. Nurnberger, treasurer; Mrs. W. C. Knuck, chaplain; Mrs. L. L. Fowke, historian, and Mrs. S. L. Matthews, sergeant at arms.

Dawson unit plans for its fall activities to include the furnishing of milk for underprivileged children. This work is under the direction of Mrs. W. K. Norton, child welfare chairman. Mrs. J. B. Petty is chairman of the Dawson unit, and Mrs. Steve Kenyon is publicity chairman.

TRUMP THROW-IN.

Taking advantage of information gained through an adverse bid and following it up by paying strict attention to the fall of the cards during the early rounds of play, many times makes a throw-in possible at a suit declaration without the necessity of a positive "count" of opponent's hand.

The following deal, variously played at a game in spades, provides an unusually significant illustration of a well-timed throw-in made in the trump suit. The throw-in netted declarer 480 points for the contract doubled and redoubled, 800 points premium for two tricks and a 700-point game bonus.

WEST DOUBLES.

With North-South vulnerable, West doubled the four-spade bid, South winning 12 tricks, losing only one trick . . . a throw-in to West's spade king.

Play the hand through as declarer, keeping in mind West's double and watch the fall of his cards.

West's double virtually eliminated the possibility of the spade fineese succeeding, so play to avoid the finesse by a throw-in. West opened the heart king.

THE PLAY.

South won the first trick with the heart ace and ruffed a small heart in dummy. Returning to his own hand through the club suit, declared noted West played the club nine as South's ace won the trick.

South led the club six, finessing dummy's jack as West played the 10. Dummy's king dropped West's queen and last club, South discarding a small diamond. . . . West has no more clubs.

South's diamond king won the next trick and a small heart was ruffed in dummy. Dummy's diamond ace was played and the jack ruffed in South's hand. . . . West and East are now out of diamonds.

South led his last losing heart which ruffed in dummy, exhausting the heart suit and reducing the hands to:

Fourth District W.C.T.U. Stresses Alcohol Education at Meeting

By Mrs. Mary Harris Armor,
Honorary President Georgia W. C. T. U.

The fourth district W. C. T. U. rally held at Barnesville recently was remarkable for several reasons. It was held just before the state primary, and within 100 yards of an outdoor political meeting, and yet was itself in no sense political. Then there were three ex-presidents of the Georgia W. C. T. U. present, Mrs. T. E. Patterson, of Newnan, now president of the fourth district; Mrs. Marvin Williams, of Decatur, recently elected president of the fifth district W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, of Atlanta. Two state officers, Mrs. R. H. McDougall, of Atlanta, vice president, and Mrs. Wilbur Brown, of Griffin, treasurer, were present, and both contributed valuable information in a most interesting way. Rev. John Tate, pastor of the church in which the meeting was held, the First Methodist, led the singing and by special request sang several solos. Mr. Tate is gifted with a voice of remarkable sweetness and power, and is generous in the use of it. He added much to the inspiration and real enjoyment of the day.

The reports showed progress along W. C. T. U. lines—especially along that of alcohol education. The report of the hostess union was most interesting because of the recently won dry victory. The morning devotions were led by Rev. J. A. Griffies; the noontide prayer by Mrs. R. J. Barnett, of Newnan. The feature of the afternoon was the report of the district president, Mrs. T. E. Patterson, of Newnan. Mrs. Patterson is a host within herself, and her meetings are always alive with interest, conducted in strict parliamentary fashion, and "every unforgiving minute filled with 60 seconds worth" of the finest material mental and spiritual. Her address was straight to the point and reported splendid work done and more and better work planned for next year. All the officers were unanimously re-elected.

The Athens W. C. T. U., Mrs. H. W. Birdsong, president, is one of the most active and influential in the state. In the "Marching Orders" issued by the recent national W. C. T. U. convention, one of the suggestions was that each union hold two guest meetings each year. Mrs. Birdsong is the first local president to report such a meeting. It was a reception given by the officers of the Athens W. C. T. U. to members and their friends, with Dr. J. C. Wilkinson speaking. In the receiving line with Mrs. Birdsong were Mesdames H. A. Haygood, H. E. Martin, S. S. Smith, W. P. Warren, B. L. Betts, and W. W. Ferqueron. Others assisting were Mesdames W. R. Wilkes, S. C. Moon, H. G. Bannister, H. M. Cox, E. J. O'Kelley, J. Russell and Misses Helen Logan and Elsie McCartey. The children rendered a delightful program. Mrs. Haygood presented Dr. Wilkinson, who stressed the fact that in our fight for temperance we must be patient; that permanent good comes slowly. It took centuries for the world to get rid of slavery. We must be persistent, keep working, never let up. People must be educated as to the evils of intemperance before the drink habit is formed. The temperance question is a moral issue, also political, and the battle must be fought at the polls.

Those who met Miss Bertha Rachel Palmer, national director of alcohol education, when she spoke before the Georgia Educational Association and the Georgia P.-T. A. convention recently, would be interested in a news story just received from Honolulu of a reception tendered Miss Palmer. With the news story is a picture of Miss Palmer that looks as if she had just received a real Honolulu welcome—that welcome which someone has truly said "has quickened the heartbeat of the world." The Honolulu Star Bulletin says: "Miss Palmer has traveled widely and is an authority on art. She is a woman of broad culture and a speaker of much charm, a brilliant conversationalist and a clever writer." And in addition it may be said she is the world's greatest exponent of alcohol education.

A feature of the dance will be selection of playcrafters for entrance into the "Masque Members," an honorary dramatic organization of the college.

A floor show will be given and refreshments served. Miss Dorothy Alexander will dance and dances will be presented by Miss Rossie Voight and Philip McGuire. Members and friends of playcrafters are invited to attend.

Plans are made for two plays, "Heaven on Earth," and "Three Friends," to be sponsored by the playcrafters this year.

Members of playcrafters are Mae Veal, president; Charles Ratterree, vice president; Claire Gibson, secretary; Jimmy Welch, treasurer; Britt Sanders, Philip McGuire, Carl Sandiford, Rossie Voight, Kay Alling, Betty Boorstein, Edith Hughey, Bonnie Hughey, Marvin Carter, Lillian Black, Louise Sowell, Tallulah Davis, Eleanor Davis, Mrs. Robert Ellis and Raymond Styles.

Kirkwood P.-T. A.

Mrs. R. C. Middour, new president, presided. Mrs. P. A. Rich spoke on "The Value of Membership." The second grade, Mrs. Lucy Dardens' room, won attendance prize for lower grades and Miss Pearl Moore for the upper grades. Miss Louise Brazelton had charge of the musical program. The new principal, Miss Elizabeth Solvey, was welcomed and presented a corsage. The new teachers, Mrs. Fred Nash and Miss Noland, were introduced.

Georgia Tech Celebrates Her 50th Birthday

The handsome young men at top left are a group of "Joe Colleges" in the year 1891. They are members of the junior and middle classes at Georgia Tech. The middle class, which had only two members, was the first graduating class at the institution. Shown in the picture are P. C. Brooks, of Edgewood, Ga.; William Davidson, of Columbus; J. L. DeGive, Oscar Elsas, W. H. Glenn, J. D. Goldsmith, J. H. Jones, all of Atlanta; J. B. McCrary, of Senoia; J. C. Moore, of Thomasville; C. M. Pritchett, of Cartersville; T. S. Setze, of Marietta; G. G. Crawford, of Atlanta, and H. L. Smith, then of Conyers, now of Dalton.

In the adjacent picture, Dave Whiteside, of Tupelo, Miss., and Johnnie Arnold, of Baldwin, Miss., present day students, are "caught" with a gun. These Tech boys seem to think there's a professor in the offing as they examine their newly acquired pistol. Of course they aren't worried if there is. But woe to the student who was found in possession of a gun in the early days of Tech. To use the collegiate vernacular, he was quickly "kicked out of school." Early regulations at the Atlanta institution required that the student deposit all firearms with the president.

Many graduates of Georgia Tech recall the happy days they spent in Knowles dormitory—upper right—one of the first buildings to be erected on the Georgia Tech campus. The dormitory was built in 1898 at a cost of $55,000.

Georgia Tech's first architectural department is pictured at the lower left. It was established in 1908. Note that students are using chairs as drawing tables—a far cry from the modern equipment of today. Many of these students are expected to return to the campus October 7 and 8 to celebrate Tech's 50th birthday.

"You're expelled from school," snaps Professor F. W. Ajax, of Georgia Tech, as he finds Freshman Farquhar McRae, of Savannah, dismounted from his bicycle. But Freshman McRae only smiles, for he knows that the professor is only fooling. Fifty years ago, however, such an order would have been taken seriously. In those days if a student dismounted from his bicycle for walking, calling, or other purposes, except in cases of extreme emergency, he was immediately dismissed from school.

Quite collegiate-looking were the members of the Georgia Tech graduating class of 1912, pictured on lower right. Things had changed a great deal since the first graduates received their diplomas in 1891. The students still clung to the high stiff collars, however. Hundreds of other graduates who have blazed a trail in engineering and business will return October 7th to observe the 50th anniversary of the Atlanta institution.

By LUKE GREENE.

Beneath their outer coating of nonchalance, conscientious Georgia Tech students of the 1890's must have harbored a strange assortment of fears as they glided across the campus on their bicycles, attired in their high, stiff collars, their pistol-legged breeches and their pert black bow ties.

Always they were confronted with the unpleasant thought that should they dismount from their "wheels," for walking, calling or other purposes, except in cases of emergency, they would, of all things, be dismissed from school.

That was a rule—laid down in black and white in the dormitory regulations of 1896. But that was only one. There were many others equally as strict and exacting. The modern "Joe College" would shudder if he were bound by such restrictions. No doubt he would protest vehemently. He might even revolt. But the boys of the "gay nineties" obeyed, or else they got out.

Those were the days of Georgia Tech's infancy—the days when the little school was getting its start. It has grown up now. On October 7 and 8 it will celebrate its 50th birthday with an elaborate program. Still there is a certain romance to those early days which the old-timers like to recall—somewhat as the father or grandfather, who, after rounding out five decades of his life, gathers his offspring around him and holds them spellbound with the strange experiences of his youth.

Today Georgia Tech students come and go much as they like. Their principal concern is to be present at classes. But in the "90's" a student could not leave the school property without permission, except to visit the ballground or to walk on North avenue between Plum and West Peachtree streets during day hours. Requests for permission to be off limits had to be submitted in writing to the professor in charge before 8 o'clock in the morning. The student stated in his request the hours desired for departure and return and where he wished to go, giving the name and street number. If he left before the hour of departure or returned after the leave expired, he was punished by expulsion from school.

No leaves were granted for theaters or during the week for religious exercises, without written requests from parents. Students, however, were allowed to exercise on their "wheels" during vacant periods without permit, the limits being on North avenue from Plum to Peachtree and on Peachtree from Ellis street north.

But woe be unto the student who happened to be a "sleepy-head." The rising bell tolled at 6:30 o'clock every morning except Sunday. And there was no time for rubbing half-closed eyes or turning over and grabbing another brief "snooze," for rooms had to be in order, beds made up, floors swept, and students dressed at 6:55 o'clock when the inspection bell rang. Picture the student of today getting so much accomplished in a scant 25 minutes.

The bell for breakfast rang at 7:05 o'clock. Thirty minutes after supper the bell rang for call to quarters, when all students had to seek the solitude of their rooms for study. Five minutes after the call to quarters no visiting was permitted without special permission. Visiting was restricted to Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. At 10:15 o'clock all lights went out and the students had to be in bed when the final bell pealed at 10:30 o'clock.

But what about freedom within the rooms of the dormitories? Here, too, the students ran into a bulwark of regulations. Students found with playing cards in their possession were required to leave the dormitory. The same punishment was meted out to anyone found with intoxicating liquors.

Possession of firearms was also grounds for expulsion. The regulations specifically stated that "firearms should be deposited with the professor in charge."

Another strange rule declared that "students will not be allowed to use bathroom after call to quarters except on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays when bathroom will remain open until 8 p. m."

A fee of one dollar was charged for each visit of a physician, and in case a student was taken sick during the day he was supposed to report immediately to the president. Every student was also bound to patronize the laundry.

Residents of Georgia were not required to pay any tuition in the early days, although those outside of the state had to pay $150. An annual fee of $20 was levied on every student, however.

Concerning expenses, one of the first catalogues had this to say:

"Textbooks and stationery can be purchased in Atlanta on good terms. The student is advised, however, to bring such scientific books as he may possess. Board can be obtained in good families in the city at rates varying from $12.50 to $20 per month. Special arrangements can be made for fuel and lights."

Religious development was a serious consideration. Each student was required to attend some church on Sunday. Chapel exercises were held each morning and attendance at these services was mandatory.

ACT OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY, 1882.

A long series of events led to the founding of Georgia Tech. On November 24, 1882, the General Assembly passed a resolution introduced by Honorable N. E. Harris, of Macon, to consider the establishment of a technical school in Georgia. A commission of 10 was appointed to visit the leading engineering institutions of the country, and this commission reported at the summer session of the legislature in 1883.

A bill for creating the school was introduced but was defeated, receiving only 65 votes. Supporters of the measure appealed to the people of the state and it became one of the chief issues in the election of members to the next legislature. The State Agricultural Society recommended it and many other prominent organizations pressed it.

Finally the bill was introduced again by N. E. Harris and was passed at the summer session, October 15, 1885. To support the school the legislature appropriated $65,000. The first board of commissioners, appointed by Governor McDaniel, included Harris, S. M. Inman, of Atlanta; E. R. Hodgson, of Athens; O. S. Porter, of Covington, and Columbus Heard, of Greensboro.

An insight as to why the measure finally passed the legislators may be gathered from an extract from "An act to establish a technological school." It provided:

". . . That there shall be established, in connection with the state university and forming one of the departments thereof, a technological school for the education of students in the industrial arts.

". . . That there shall be one beneficiary for each representative in the General Assembly from every county in the state, selected by the board of education in each county on competitive examination, and who shall be first entitled to the benefits of said school."

The act provided for competitive bids from various sections of the state. Five cities—Athens, Atlanta, Macon, Milledgeville and Penfield—offered bids for the new school, and on October 20, 1886, Atlanta was chosen as the location.

Many prominent Atlantans had contributed to the fund for the school. Professor M. P. Higgins, of the Worcester Institute, was secured to supervise the new work, and on October 7, 1888, the installation ceremonies were held at the opera house in Atlanta.

Five acres were purchased from the Peters Land Company at the outset, and Richard Peters later donated four additional acres. The campus now comprises 44 acres. In 1891 the original shop buildings were destroyed by fire, but were replaced.

Martin Ford Amorous, of Marietta, in a recent letter to Dr. M. L. Brittain, described a meeting called by Henry Grady for the purpose of discussing the Georgia Tech project. There are very few living today who remember that meeting. Here is his account:

". . . The legislature appropriated $60,000 to establish a school of technology in the county that would subscribe the largest sum for the purpose. Governor Nat Harris was appointed chairman of a committee on location. Henry Grady called a meeting of 25 or 30 businessmen in Atlanta and told us of the project.

Somebody asked him what was a school of technology and he laughed and said, "I do not know." Mr. Jacob Elsas rose and said that it was a school to train our boys in electrical and mechanical engineering. He said, "We are selling our old raw materials at $5 a ton to states that have trained engineers who fabricate it and sell it back to us at $75 and $100 a ton and I was intending to send my sons to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology."

I then arose and said I would subscribe $1,000 to the location fund, and every man in the room, some 25 or 30, subscribed $1,000 each and we appointed a committee to solicit others. Frank P. Price was appointed to see Mr. Richard Peters for the land, and Mr. Peters donated four acres. I was appointed to see the mayor of Atlanta, and from him and the council I got a subscription of $2,500 annually as a maintenance fund. Our Atlanta total subscription was a very large sum, far more than that of any other city, and it secured the location in Atlanta.

The original Academic building, which now rests on the central hill of the campus, was erected in 1888 at a cost of $80,000. Today there are 32 buildings representing an expenditure of $3,000,000.

Other early buildings erected on the campus were the Old Shop building in 1892 at a cost of $40,000; Knowles dormitory, in 1898, $55,000; Textile building, also in 1898, $60,000, and the Swann building, 1900, $60,000.

Dr. I. S. Hopkins was the first president. While he was head of Emory College in 1886 the first shop for technical training of college men in the state was built under his direction. He served Tech until his death in 1896.

Dr. Lyman Hall, professor of mathematics at the school and a graduate of West Point, was the second president. He died in 1902.

To succeed him, the trustees elected Dr. K. G. Matheson, then professor of English at the school. Dr. Matheson continued as president until April 1, 1922, when he resigned to become president of the Drexel Institute in Philadelphia.

N. P. Pratt, chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees, served as administrative executive ad interim for four months, until the board elected Dr. M. L. Brittain, effective August 1, 1922. Dr. Brittain remains president today.

Governor N. E. Harris served as chairman of the Board of Trustees until his death, September 21, 1929. Other trustees who have served the school are D. N. Speer, W. B. Miles, George Winship, George W. Parrott, Walter M. Kelley, N. P. Pratt, Hal G. Nowell, E. R. Hodgson Sr., E. R. Hodgson

THE TVA: A WAY OF LIFE

Editor's Note: Hidden by the controversy over TVA power are other phases of the TVA's development which are even more sweeping than power in their effect on the life of America. The greatest of these is the TVA's social impact. It's extent and effects are described in the following story, the last of a series of three TVA studied by John Lear, Associated Press reporter.

By JOHN LEAR.

NORRIS, Tenn., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The most revolutionary thing about the TVA is the thing the average person hears least about.

Its friends call it social planning.

Its foes call it regimentation.

Whatever label may be affixed to it, it is directly and indirectly shaping the lives of the 2,500,000 people who inhabit the 28,381,000 acres of the Tennessee River Valley. It touches all phases of day-to-day existence, from the family pocketbook to health and education.

In essence, it is a plan for a civilization of the future, electrified and mechanized and co-operative to the greatest possible degree, set down upon a hill country large parts of which are still governed by extreme individualism with its own conception, social and economic standards.

The chasm the plan is designed to bridge is symbolized here at Norris Dam, where an ox-cart hauls meal, ground by the waterwheel of a century-old grist mill, to be sold on the broad highway across the dam's top. Oxen are still used in parts of this region, sometimes with primitive sledges. Electricity, produced at Norris by the same water which turns the grist mill's wheel, is only beginning its magic.

The success or failure of this plan will, in the long run, determine the success or failure of the whole TVA program—flood control, soil conservation, navigation, agriculture and industrial development.

If the Tennessee River folk resent the $200,000,000 that has been spent and the $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 more than may be spent on the TVA as an effort to reform them or impose new ways upon them against their will, then the TVA will fail.

If the natives accept the TVA as an opportunity to improve their lot: If they see the program as something in which they are shaping their own destinies, then the TVA can succeed.

This is true because the TVA has no police power to enforce its soil conservation program, without which both its flood control program and its agricultural program would collapse; it must depend on co-operation.

The guiding hands of the TVA have built their plan with this in mind. How they have carried it into practice can be seen in the farm program. The TVA produces a super-phosphate fertilizer in electric furnaces at Muscle Shoals, Ala. It tells the state farm schools about it. The state farm schools pass the information on to the county farm agents. The county farm agents tell the farmers, explaining that this new fertilizer should be five to six times as productive, and no more expensive than the phosphates that are now being used. It is left to the individual farmer to decide whether he wants to use the stuff.

Inducements are offered to likely prospects to test the new fertilizer as a demonstration for the neighbor's benefit. They get the phosphate free, except for freight and handling charges; they must, in turn, promise not to use it except on land planted in legumes.

From there on, it is a case of nearby farmers observing results and following suit if they consider the change profitable. If enough farmers are converted, it will mean large-scale crop rotation, soil-building through use of legumes, and flood control through soil building.

LAND SURVEYS IN TVA PLANNING.

From crop rotation, it is only a step to land surveys, which are an illuminating example of the extent of TVA planning.

To date there are 15 of these surveys, covering about 17,000 square miles in the seven states: Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and Mississippi, of the Tennessee Valley. Each includes the natural drainage basin of a small body of water, for water is the focal point of everything in the TVA. Every acre, in the survey area is classified according to soil type, through farmers co-operation. Since certain types of soil are best suited for certain crops or other use, the farmers of the area learn how their land would be most productive.

Farmer Jones may find that the reason his corn crop failed last year was that the corn was planted on tobacco land, and that the soil in his pasture lot would be fine for corn. If he does find that, he'll probably shift the corn land to tobacco and plant corn in the pasture.

Farmer Jones need not blindly accept the accuracy of so abstract a thing as a survey. Each survey area has a group of test farms, each acre planted to its best use according to soil classification. Here farmers may observe results before applying the survey to their own acres.

Eventually, if the TVA plan succeeds, the whole valley will be surveyed. This survey will become the master blueprint for the future. Crops will be planted and rotated according to its dictates (assuming the farmers will co-operate as TVA believes they will.) Woodlands will be placed where it says trees will grow best. Pastures will be sown where it says pastures will be most profitable. Cattle consequently will be bred, and dairies built, in areas it says will be most valuable when used for grazing.

In short, everything will be arranged to give each farmer the greatest possible income from his particular land.

That is the ideal as TVA envisions it. The ideal may never be realized. It is still far off. But even now, in areas not even surveyed, planning is extensive.

It gives the farmer an opportunity to rebuild his depleted soil with the super-phosphate fertilizer. By attaching strings to the fertilizer, it makes him rotate his crops. It teaches him how to terrace his hill fields to prevent their wasting away in the rain. It provides the credit machinery—through existing government agencies—for him to co-operate with his neighbors in sharing the cost of tractors to dig the terraces. It helps him in the same way to buy cows for his newly-created pastures with its big dams, it holds back flood waters from his lowlands. It sells him, on an easy installment plan, electrical machinery like water pumps and milking machines and refrigerators and had driers and insect killers. It provides power for those machines in areas where power lines are strung, and where they are not. It fosters co-operatives of farmers to build their own power distribution systems. To the educational influence of the newspapers, it has added the radio. In furtherance of sanitation, it has contributed the bathroom. It has brought so many modern city advantages to the farm that many believe it will keep farm youth on the farm.

This, remember, is a composite picture. Not all these things have been done on all the farms of the Tennessee Valley, or even on a majority of them. The plan is being accomplished piece-meal in thousands of places over a wide area

Nor is the plan accepted generally as the democratic process the TVA insists it is intended to be. It has been attacked on the grounds that it is an effort to "regiment" a people. It has been fought as "Socialistic," "Paternalistic," and therefore dangerous to traditional American Democracy. It has been assailed as a political weapon of the new deal, and as a waste of the taxpayers' money. Its power program has been labeled "Government Interference" with private business. Its phosphate program has been condemned as extravagant. Its soil conservation efforts have been criticized as an attempt at crop control, (the economy of scarcity).

TVA DENIES CHARGES.

Each of these charges the TVA denies, contending, on the contrary, that its processes have been as democratic as possible under the particular circumstances. Expressing willingness to have history decide the rightness of its position, it goes on with the plan.

The plan does not stop with the farm. It reaches into the surrounding countryside. It aims to build industry there so farm and factory may complement each other and provide reciprocal markets

It conducts research to foster development of that industry in an integrated system, which it expects to grow to tremendous proportions when the TVA dams are finished and the Tennessee river has a year-round navigation channel of nine feet from Knoxville, Tenn., to the Ohio. It reaches also into:

MUNICIPAL PLANNING—The town of Norris is a nexample. It was built to house the workmen on construction of Norris Dam. It sits in a green belt of woodland in the hills, placed that way deliberately for two reasons, (1)—Provide gardens and recreation space for the resident, and (2)—Guarantee the town against undesirable development. Streets follow the contours of the land in a graceful pattern. Shops are concentrated in one compact center for convenience. Community activities, including church services and picture shows, are concentrated in the school building.

Norris popularity has resulted in other towns asking the TVA to help them copy the model. One such town is Gatlinburg, Tenn., at the entrance to the Great Smoky Mountains. Gatlinburg is growing from a small mountain village to a booming resort because of the growth of the Great Smokies as a recreation spot. Its businessmen have appealed for a plan which will prevent unsightly mushrooming.

HOUSING—In building homes for its workers at dam sites such as Norris, the TVA has experimented with building the most practical house at the lowest cost. Its latest product, produced at Hiwassee Dam in North Carolina, costs less than $900. For that money it has built a plain, squarish house with maximum space and light for the proportions, completely electrified, including heat, fully equipped with modern plumbing, including bath. Much of the economy lies in the use of four-foot squares of wall board for exterior surfacing.

EDUCATION—This begins in TVA construction camps, where apprenticeship programs are carried into actual construction for practical effect. It continues in schools such as the one at Norris, where occupational training is an important part of the curriculum. Children attend classes at these schools in the daytime, and, at night, adult education takes over with a program including everything from community discussions of current topics to movies. TVA employes have meetings of their own, combing social and cultural contact.

CO-OPERATIVES—This form of economic organization, in which the consumer owns the business which supplies his products, is fostered by the TVA in a number of ways. It is part of the educational system, being practiced among TVA school children in purchase of school supplies. It has been used by farmers to build power lines to tap the TVA power supply. It has been adopted to make possible the joint purchase of community refrigerators, tractors and other pieces of large farm machinery which individual farmers of low income could not afford to purchase alone. It is practiced in the operation of canneries, feed mills, creameries and mountaineer handicraft factories.

LABOR RELATIONS—The TVA policy has been to encourage labor organization among its workers. It's employes are represented by both American Federation of Labor and Committee for Industrial Organization unions. There is an annual conference on wages, which are required by act of congress to be above the prevailing wage level of the surrounding country. The working day runs from 5 1-2 to 6 hours on dam construction, and to 8 hours for office workers. Working conditions are considered to include proper housing, education and recreation.

HEALTH—Preventive medicine is a fixed part of TVA construction. Small-pox and typhoid fever inoculations are as standard equipment as the concrete in the dams. County health departments throughout the valley have been stimulated by TVA interest in such things as malaria, which is widespread in this part of the country. Malaria comes from mosquitoes. The TVA is killink mosquitoes in three ways. By pouring oil on the lakes behind its dams, by spraying suffocating powder from airplanes, by raising and lowering the level of the lakes by manipulating the gates of the dams. The third method, is most effective, for its strands the mosquito larvae in the sun and bakes them to death.

NATIONAL DEFENSE—The phosphates which now go into high powered fertilizer will go into munitions in event of war. Electric furnaces at Wilson Dam are equipped to turn out many tons of incendiary war material daily. The electric power the TVA dams produce would be of tremendous value in a variety of ways for war-time purposes. Transport is always essential to a fighting machine, and completion of the TVA dams will make the Tennessee river part of the biggest and cheapest transportation system in the world.

FLOOD CONTROL—The storage of water behind Norris Dam has already saved cities like Chattanooga, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Cairo, Ill. Millions of dollars damage by lowering the crests of floods. If the effect of the TVA dam system when completed is as great as expected, serious floods will become almost unknown on the lower Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

REFORESTATION—In preventing floods, trees are important in holding back water. So the TVA is growing trees by the thousands. CCC boys plant them on denuded areas throughout the valley.

POLITICS—Organization of a League of Women Voters in the Knoxville-Norris area is one of the results of TVA's appearance. It was formed by TVA employes, partly due to the employe discussion groups TVA encourages. A less distinct but broader result is evident, the valley people have a greater awareness of the functions of government. For instance, back in the hills, where government was thought of largely in terms of revenue men whose visits were considered invasions of the individual right to make moonshine liquor tax free, the natives have learned that government also means agencies from which to borrow money to improve their scanty homes and farmland.

Thus, in many ways, the TVA's social impact is felt, directly or indirectly, all of the valley. But nowhere has it been so marked as in the resettlement of the people who lived in the path of the lakes impounded by the TVA dams.

These lakes ranged in length from 35 to 184 miles, and cover thousands of acres. The land they blot out could be acquired by condemnation, but that would entail long litigation in the courts. So TVA employes native to the countryside go into the settlers homes and explain that their land will be flooded and ask them to sell it voluntarily to the TVA.

This process of persuasion in the case of Norris Lake was a matter of weeks' work.

Some chased the TVA men off the property. Others, with a typical lack of understanding of machine-age wonders, refused to believe the water would rise that far. These stayed until the lake came up over their porches and they had to be carried off in boats, sometimes in company with squealing pigs or cackling hens captured after a slippery chase on the wet hillside. One fellow wouldn't budge until the fire on his hearth was moved with him—fire place, burning coals and all.

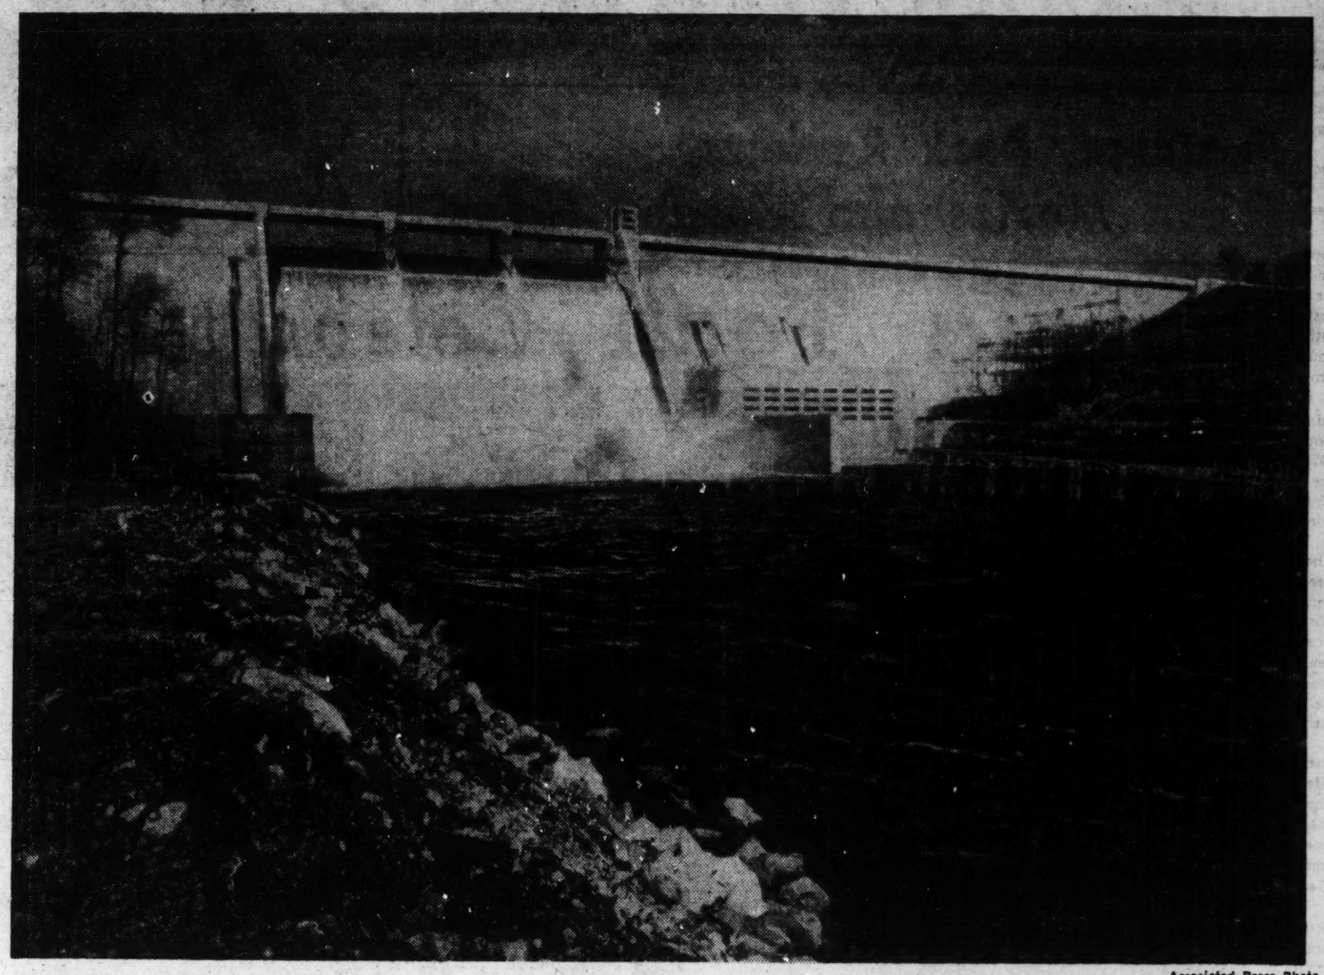

Resentment against the TVA is still strong among this backland populace. For these folk have a great nostalgia for the hills, a fear of life in any different environment than the old homesteads their families occupied for generations, even though those homes are often little better than ramshackle huts or poor log cabins.

There is little relief for this homesick feeling in the fact that the TVA sought out the best available farmland in the region for new homes for them; there is little solace in the fact that their churches and cemeteries, with thousands of bodies buried as far back as the Revolution, were moved with them. Many refused the proferred help of soil experts in choosing another farm, and went off to find for themselves poorer places that looked more like home. Some took their money and set up in the only business they knew—roadside stores.

For them, the TVA's social impact has been negative. For their more adaptable neighbors who took the TVA's advice elsewhere, it has been a new way of life—better homes, better income, new social standards—a more difficult way many times, but withal a new way.

These people are not the only class in the Tennessee Valley. Some of the best of the nation's stock is here as well as some of the worst. But their individualism is characteristic of the region. The mixture of acquiescence and antagonism among them toward the TVA makes them symbolic of the struggle inherent in the TVA program.

How far can life be planned and still be democratic?

Piedmont Park Holds Cannon Marked by Atlantan During War

By KATHRYN BARNWELL

Occupying a central position in Piedmont park are two German cannons—a large one and a small one—relics of the World War. An exciting discovery was made two years ago when A. Mannis, of 501 Boulevard, found carved upon the larger cannon, initials made by himself during the war!

At the age of eleven, Mr. Mannis left his home in Canada and sailed for Germany, where he received a large part of his education, attending schools in Cologne and Berlin.

Five years later, Germany's entrance into the war cancelled his plans for a return to Canada and his kinspeople, and brought about his serving as a cannon marker in Rheinische Metalwaren Fabrik, a German munitions factory in Dusseldorf, Rhineland!

One hundred and fifty thousand men were employed in three shifts by the factory! The routine closely resembled that in an American automobile factory, in that every man had a specialized job to perform. Mr. Mannis' job was that of marking R. H.-M. F., the factory initials on all types of guns.

As is true of any country during wartime, conditions in Germany were deplorable. Food was pitifully scarce, and bakeries were swamped with starving people begging—and often demanding—food!

In the spacious kitchen of Rheinische Metalwaren Fabrik, food was served to 10,000 men at a time. But what food! Diners were often forced to look away while eating, to avoid the sight of insects! Bean soup, states Mr. Mannis, was a delicacy! Bread, which was dark and without nutriment, was more valuable than gold!

Each week cards were issued with which citizens might obtain this bread, but they were distributed so sparingly that most of the population remained hungry.

According to Mr. Mannis, if you did not have a card you were powerless to obtain food, and he takes this statement from personal experience for once, when faced with this situation he was driven to join the mob begging in bakeries! The odd part of it is that he had plenty of money with which to buy bread—and only a card would do!

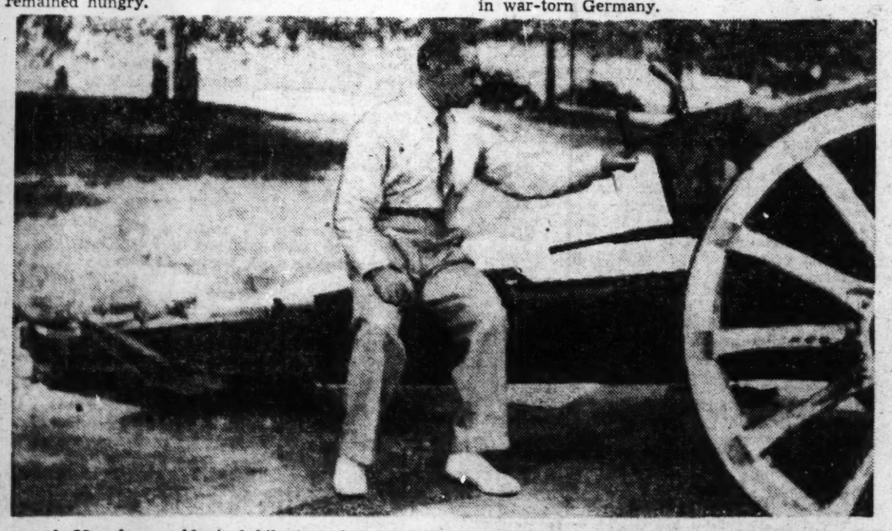

An unforgettable incident in Mr. Mannis' war experiences occurred one night about 10 p. m., shortly after he concluded his work and returned to his lodgings. He heard an insistent clamor some distance away in the streets. Unable to check his curiosity, he made his way to the scene, where he found a throng of rebellious people half-mad from starvation. Weak from lack of food himself, Mr. Mannis took part in the subsequent bakery raid, which climaxed the evening.

He was hurrying homeward, concealing a large loaf of stolen bread under his coat when he encountered a hungry guard who begged him to share his loot with him. Hunger was uniform. The guards were so hungry themselves that they were inclined to be lenient with those caught stealing food. Mr. Mannis is still appalled when he recalls his refusal to divide with the man. "But I was so hungry at the time that the misery of anyone else held no importance for me!" he confessed.

Regard the revolution, which was the aftermath of war, Mr. Mannis made the following statement: "It was worse than war, because one never knew who were his enemies and who were his friends."

Mr. Mannis returned to the United States in 1926. He has a charming wife, and a young son who receives a big thrill upon examining the cannon marked by his father.

To most of us the captured cannon in Piedmont park is merely an ornament possessing a vague background. But to one man that cannon represents, with unforgettable clarity, years' experienced in war-torn Germany.

A. Mannis, a resident of Atlanta, points out initials marked by him on a cannon, now in Piedmont park, while working in a munitions factory in Germany, during the World War. Mr. Mannis, in looking over the cannon recently, was surprised to discover his own marking on it.

A New and Strange Case of Mind-Reading Reported by Macon Scientist

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE,
Associated Press Science Editor.

(Editor's Note: New evidence on mind-reading is published today by a Georgia professor who took a subnormal boy and his mother into his laboratory for cold, scientific testing. At home the boy seemed to read his mother's mind. She was his teacher, the only friend who could hold his attention. In the laboratory, blindfolded, watched for tricks, he still read her mind. Today's announcement is the first step in a thorough investigation of mind-reading and clairvoyance, or second sight, which psychologists who heretofore have held aloof, started at this year's meeting of the American Psychological Association. The boy's story, and events at the psychological meeting which broke down the scientific fears of ridicule, are told in the article which follows.)

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 24.—The strange story of a boy who could read his mother's mind was made public here tonight.

He is exhibit "A" in a new, nationwide search for an explanation of mind-reading inaugurated two weeks ago by doubting psychologists at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association at Columbus, Ohio.

The boy is a case of oddly strained nerves. The significance of this fact is that it was another story of nerves, dropped like a bombshell into the Columbus debate, that seemingly broke down the scientific reticence to go ahead with the investigation into alleged "sixth sense."

The boy is identified only by his nickname "Bo," by Raleigh M. Drake, professor of psychology at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga. Dr. Drake tells the story in the Journal of Parapsychology.

Bo is 11, his "I. Q." 55. Dr. Drake heard of him as a child prodigy in "lightning" mathematical calculations.

This is what his family thought, until discovery was made that Bo didn't make any calculations except those in his mother's mind. She taught him at home because even at 11 he was unable to do second grade school work.

With his mother he went to Dr. Drake's laboratory for tests. There he was nervous, fidgity, apparently unable to keep his attention on anything, halting in walking, unable to run, roller skate or ride a bicycle.

Before making experiments, the scientists proceeded to eliminate certain possibilities that without either of them knowing it, mother and child were communicating in other ways than by words. One was lip movements by the mother; another unconscious whispering by her.

The boy was blindfolded, and did better then than when he could see. The pair were separated by 15 feet while keen-eared scientists listened for whispering sounds and heard none.

The experiments started with tasks familiar to Bo.

"His mother," Dr. Drake says, "would look at a word, sentence or number and ask the child to tell us what she was thinking of. On one occasion the mother read from a book which I selected as new to her (Terman's Condensed Manual) and the boy repeated a large majority of the words."

At another time Dr. Drake wrote 12 numbers, which were seen only by the mother. The boy was asked one at a time to give the number on which the mother was concentrating.

"This he did with only 15 attempts, or with only three errors," Dr. Drake reports. "At no time could I hear any auditory cues from the mother, and when I held a piece of paper directly in front of the boy's eyes, so that he could not see the mother at all, he seemed to respond even quicker."

On January 5, this year, the scientists changed to an unfamiliar test, whose results mystified everyone. They had him guess the faces of a deck of cards. He had never seen the cards, nor any cards like them, for they were not playing cards, but the E. S. P. cards used at Duke University to find out whether there is a sixth sense.

The faces of these cards bear five different symbols—cross, star, circle, rectangle and wavy lines. Bo was not told what kind of cards his mother had when she took up a pack.

The first card pulled by the mother, and seen by both the mother and the experimenter," Dr. Drake says, "was a star, which the boy immediately called a 'star.' The second card pulled was a cross which he could not call after much hesitation and repeating 'What card mother?'

"Finally the mother asked him to spell the word which was done in the following way. The first letter he gave as C, after which the mother said 'C what? And he replied 'CR.' The mother then said 'CR what' and he responded with 'O,' and so on.

Afterward, with his mother looking at these F. S. P. cards when Bo knew what the symbols were in the packs, he made averages of 16 right in each deck and of 25 cards for 23 decks; 13 right in 27 decks; and once with 14 decks he averaged 21 right. In one of these calls he got all 25 calls correct.

Most of this happened in the spring of this year. Then, for his nerves, Bo was given doubled doses of thyroxin by his physician. This remedy is a thyroid extract, given when the natural secretion of the thyroid gland is insufficient.

With the added dosage of medicine, Bo lost much, although not all, his ability seemingly to read his mother's mind. His average for a few decks was down to 8.83 cards correct. Mathematically, that is still high above chance, which would be five right, but also, mathematically, is billions of times lower than his previous performances.

The verbal bombshell at Columbus was tossed by Dr. Bernard R. Riess, assistant professor of psychology at Hunter College, New York city.

He reported on a young woman of 26. Sitting in her home a quarter of a mile from him, and never seeing the cards, or never knowing what scores she was making, she averaged 18 cards correct in each pack of 25, for 74 consecutive runs of the cards.

Dr. Riess put his figures on the blackboard at the Columbus meeting. Dark, jaw-jutting, unsmiling, he turned to the scientific audience and barked:

I do not know the explanation. I don't try to explain. I am presenting the facts. There is no possibility of error, unless the investigator himself was dishonest, and I don't think I was."

Her physician, as in Bo's case, gave her thyroxin.

Like Bo, she lost her ability to call the cards after the heavy dosage of thyroxin. She dropped all the way down to chance in her scores.

General Moseley Retires From Army Service

By JACK J. SPALDING III.

In 1893 a slim young man from Evanston, Ill., saw his first military service in strike-torn Chicago. As a member of a small local organization of Zouaves, he, with his group and soldiers of the regular army, kept peace in the city at the orders of President Grover Cleveland. His name was George Van Horn Moseley, and he had always wanted to be in the army. Two years later, he entered West Point.

On the last day of this month, the same man, now a major general, retires from the army active list after 45 years spent in his country's service in the Philippines, France, the Near East, and army posts in the United States. Two days after his 54th birthday he will turn over command of the Fourth Corps Area to Major General Stanley D. Embick, an old friend.

General Moseley, among other distinctions attained in his crowded life, once single-handledly stopped a battle between opposing forces in the 1929 Mexican revolution. For that he received the Distinguished Service Medal, and became one of the four officers of the United States Army to win the award a second time.

He has not announced his plans for the future. The ugly red brick house at Fort McPherson has been vacated, and he has taken quarters in a hotel convenient to his office in the Federal building. His friends here, and they are many, have been busy speculating on what he will do. The consensus of opinion is that the general will retire from nothing but the army, and in whatever town he chooses to live, he will play an active part in its life. They hope it will be Atlanta.

Nearly as slim as he was in 1893, and with the erectness, bearing and poise that only a military life seems to give, his years sit lightly on his shoulders. Full of honors, he is a very modest man, and talks poorly about himself. His policy, one of his aides said, has always been as much publicity for the army as possible, and none for General Moseley.

In line with his life-long habits, he refused any testimonial dinners or ceremonies when the announcement of his retirement was made public. Invitation from private individuals, civic and military organizations poured into the Fourth Corps Area office. The general was very cordial and grateful, but evidently couldn't see himself being eulogized several times a week, and feigning continued interest in chicken as served by the city's better clubs and hotels. He intends to retire as simply and quietly as he can.

When General Moseley entered West Point, our outlook was insular. We regarded the Atlantic and Pacific as great, and almost insurmountable natural barriers. We had small overseas possessions, and did not think we needed any large fighting force. But then came the Spanish war, the acquisition of the Philippines, and the extension of our frontiers to the Far East. And then the World War, and the painful realization of the lack of enough trained officers to lead our millions of fighting men. And with man's triumph in the air, flying across an ocean is little more than an exhilarating experience, hardly worthy of a postcard home. The personnel and the equipment of our fighting forces have kept pace with the times. Their expansion has been tremendous. And General Moseley has seen it all, and in a large manner aided in the expansion.

FOUR YEARS IN PHILIPPINES.

Upon graduation he received his first assignment. A second lieutenant in the cavalry, he was alone in command at the old post of Eagle Pass, Texas. For a year, he responsibly guarded his section of the troublous Mexican border. Then the Boxer Rebellion drew the eyes of the western world to China. He sailed with the Ninth Cavalry for the Far East, but on arrival at Japan, the report came that Peking had fallen, and the Ninth Cavalry was sent south to the Philippines to help quell the insurrection. Rebellious leaders of the people had withdrawn into the mountainous interiors of the half-civilized islands of the archipelago, and raised the standard of revolt against the new American regime. Under the leadership of Aguinaldo, and aided by the fierce tropical climate and impenetrable tropical growth, the Filipinos put up a stubborn resistance.

For four years General Moseley saw service there, almost constantly in the field. He campaigned against the head hunters in Mindanao, and with General Bell in Luzon. On several occasions, the young officer was sent out alone on hazardous missions, and once, accompanied by Lieutenant Curry, who later became governor of New Mexico, he went without military escort, and obtained the surrender of General Arejola, commander of all the insurgent troops in a large part of southern Luzon.

Being young, General Moseley said, was a great advantage in the Philippines. Many of the older officers could not adapt themselves to the tropical climate, and were unfit for strenuous field service.

Returning to the United States, his life followed the army peace-time pattern. He served with the cavalry in the southwest, graduated with honors from the Army School of the Line, attended the Staff College, and a year later went to the Army War College, a captain. After his graduation there, he served as a general staff officer directly under the secretary of war.

STUDIED FOREIGN ARMIES.

Shortly before the opening of the World War, he was sent to Europe to study army organizations there. In 1914 he studied both the French and German armies at close range, and observed the spectacular and portentous grand maneuvers of both armies just before they were locked in a titanic struggle.

Back in the United States, General Moseley found himself on the Rio Grande again during our troubles with Mexico. After holding several cavalry commands on the border, he was made a colonel of the National Guard and chief of staff of the Pennsylvania Division. He took the division to the Rio Grande in 1916, and remained with it until he joined the Fifth Field Artillery, part of the first division to go overseas.

Commissioned a lieutenant colonel, he sailed for France with his regiment. The regiment got its first taste of war though, before it landed, when their transport was rammed by a German pilot. With the loss of only one soldier, the by now amphibious Moseley got his men off, and remained with the ship until it was beached.

Finally landing in France, Moseley was soon a brigadier general, and remained with the First Division until General Pershing called him to Army headquarters, and made him one of the chiefs of the great general staff. For the remainder of the war he was responsible for the movement of troops, supplies and preparations for battle. During this period of hectic activity and great personal responsibility, he often represented General Pershing and the American Expeditionary Forces in Inter-Allied conferences.

ORDER OF BATH CONFERRED.

In recognition of his services, General Moseley received Britain's highest military order, the Order of the Bath from the hands of Marshal Haig. Marshal Foch awarded him the Croix de Guerre with palm for France, and the kingdoms of Belgium and Italy both made him a commander of their Orders of the Crown. France again showed her appreciation when she made him a commander of the Legion of Honor, and the United States awarded him the Distinguished Service Medal for the first time.

The Armistice signed, General Moseley was a member of a military commission sent to the Near East to report on the military situation in eastern Mediterranean countries, and to study the advisability of a proposed American mandate over Armenia. His studies of the still warring faction in that end of the earth completed, he returned to the United States, and accompanied General Pershing on his triumphal three-month tour of the nation.

Stationed again in Texas, he was soon recalled to Washington by President Harding to assist General Dawes in the organization of the Bureau of the Budget.

Returning to regular army service, he was stationed successively in Chicago and the Hawaiian Islands, and then was sent back to the Mexican border to command the cavalry division there.

Then on March 8, 1929, occurred an incident that attracted wide editorial comment, and won the Distinguished Service Medal the second time for General Moseley.

According to newspaper clippings of the day, Mexico was in the throes of another revolution. The opposing forces were battling for the possession of Juarez, across the river from El Paso, and bullets were falling in the Texas city, endangering American lives.

General Moseley crossed the International bridge and under heavy fire conferred with the Federal commander. Having reached an agreement with him, he walked between the two armies while the battle was at its height, and had a talk with the commander of the insurgents. At the suggestion of General Moseley, the battle was postponed for another day, and was to be held in a locale less likely to cause damage to the United States.

Cited by the War Department for his "initiative . . . forceful action and utter disregard for personal safety," he was decorated again with the DSM. Editorials praised him for his "courage and action," and called him "no desk fighter." A Democratic paper said his action helped restore the faith of Texas in the Republican regime.

On the heels of this coup, he was recalled to Washington, and was made executive officer to Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, and then became deputy chief of staff of the army.

After the first inauguration of President Roosevelt, he was sent to Atlanta as commander of the Fourth Corps Area, and later took command of the Third Army, including all the troops in the Fourth and Eighth Corps Areas, extending as far west as Arizona.

The Third Army maneuvers, recently completed under his command, were the largest peace-time maneuvers in our history. More than 70,000 officers and men took the field, and capably demonstrated that the Third Army can quickly assemble in an orderly fashion to protect the southern coastal and land frontier.

Asked to comment on his retirement, General Moseley said that he, like President Wilson, was looking forward to "a new freedom, when he can speak, write, and act freely."

To Speak Correctly Practice on Yourself

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Before you talk to others, learn to talk to yourself.

That, briefly is the method by which children with handicaps are being taught to speak at the Junior League Speech Clinic here at the Medical Arts building.

It's a case of imitation of the clinic instructors aimed at their own images in a mirror.

More than 90 children are serviced by the league in appointments every twenty minutes, every day in the week (except Sunday) between 8 and 4 o'clock.

The great humanitarian project is a one hundred per cent Junior League undertaking, and is under the direction of Mrs. William Ham n, a league member and a former member of the staff of the Central Institute for the Deaf in St. Louis. On the staff are Miss Charlotte Dana, speech teacher of Chicago, and Mrs. W. W. Davison, well-known Atlanta speech teacher. These are the active working staff at the Clinic with League members assisting with the work in various ways such as keeping the case histories, doing clerical work and transporting the children to and from the clinic.

The children are first taught to talk to themselves. This is accomplished by the staff teacher giving them illustration by mouth movement, and then having them practice the same before their own images in a mirror. The vowel and consonant sounds are given by the formations of the letters by different position of the mouth, tongue and lips. In this way the child not only makes the sounds, but sees himself "in action."

For instance, a child learning the vowels would learn and practice each before the mirror as follows:

For "A" the child knows that the tongue is back in the mouth, flat.

For "E" the teeth are close together, the mouth is stretched horizontally and the tongue is back of the teeth.

For "I" the jaw is opened and then forms a position similar to the one used for the "e" sound.

For "O" the mouth is wide open and the tongue is pulled back in a humped position.

For "U" an "oo" sound is necessary with lips puckered and with the tongue flat, pushed almost against the lower front teeth.

The labial sounds—such as M-P-B-T—are the first to be developed by a child. They come very easily.

At the League Speech Clinic, a special room is devoted to the instruction of children for their twenty-minute appointments. Miss Dana says "We find that after a child learns the sounds, he seems to understand that the formation of the mouth gives these sounds. The sounds are formed into words and words are associated with pictures, and with books in which pictures are shown, the child can connect the sound with the pictures and then form sentences.

"Deaf children, as well as those with speech difficulty, are benefited to a great extent by the mirror method, as lip-reading is accomplished in an easy manner. Sometimes, too, when the child knows that he is imitating the teacher he will take more interest in making faces at himself in the mirror. Thorough drill of the tongue and the lips so exercised soon becomes automatic, and the child soon learns to use both, in an easy manner."

The Atlanta Junior League's Speech Clinic is the only one in the south, and is one of the few in the nation supported by a League. The Atlanta League has pledged to support the speech clinic for three years.

Children are handled here for such cases as cleft palates, where they could not talk at all because they had been deaf since birth, and oral inactivity, which is caused by lack of co-ordination of speech muscles. Then there are those children who speak slowly and in monotones, as well as others who could say only a few words and still who stuttered and stammered.

Stuttering in children is caused by some psychological background and is therefore difficult to overcome, it is pointed out at the clinic headquarters here. Children handicapped in this manner are always jittery and shy, and correction must come in the form of relaxation and physical activity. A child must have self-confidence and self-assurance. Never should they be ridiculed or discouraged.

Wayne Wright, a 16-year-old boy from Roswell, is an excellent example of the many cases which have come before the teachers at the speech clinic. He has a cleft palate. Hitchhiking his way to the school for his lessons, the young boy, through the League's assistance, has recovered his self-confidence. He is happier and has taken such interest and shown such determination to learn to speak properly that he has been able to enroll at a local school to study electrical engineering.

According to League officials the boy was forced to leave school because of his handicap. He had become the subject of jokes and laughter by his classmates because of his inability to make himself understood. He could not take part in the activities of his playmates, and as a result he became miserable, discouraged, down-and-out and lost interest in life, family and the future.

The case of Wayne is just one of the many that have come before the League's speech clinic since its opening early in June. The classes ran until August 12, when they were discontinued for "vacation." The school reopened last week.

For making the vowel sound "A," Willie May Turner, above, illustrates the position of the mouth. Notice that the mouth is open, the tongue is back in the mouth, flat.

It's not hard to guess that Jimmie Robinson is practicing the vowel sound for "E." Notice that the teeth are close together, the mouth is stretched horizontally and the tongue is back of the teeth. The Atlanta Junior League Speech clinic teaches the methods to speech-handicapped children.

Mary Ann Langley is learning to say "O" by opening wide her mouth and pulling her tongue back in a humped position. The children at the League clinic are taught by seeing their own images in a mirror.

What Has Happened To Justice?

Widower Wins, Loses a Widow, Then Rival Dies

By PETER LEVINS.

Widower Will Querner, aged 55, first met Widow Anges Schmidt, aged 42, at a church social in the town of Temple, Texas, and, being very much in the market for a wife, he began courting her almost at once.

Mrs. Schmidt, who ran a boarding house on North Third street, seemed highly eligible to Querner, for she appeared a sensible, substantial woman, well fitted to manage his home and control his children. Moreover, he really needed a companion to care for him and to dispel the loneliness that he had known since his first wife's death a year before. As for himself, he considered that he had much to offer—even if there were six children.

However, from the widow's point of view, there was a complication in what otherwise might have been a simple situation. Mrs. Schmidt was already in love with her star boarder, Dr. A. M. Clifford, for many years the countryside's leading veterinarian. She had been in love with him a long while. She hoped that, sooner or later, he would marry her.

Mrs. Schmidt during the courtship never revealed to Querner the true state of her affections. Indeed, she did not encourage his suit until about a year and a half after their first meeting. Then, suddenly, she told him that she would marry him.

Querner did not know that her decision was the result of spite against Dr. Clifford. Mrs. Schmidt did not know that the Querner children, four of whom lived with their father in a fine brick house on Main street, were unanimously opposed to the match. Querner could think only of his great triumph in winning the widow—she could think only of how furious this would make the doctor.

They were married September 16, 1933.

After the ceremony the plump, big-breasted bride continued to operate her boarding house, and Querner continued with his daily work at the local repair shops of the G. C. & S. F. Railway Company. Blissfully ignorant of the true state of affairs, Querner did not know that, on the Tuesday following the marriage, there was an emotional meeting between Agnes and Dr. Clifford at the boarding house.

The veterinary, it appeared, had reacted as she had hoped he would. He was both hurt and angry at what she had done. He begged her to divorce Querner and marry him. He told her that he loved her, that he could never love any other woman, and that he would give her anything he had in the world if she would only terminate this unfortunate marriage.

Agnes Schmidt Querner was greatly moved.

A few weeks later Querner came home from work to find a note on the dresser in the bedroom. It read:

"Dear Will:

"I am going back to the boarding house. I'm afraid this is a mistake. The children and I do not get along so well, but this is not all. Don't try to see me and don't come after me."

The husband by this time had an ideas what she meant when she wrote "but this is not all." He had begun to suspect her strong attraction for the tall, powerfully built veterinary. Undoubtedly that was what she meant—she had gone back to her old love . . . cruelly deserted him, her husband.

Querner's associates soon noticed the change in him. He talked little, but there was no mistaking that he was burning with jealousy and hatred.

In the days following Agnes' desertion, Querner took to watching the boarding house. He saw his wife come and go. Sometimes he saw Clifford. Finally he could stand the separation no longer, and he telephoned the boarding house.

So pitifully did he plead with Agnes that she agreed, during his call, to see him at the boarding house the following Sunday, November 5. His hopes ran high, only to be dashed again when she told him Sunday that they would have to be divorced because she loved Dr. Clifford and intended to marry him.

"I suppose I never should have married you, Will," she said with belated understanding. "It was all a mistake."

"Then why did you marry me?" he cried.

"I don't know. I was mad at the doctor. I wanted to teach him a lesson. Go away, Will—and if you ever loved me, don't come back."

Querner went away.

But Tuesday night he returned, walking into the house without knocking. He heard voices in the front room. He pushed the door open—and saw Agnes and the doctor sitting together on a lounge.

They jumped up. Clifford advanced to settle with the intruder. Agnes seized his arm and drew him back. Then she pushed Querner out of the house.

"I told you to stay away!" she exclaimed. "There is no good in your coming here, Will!"

Querner did not resist. Even in his rage he did not care to risk a hand-to-hand encounter with his rival.

Two more days passed. Then, on Thursday, the 9th, Agnes Schmidt Querner telephoned Sheriff George D. Zivley that her star boarder had disappeared.

On the evening before, she said, the vet had received a telephone call at about 9 o'clock from a man who gave the name of Hill. The man had said that his cow was sick and needed immediate attention. Would Dr. Clifford meet him downtown?

Dr. Clifford, she continued, had refused to meet Hill downtown, saying that if Hill would come for him he would see what he could do for the cow. A few minutes later Hill, who had said he lived on the Seaton road, an unpaved road leading through rich farm land, arrived in front of the boarding house and honked his horn.

"Did you see this man?" the sheriff asked.

"No. He stayed in the car. It was a Model A Ford with all the curtains up."

Dr. Clifford, she said, had gone off with Hill and had not returned.

Zivley and a deputy, Jesse Vannoy, drove out the Seaton road to see if any one had seen Dr. Clifford. No one had. Nor did anyone know of a man named Hill living in the vicinity. Nor was there a sick cow anywhere in the region.

Several others besides Mrs. Querner had seen the doctor get into the curtained Ford. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fender, who roomed in the boarding house; and a young couple who had seen the car circle the block several times before stopping.

Kidnaping was not considered, but when Mrs.Querner reported that the doctor always wore an expensive diamond ring, and usually carried from $40 to $100 on him, the authorities wondered whether he could have been waylaid and robbed. Therefore searchers combed the country, looking in old wells, deserted barns and other possible depositories.

Meanwhile gossip had involved Querner as a likely suspect. But as yet there was nothing against the railroad repair man—simply suspicion.

By Saturday evening Sheriff Zivley had about exhausted all the routine possibilities, so he declined to search the Querner dwelling for clues. He and his deputies gave the house a systematic going-over in the absence of the suspect, probing mattresses, looking under rugs and behind pictures, etc.

Finally they tackled the basement.

Zivley was examining an old clothes bag, filled with cast-off garments, when a deputy suddenly appeared with a freshly washed pair of overalls. He pointed to dark stains on the legs.

"I found them under some clothes upstairs," said the deputy. "And Jesse's found a heavy iron bar out in the garage—an old car axle that's just been cleaned with gasoline!"

"Maybe we're making some progress," the sheriff remarked, regarding a torn pair of green-striped white drawers he had just pulled out of the clothes bag. "I reckon we'll have to arrest Querner and see if we can get anything out of him. Besides, I don't want him to leave town until these stains on the overalls have been analyzed."

But the steel-eyed suspect remained unmoved through a severe grilling. "'Taint nothin' but red paint on them overalls," he told his questioners. "You boys have popped off the handle and arrested the wrong man."

They tried to trick him by showing him a false report stating that the stains were human blood. But he failed to crack. "It's paint—not blood," he insisted.

And so it was paint. After the chemist's report arrived, Sheriff Zivley saw that there was nothing to be done but turn Querner loose. He walked jauntily out of the station house.

Thereafter, however, the police kept a close check on his movements.

The sheriff had, of course, asked him concerning his whereabouts on the night Clifford disappeared. Querner had replied that he was home asleep, that he had gone to bed at 9:30 and remained there until the next morning. Neighbors backed up his alibi to the extent that they had seen no lights burning in the house after 9:30.

The following Monday Hoyt Brundrum, a farm hand, discovered the body of Dr. Clifford.

Brundrum had been plowing on the Smith farm, near the Seaton road section. He found the body after his mules had balked, refusing to go forward toward a spot close by a fence. The doctor had been struck twice on the head, once on the crown and once at the base of the skull, with a blunt instrument. His ring and money had not been disturbed.

Again Will Querner became the No. 1 suspect in the mystery.

With the finding of the body, evidence began to pour in, for witnesses now came forward to link Querner to the scene. W. C. Stevens, a boilermaker in the employ of the G. C. & S. F. Railway Company, gave very damaging evidence against the suspect.

Stevens, whose home was about 30 feet off the Seaton road, said that on the Wednesday morning before Dr. Clifford disappeared he saw Querner drive by about sun-up. Stevens, feeding his chickens at the time, said that he recognized his fellow employe immediately

"I saw him again 15 minutes later," he told the sheriff. "He was headed back to town. And on Thursday I saw him twice more, once when he drove out the Seaton road and again when he headed back to town."

"You're positive it was Querner?"

"Yes. After all, I've worked in the same shop with him for 10 years. I might have been mistaken if I'd seen him only once, but I saw him four times."

Another witness, Lee Hawkins, manager of an oil company, reported that he had seen Querner twice while he was riding one of his horses on the Seaton road. The first time was on the Sunday before the doctor disappeared, the second was after the disappearance.

Querner was arrested again on November 14—and again he showed no fear.

"You're a lot of idiots," he told the officers. "What have I done to be hounded this way? Because I loved the woman, and she left me, you hound me. I won't stand for it!"

That night Zivley and a deputy took the prisoner to an undertaking establishment. As the three entered a dark room there were muffled sounds of heavy blows. A man groaned horribly, and there was the sound of a body falling. Then the lights went on.

There lay the battered body of Dr. Clifford.

Querner gasped and shrank back. His normally ruddy complexion turned ashen. But he wouldn't talk. Nothing they said to him could make him utter a word.

Zivley and his brother officer, thoroughly worn out themselves by the act, returned their prisoner to his cell. They realized that, if some break did not come soon they would again have to release the man they were now convinced was guilty of this murder.

The next morning the sheriff called in Deputy Vannoy and declared they would go out to the Smith farm and make a final search of the field where the body was found. "We probably won't find anything," he said, "but there's nothing else we can do. Querner seems to have us licked."

They drove out and beat around the dense bushes for about an hour. It was a fruitless hunt.

"Well, let's go," said Zivley. "There's nothing here."

They headed for their car. At the edge of the fence row, near the road, Zivley stumbled and fell.

What he had fallen over was a wooden stake. He picked it up and saw, tied to the stake a bit of green-striped white cloth.

"I saw some cloth just like that recently," he remarked.

The officers hastened at once to the Querner home. Zivley went directly into the basement and retrieved the cast-off pair of trunks he had previously noticed. Then they visited the railroad shop, where they gathered several pieces of pine lattice similar to the stake.

Presently, laboratory experts reported that the fragment of cloth had been part of the cast-off trunks; and that the wooden stake had been sawed from a piece of lattice found in the repair shop.

Sheriff Zivley now confronted Querner with his discoveries, and the result was the following statement, which he signed:

"I went up there (the boarding house) on Tuesday night, November 7. I pulled the door open and she and Dr. Clifford were sitting together. She said, 'I thought I told you not to come up here again.'

"After driving about town on Wednesday night, November 8. I went to bed. After a while I woke up and phoned Dr. Clifford. I told him I wanted him to go on a call.

"I told him my name was Hill. He said 'all right.' I got in my Ford with the top and curtains up and drove to the front of his house. I honked and he came out and got in.

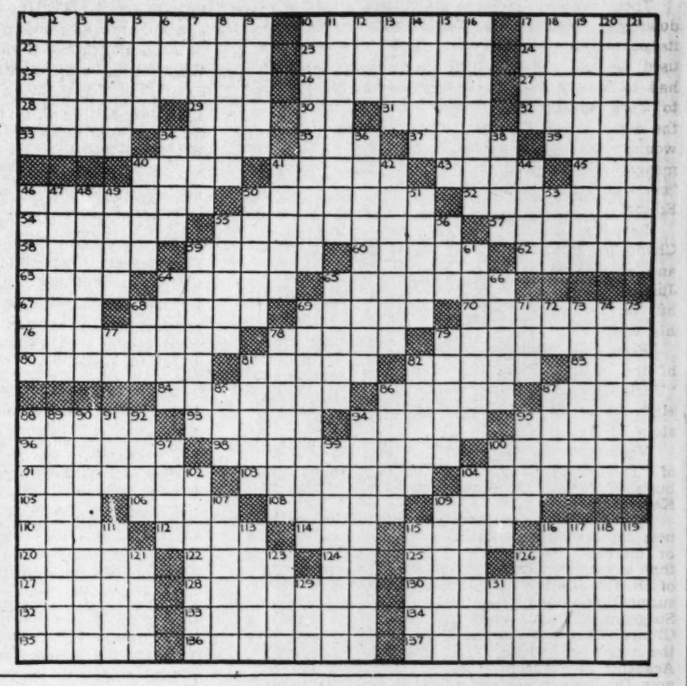

"He asked me if my name was

Atlantan Writes Stirring Human Novel

Splendid Southern Story Will Reach Human Hearts

FOX IN THE CLOAK. By Harry Lee. Macmillan Co., New York. 557 pp. $2.50.

"Fox in the Cloak," the stirring and human novel by Harry Lee, Atlanta author, is released today by the Macmillan Company and is another contribution to the list of local authors whose books have gained national acclaim.

The story is laid in Atlanta, a point which gives added interest to the book here, and the leading character is Neil Glass. Mr. Lee has given an excellent word picture of the hero by a clearness of discription which gives the reader a thorough understanding of his desired career. Neil grows from boyhood to maturity under the easy style of writing which Mr. Lee has mastered in his book.

Struggling first to master the foundation for his career as an artist, Neil goes through the trials and tribulations of early school days, his adolescent worries, his loneliness at times, his first "date," his series of puppy loves and most of all the unsettled condition of his family, his father Alec, losing his jobs, through excessive drinking, his mother's struggle to find means to hold her family together.

All these mental worries have their effect on Neil, but they do not shake his stubborn faith in his future as a famous artist. His shyness and his egotism are dominant factors characterizing his personality, and the author has treated them with an understanding and genuine outlook which give and make Neil alive throughout the 557 pages of the book.

"Fox in the Cloak" grows as Neil grows, and his absorbtion of life in Atlanta and his career in artistic circles has been given the reader with unusual and interesting treatment by the author. His attention to details, his discription of small events, such as incidents which happen in any home, give the reader an insight into his realistic talent, and make the problems of Neil those of the reader.

Mr. Lee has written a splendid book, one which is destined for wide acclaim and which will reach every human heart because of its naturalness. It grows and becomes more powerful with each page and is one which must be on the "must" list for fall.

Story of Famed River.

SUWANNEE RIVER. Strange Green Land. By Cecile Hulse Matschat. Farrar & Rinehart, Inc., New York. 309 pp. $2.50.

Here is another "must" book for Georgia libraries.

Though only half of it lies within the bounds of Georgia, the Suwannee river, famed in song, is as truly Georgian as are Rabun Gap and Tybee Light. Countless thousands, however, think of the Suwannee only as a legendary stream born in the Tin Pan Alley of another day.

To readers of this, the most recent in the series of books on the rivers of America, the Suwannee will become at once a vivid reality, as it should be.

The Suwannee has its origin in the northern rim of the great Okefenokee swamp, within a few miles of Waycross, wends its leisurely way through south Georgia's "Land of Trembling Earth," quickens its pace as it saunters across Florida's palmetto-studded westlands, and empties into the Gulf of Mexico. Along its winding route, it passes through some of the most beautiful lands of the two states—some of the wildest and most mysterious. Of these lands, particularly of the vast Okefenokee, the author has written a book that is magnificent in its breadth and sweep, embracing, as it does, a vast store of lore and legend known to but few persons.

The author is to be pardoned if she devotes most of her story to the mysterious Okefenokee, for there lies the real heart of the Suwannee. There, too, in what is now a national wildlife refuge, is a treasure house of flora and fauna unmatched in the nation—a land forgotten and yet unforgotten, rich in both human and wild life drama.

Until one has read "Suwannee River," one will have missed much of the beauty that is south Georgia.

Seeing Georgia.

FROM FLORIDA TO THE FAR WEST. By R. E. L. Farmer, Bartow, Fla. 132 pp. $1.

For those unable to travel, for those in quest of information about the nation in which they live, or as an excellent supplementary reading assignment for school children, "From Florida to the Far West" provide a veritable storehouse of fact and lore seldom if ever found in a single volume.

This book, surprisingly simple, is the log-book of a party of Floridans—a chronological diary of their journey through 11,000 miles of the south, the southwest, the Pacific coast states, and the northwest. Its author, a native Virginian but for the last 30 years a Floridan, is an inveterate traveler, and a strong advocate of state parks and director of vocational education, respectively, explain and clarify these relationships in their opening chapter.

Ensuing chapters deal with forest industries, chiefly lumber, paper pulp and naval stores; the growth and identification of southern trees; means of protecting forests against human, insect and disease depredations; the profession of forest management; problems of reforestation and conservation, and the aims and objectives of far-flung forest agencies.

The writers have prepared a notable book which should be on the library shelves of every lover of the south and every student of southern natural resources. It is comprehensive and yet eminently readable.

Story of Complications.

SUNRISE BY REQUEST. By Ethel Owen. Lee Furman, New York. 256 pp. $2.

Remember Ethel Owen's "Romance in the Rain?" Those who read it found a novel filled with intense beauty, and, having been introduced to this charming and refreshing writer's work, will welcome her newest story.

"Sunrise by Request" brings to the reader a story that is marked by its poignancy, its tenderness, and the writer's depth of understanding of love-awakened hearts. It is a story of Beatrice Minotte and of Gregory Arnold, artist turned businessman. It is a story filled with complications which often threaten the course of young love, but which lead to a conclusion that is satisfyingly happy.

Stirring Story.

THIS WAS SANDRA. By Beren Van Slyke. Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York. 360 pp. $2.50.

This was Sandra. . . .

There can be no mistaking of genius, and when genius pours into a novel such as this the red blood of real living, and sets it to simmering over the deep fires of human understanding, then a thing of beauty and richness and power is certain to result. With such a story to tell, it is easy to understand why Beren Van Slyke has produced something close akin to a masterpiece.

The writer dares not tell of Sandra in self-chosen words. The story is one of such tenderness, so closely linked with the linking of two lives, that only Laurie could tell it. And Laurie, sister of Sandra, breathes into it telling a charm and a beauty not easily matched.

"This Was Sandra," is a story of these sisters, widely separated by age but strangely akin in spirit, but chiefly of Sandra—beautiful actress, with tragedy somewhere in her past, courage ruling her present, and dreams guiding her unmistakably into an unknown future.

None who reads this stirring novel will ever forget it.

An Unusual Story.

ROOTS IN THE SKY. By Sidney Meller. MacMillan Co., New York. 579 pp. $3.

Sidney Meller has written "Roots in the Sky" with sincerity and understanding. Through abundant knowledge of and sympathy for his people the author develops the characters in this book into vivid alive personalities.

Elchanan Drobnen, a Russian scholar, with his wife and child, Chana and Miriam, flees to America and settles in a small west coast city. In this strange "wilderness" five other children are born. The Drobnens experience cycles of poverty and wealth, failure and success.

Chana's life is a struggle to imbue orthodox customs into the lives of her children, to find one male in her "pot of children" destined to assume her husband's work. Her devotion to her Rabbi husband who remains untouched and ignorant of things unholy, is phenomenal.

Miriam, Dave, Leo, Estelle, Irving and Aba, the Drobnen children, are torn between two worlds—the new with its force and pull outside the home, the old with its traditions and heritage within. Though Elchanan rarely understands events influencing his children, his advice amazes with its innocence, his religious counsel, with its purity. Even the landlord feels Elchanan's "roots are in the sky, seeing practical people from a different angle than they see themselves."

This book is impressive in its pathos and humor, in its development of each character amid the "wilderness of America" so chaotic to the Drobnen heritage.

Encyclopedic In Scope.

SOUTHERN FORESTRY. By Charles N. Elliott and M. D. Mobley. Turner E. Smith & Co., Atlanta. 494 pp.

Translate the south's estimated 193,000,000 acres of forest lands into terms of paper, lumber, structural timber, crossties, poles, piling, fence posts, fuel wood, naval stores and other products and you will begin to grasp the importance of the tremendous industry in Dixie woodlands.

Never, as in the last few decades, has the nation been so aware of the natural wealth in its forests, and of the growing and vital need for conservation and reforestation. This realization has brought into being a new profession and the consequent need for a highly specialized branch of training.

Two of the south's foremost men in this profession, aided by others also ranking high in forestry and forest management, have produced here a book that is encyclopedic in its scope.

Forestry is not alone a knowledge of the trees such as is taught the average Boy Scout. It is closely linked and allied with agriculture, with soil conservation, with wildlife preservation and with recreation. And Elliott and Mobley, Georgia's director of ROOTS: Their Place in Life and Legend. By Vernon Quinn. F. A. Stokes and Company, New York. Illust. 230 pp. $2.

An alive and interesting history of roots of all shapes, sizes, origins and temperaments in which history and legend play no small part. For a prosaic subject, the life story of the root has been developed into a remarkably interesting and instructive story under Mr. Quinn's talented hand. The book is profusely illustrated with the drawings of Marie A. Lawson.

Fanciful Juvenile.

ZNIP, ZNAP AND ZNUP. A Story About the Zizzorbirds of the Zun. By Frank Wadsworth Jr. Bruce Humphries, Inc., Boston. 138 pp. Illust. $2.

The Zizzorbirds became discontented with living on the Zun and longed for more knowledge of the Earth, Zol's favorite relative. Old Zol, frisky and humorous, delighted in flinging Znip, Znap and Znup into the Milky Way. When the Zun birds flew-swam to the earth, they landed in Africa.

Since these birds were very unusual and were capable of doing peculiar things, they had delightful adventures. Their wing-hands, zizzorbills and Zun-magic proved helpful in discovering oddities on the earth. After traveling in Africa and America the Zizzorbirds decided the Florida Everglades an ideal place to live and built ball-homes.

Children and grown-ups will delight in this clever fanciful tale of "Znip, Znap and Znup." Many geographical facts are ingeniously told as Frank Wadsworth relates his story in words and pictures.

Atlanta Sculptor Scores Again

By ELLEN ST. JOHN BARNWELL.

Here and there on Atlanta's oldest streets are old-fashioned carriage blocks—now useless relics of horse-and-buggy days. One on West Peachtree had stood in its place for many years. It bore the number of the house in front of which it had been placed. Times had changed. It had seen the street turn from mud to cement and even the numbers on the houses altered. The carved initials on the side meant nothing now—the original owners had long ago moved.

Then Steffen Thomas, noted sculptor, walked down West Peachtree, saw the stone—and also saw its possibilities. Just that very morning he had used the last piece of marble in his studio. He had to have a block of marble, Georgia marble, to work with. The newspapers' headlines cried the death of the greatest scientist of the age. He would make a bust of the great inventor. For a meager sum he secured that stone and soon the "carriage block" was a detail likeness of Thomas Edison!

Recently, Thomas has completed the bust of Chancellor Snelling, of the University of Georgia, and at present he is working on that of Chief Justice Russell. This is his latest scoring success, but he has many other interesting art works to his credit.

From his memorial shaft in Piedmont park, of the Atlanta Pioneer Women, to the bust of "Uncle Remus," of story-book fame, in Fulton High school, Steffen Thomas is telling the lasting story of Georgia.

Visitors to the state capitol see the bust by him of "The Poppy Lady," Miss Moina Michael, and busts of former Governor Talmadge and Mayor Key, at the city hall.

Many of Georgia's great have had their likeness captured by Steffen Thomas in wood, bronze or marble. Perhaps Dr. Long traveled farther than any other. Steffen Thomas had done a plaque of Dr. Crawford W. Long, discoverer of ether as a surgical anesthetic, for the American College of Surgeons, Chicago, when the Southern Society of Clinical Surgeons had him do another plaque of the renowned doctor, and sent it to the Royal Academy of Surgeons in Edinburgh, Scotland. So now Dr. Long is not only in Chicago, established as the anesthetic discoverer, but is also in Edinburg, Scotland.

Although much of this sculptor's work is in marble or bronze, he has made wood assume "personality." The simplest materials become pieces of art in his ingenious hands. In his studio there is a head of President Roosevelt, hewn out of a huge Georgia stump. Three times a life size, it bears a clear resemblance. A few years ago a photograph was taken of Thomas with this completed work and printed here and there.

"I didn't expect the picture to have a wide circulation," said Mr. Thomas, "so imagine my amazement when in one morning's mail a clipping of the picture fell out of my father's letter! And my father at the time was in Germany!"

It seems the photo was reproduced in a German newspaper and instead of the artist's name there was written in German beneath the picture, "Famous American sculptor." His father had recognized his own son's picture and sent it to him.

Why did this prominent sculptor happen to select Atlanta for his permanent home? Born in Bavaria, educated in the Royal Academy of Fine Arts, Munich, he graduated with honors from the School of Applied Arts, Nuremberg, and since has traveled widely. It is interesting to know why, out of all the cities, he chose Atlanta. Even across the sea the attraction of Stone Mountain had a magnetic power. He, who can visualize warm, living people from a block of cold, solid stone, had dreams of some day completing the memorial on the mountainside.

Silently, he worked out a plan, a design that he thought pleasing and appropriate. Now that plaster cast interpretation of the southern heroes, first thought of in far-away Bavaria, is in his busy studio. He came to the new country of promise and adventure and traveled from coast to coast. During this time he did busts of numerous college presidents and celebrities in one city and another. but the lure of Stone Mountain won, and he arrived in Atlanta with ambition and ability.

He married an Atlanta girl, formerly Sarah Douglas, settled here permanently and became an American citizen in 1935. Now in the front yard of their studio home is a dollhouse where their two little children play. And decorating the play yard is a statuette from "Daddy's" own hands!

Located at 1209 Williams street, N. W., it is a simple studio constructed by the artist to fit his needs. A half block from busy Fourteenth street, it has the quietness of the country. Few houses are near by. The studio is on the ground floor, windows all about; upstairs, his home.

In the studio he works out the likeness of the person to be made into the statue. The model is created in either wax or clay. After making a clay model of the subject, the Thomas technique follows after that of the great Benvenuto Cellini, bronze caster, who surpassed his rivals in Italy nearly 400 years ago.

The art of bronze work reached a pinnacle at that time, and has not been improved upon since. The outline of procedure is as follows: The model perfected, a mixture of plaster of paris with water is poured over it. This sets quickly, hardens. When taken apart in two sections, like a shell, with the likeness imprinted on the inside, it is ready to have the bronze poured in.

In the plaster applied to the clay model Thomas always pours in the bronze, about a fourth of an inch from the clay model, a red or blue dye. This is to show him later on in the last step of the process, when he cracks off the plaster, that he is coming to the bronze statue underneath. It is a warning signal to go easy.

Steffen Thomas takes his hardened cast, which he has modeled in his studio, to a little one-room workshop built at the side of his home. Here he bakes the cast in an oven above ground. If it is very large or heavy, he has improvised a tiny "flat car" on rails that transfers the baked plaster cast from the furnace to the sand pit a few feet away.

"The molds are buried in the sand," explains Mr. Thomas, "so that all sides will be supported and will not break when the heavy liquid bronze poured into the exposed opening seeps into every crevice of the mold."

There are three furnaces sunken in the ground where the bronze is cooked. The smallest holds 9 pounds and the largest 220. Although most artists send their molds to a central foundry in New York to have the bronze poured in and the statue completed, Mr. Thomas is one of the few in the south, the only one in Atlanta, who finishes his own statues according to the procedure he himself has worked out.

"To make the bronze in the liquid state it must be heated to 1900 degrees," continues Steffen Thomas. "I attach small pipe-like pieces, called 'cates,' to the mold so that the gases of the molten metal can escape. The vents are important—without them the whole plaster mold might explode."

Remaining in the sand pit for fully 48 hours, the mold is ready to be dug up, carefully removed and the solid statue minutely polished, chiselled in detail. "The vitalness of the original artist putting on these finishing touches," points out Mr. Thomas, "is that most statues are finished by craftsmen who, although they do the work well, do not know the original plans of the artist and likely have never seen the person the statue is to represent. Often in these last-moment touches, a likeness might be destroyed."

Steffen Thomas caused much interest in the music world when he was commissioned to do in bronze Jose Iturbi, the famous Spanish pianist-conductor. Eager to capture more of the personality and character of the celebrity, he thought of a brand-new method. Instead of a "sitting" from which Mr. Thomas was to get the sketch, he made it while the conductor was rehearsing his orchestra!

Placing himself back of the violin section, he had two assistants supply him with the materials—for this sketch was not made with pencil on paper, but molded out of supple, wet clay! That took place in New York, June, 1936.

During the two hours' rehearsal the conductor's baton rose and fell. All was animation. But swift, expert fingers were catching the rhythm of the motion, and by the time the musicians were ready to put down their instruments Thomas had completed a remarkable likeness—even the right hand is extended, poised, holding the baton.

The Atlanta sculptor was also chosen to do the bronze bust of George Washington Carver, that remarkable late negro scientist, and the work was placed in Tuskegee Institute before the doctor's death recently. "At the unveiling ceremony," Mr. Thomas said, "Carver wore the same suit that he had worn when he graduated from school."

And so, work by Atlanta's Steffen Thomas goes out to the world. From his present work—the likeness of Chief Justice Russell—to the bust of a philosopher in Osaka, Japan, and away across to a marble statue in Nuremberg, Bavaria, the brilliant sculptor scores again and again.

Steffen Thomas, Atlanta sculptor, stands beside the finished tablet recently erected in Piedmont park in memoriam to the Pioneer Women of Atlanta.

GEORGIA TECH CELEBRATES HER 50TH BIRTHDAY

Jr., George G. Crawford, L. W. Robert Jr., Floyd Furlow, E. R. Black, Harrison J. Baldwin, J. S. Akers, John W. Grant, George H. Carswell, W. H. Glenn, John H. Porter, Frank Freeman, G. M. Stout, Harrison Hightower and John S. Cohen.

THREE CLASSES IN 1889.

In 1889 there were only three classes at Georgia Tech—the "apprentice" or freshman class, the junior class and the middle class. The middle class, composed of two members—G. G. Crawford, of Atlanta, and H. L. Smith, of Conyers—constituted the first graduating class. Smith holds the distinction of receiving the first diploma from Tech in 1891. He now lives in Dalton.

Members of the junior class were P. C. Brooks, of Edgewood, Ga.; William Davidson, of Columbus; J. L. DeGive, Oscar Elsas, W. H. Glenn, J. D. Goldsmith and J. H. Jones, all of Atlanta; J. B. McCrary, of Senoia; J. S. Moore, of Thomasville; C. M. Pritchett, of Cartersville, and T. S. Setze, of Marietta.

J. S. Moore was the first graduate to have a grandson receive his diploma from Tech. Jimmy Moore, the grandson, was a member of the football team two years ago.

As evidence of the rapid growth of the institution, in 1889 there was a total of only 139 students with only one from out of the state. Today there are 2,700 students from 30 states and nine foreign countries.

In addition to President Hopkins, who was also professor of physics, the first faculty was composed of Lyman Hall, professor of mathematics; William H. Emerson, professor of chemistry; J. S. Coon, professor of mechanical engineering; Milton S. Higgins, superintendent of the machine shop; Rev. Charles Lane, professor of English language and literature, and R. B. Shepherd, professor of free-hand drawing and mechanical engineering. Today there are 160 members of the faculty.

The first degree to be offered in 1888 was a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering. Others which followed were B. S. in electrical engineering, 1896; B. S. in civil engineering, 1896; B. S. in textile engineering, 1899; B. S. in chemical engineering, 1901; B. S. in chemistry, 1906; B. S. in architecture, 1908; B. S. in engineering courses, cooperative plan, 1912; master of science, 1922; B. S. in ceramic engineering, 1924; B. S. in aeronautical engineering, 1930; bachelor of science, 1934, and bachelor of science (industrial management), 1934.

In 50 years the Georgia Tech has grown from obscurity to one of the leading technological schools of the United States. Its progress has been typical of real American advancement. It has come up the hard way, but alumni who return for the 50th birthday party October 7 can lift their voices in pride as they join with young and old in singing, "'Ramblin' Wreck From Georgia Tech. . . "

In America, Women Live Longer Than Men

By LUKE GREENE.

Caring for the children may be tiring at times but what mother would exchange these precious moments with her baby for her husband's work? Mrs. E. C. Davis Jr., and her young son, E. C. III, illustrate this angle.

American women will continue to have the last word—they now live four years longer than men.

The average length of life in the general population in 1936 was 64.36 years for white females, and only 60.18 years for white males, according to the latest computations by statisticians.

Is there any reason why members of the weaker sex should lord it over the stronger and more hardy males? W. B. Baker, Emory University biologist, thinks there is.

"Men spend a greater part of their lives on the outside and are naturally exposed more than women," he says. "Then, too, they engage in more dangerous occupations. A large number of them work in industries where the possibility of death or injury is greater, while others labor in lumber camps or travel the highways in trucks or cars.

"On the other hand, the activities women participate in are more protective," he continued. "They spend more of their time in the home and, consequently, are not subjected to as many dangers as men."

Lack of financial responsibility was given as another reason why women survive the men, whose duty it is to provide the necessities of life for the rest of the family.

The biologist pointed out, however, that the death rate among boy babies is higher than among girl babies. After they reach adulthood, however, the situation reverses.

Statisticians explained that the average length of life for the general population fell by about one-half year in 1936 as compared with 1935. They are little disturbed about this slight recession, however, since the average longevity has gained 11.57 years since the turn of the century.

In 1901 the average length of life was 49.24 years as compared with 60.81 in 1936. During this period white females have shown greater improvement than white males, the gain for the women having been 13.28 years and for the males 11.95 years.

Although the average gains in length of life have slowed down considerably, statisticians do not see any reason for thinking the country has fully attained the best average length of life possible.

During the period from 1932 to 1936 the average longevity of the white population was almost stationary. It fluctuated between 60 and 61 years for white males and 64 and 65 years for while females.

"That we have not reached the optimum should be obvious," the statisticians declare, "when we consider that all the advantages of modern medical science are not yet as widely available as they can be with proper organization."

Musical, Action, Drama Films Playing at Downtown Theaters

'Too Hot To Handle' at Loew's; 'Sing You Sinners' at Fox; 'Racket Busters' at Paramount; 'Lady Objects' at Rialto; Western at Capitol.

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Remarkable, these movies. In one night's round, seeing the new shows that we might give you an opinion with which to disagree, we jump from the South American jungles to a California race track, thence to the midst of New York's racket war. And by including a couple of hours during the afternoon, we also sat in on a good murder trial.

Thus, via movie, we bettered considerably the round-the-globe time of Mr. Howard Hughes and were well entertained to boot.

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy are starred in "Too Hot to Handle" at the Grand but the acting honors are claimed by Walter Pidgeon, Leo Carrillo and Walter Connolly. In justice to Miss Loy, it should be said her part was not one giving the actress much chance.

Fred MacMurray outsings Bing Crosby in "Sing You Sinners" at the Fox. Most refreshing about this picture is the lovely new actress, Ellen Drew, who appears as Fred's girl. It's a story of a small town family and the comedy is entertaining. Neither "Too Hot to Handle" nor "Sing You Sinners" are exceptional pictures, but of the two the nod must go to the Gable-Loy feature because of its action, supporting cast and photography. Both films are interesting.

"The Lady Objects" stars Lanny Ross and Gloria Stuart in a musical drama at the Rialto which is a story of a wife who makes more money than the husband and the misfortunes that result.

George Brent and Humphrey Bogart are cast in "Racket Busters" at the Paramount. These screen he-men put on a fine interpretation of the war being raged to clean out racketeers.

Your old favorite cowboy, Hopalong Cassidy, is riding again at the Capitol and dealing out "Bar 20 Justice." Bill Boyd, in the title role, shares program honors with an eight-act vaudeville.

Where there is news breaking you'll find Clark Gable and Myrna Loy in their latest picture, "Too Hot to Handle," now playing at the Grand. Clark appears as a newsreel photographer and Myrna is the young aviatrix who flies him places.

As husband and wife, Lanny Ross and Gloria Stuart are featured at the Rialto theater in Columbia's newest drama, "The Lady Objects," a story of a brilliant woman lawyer whose husband tires of being supported by her. "The Lady Objects" reaches its smashing climax when Ross is accused of murdering "the other woman" and is defended by his estranged wife.

Gable, Loy Follow 'Test Pilot' With 'Too Hot To Handle.'

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy fans are going to be well pleased with their new co-starring production, "Too Hot to Handle," now at Loew's. And those of you who don't thrill to these two will find this pictorial of the adventures of a newsreel cameraman full of action, good photography and fine acting on the parts of Walter Pidgeon, Walter Connolly and Leo Carrillo.

The story concerns the adventures of newsreel cameraman Gable and Pidgeon—both out to scoop the other and resorting to all kinds of trickery and fraud. Mixed up with them is a pretty aviatrix who is seeking money enough to finance a South American expedition to find her lost brother. This role is played by Miss Loy. Rivals Gable and Pidgeon combine efforts once long enough to obtain financial backing for the expedition and then bee-line it down to get shots for the newsreels.

Leo Carrillo is excellet in his supporting role, playing the part of Gable's Spanish speaking assistant. Walter Connolly is the film executive who orders employes around with the gusto of a Hollywood managing editor between clashes with his wife's attorney over alimony.

Particularly good are the scenes of the native fire dance. "Too Hot to Handle" is full of action and sprinkled with comedy and will pack 'em in at the Grand this week.

Bing Crosby 'Acts Convincingly, MacMurray Sings at Fox.

Bing Crosby plays perhaps the most convincing role in his film career in "Sing You Sinners," now playing at the Fox.

He is cast as the carefree, ne'er-do-well son. Other members of the family are Fred MacMurray, his brother, and Donald O'Connor, another brother, and Elizabeth Patterson, their mother. Ellen Drew is McMurray's sweetheart.

This is Donald's first screen appearance and plays his part as kid brother and jockey capably. It also is Miss Drew's first performance. She is good and she is pretty, too.

Bing's inability to hold a job worries his family and keeps Fred from marrying Ellen as Fred is the financial mainstay. Bing finally leaves home, makes a little money and he buys a race horse. On the success of the horse rests the financial status of the family.

The show is a simple, homey one. It proves Bing can act as well as sing. Hoagy Carmichael does a song for "Sing You Sinners." It is "Small Fry," which the three brothers render effectively. A Mickey Mouse short is on.

'RacketBusters' Is Feature Playing at Paramount.

Another of these motion pictures billed as a story off the front page of your daily newspaper is "Racket Busters," currently showing at the Paramount theater.

With as fine a cast as any picture of this type this season, better than most, "Racket Busters" tells the story of independent truckers who refuse to pay tribute to the czar of the rackets. They resist, though unsuccessfully, until the wife of one is threatened. After that they supply the special prosecutor with the information needed to convict the gang leader.

Cast as the gang leader is Humphrey Bogart and the truckers are George Brent and Allen Jenkins. Gloria Dickson appears as Brent's wife. Walter Abel is the prosecuting attorney. Penny Singleton is also in the cast.

'The Lady Objects' Featured At Rialto Theater.

Columbia has taken a tenor and a beautiful actress and cast them in roles that will stir the emotions of the audience, entertain them and make some conscious-stricken women stop long enough to "take stock" of their own married life.

The picture is "The Lady Objects," which is playing currently at the Rialto theater with Lanny Ross cast as the husband of a career-woman, Gloria Stuart. Of course, Gloria is earning the family bread and butter—but not because Lanny is lazy. He just isn't as successful as she.

Tiring of always seeing his wife the "head of the family," Lanny gets a job in a night club singing. Gloria disapproves. There is a misunderstanding. Then another woman. The woman is killed and Lanny is accused of the murder. At the trial, we see a capable woman lawyer defending her husband and by so doing placing herself on trial.

Songs included for Ross and others to sing are "That Week in Paris," "Home in Your Arms," "When You Are in the Room," and "A Mist Is Over the Moon." Rialto patrons will find "The Lady Objects" has its share of humor, romance and heartaches. Also in the cast are Robert Paige, Ann Doran, Gene Morgan, Beatrice Blinn, Dick Curtis and Lola Jensen.

Hopalong Cassidy Uncovers Mining Feud at Capitol

Cattle rustling is forgotten temporarily in "Bar 20 Justice," opening today at the Capitol, as Hopalong Cassidy and his pals find action in a western gold mine one mile below the ground.

Bill Boyd again is cast as Hopalong, Russell Hayden as Lucky and George Hayes as Windy. Hopalong's friend, a mine owner, is killed and while the death looks accidental, the western cowboy hero believes otherwise and with the aid of his friends uncovers a mining feud which supplies action for the film.

Others in the cast are Gwen Gaze, Pat O'Brien and John Beach.

On the stage "Revue Magnificent" is featured. Among the featured stars are the Avalon Troupe, five teter board actors; the Three Cronies, comedy trio; Helen McClue, tap dancer; Florence LaLoux, oriental and toe dancer; Morris Nelson, tenor; Sue Rogers, character dancer; Pat Patterson, acrobatics, and the Lingerie Girls.

"Bar 20 Justice" finds Hopalong just as thrilling as ever and the western scenery is the most authentic appearing found in any western movie.

Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond took a second-story fire escape in order to get around the crowd of autograph seekers at the preview of "If I Were King" at Westwood village last night. Jeanette ruined a pair of $25 slippers in making a six-foot drop to the ground.

Star of 'Boys' Town'

Spencer Tracy, academy award winner, is the featured player in "Boys' Town," now at the Rhodes.

Jackie Cooper Plays Today At Center

"The Boy of the Streets," starring Jackie Cooper, opens today for three days at the Center theater.

The story concerns Chuck, a product of the slums, and Norah, a pretty little Irish girl who worships him. Chuck, a leader of a neighborhood gang, trying to imitate his father, whom he believes is a big shot in ward politics. When he discovers the latter is only a stooge for the ward boss, and when Norah is sent away to a fashionable school, Chuck leaves home and joins forces with Blackie, a gangster. Others included in the cast are Kathleen Burke, Gordon Elliott, and Maureen O'Connor.

"Reckless Living," featuring Robert Wilcox, Nan Grey and Jimmie Savo, world famous comedian, is billed Wednesday. The story concerns a young man who is trying to make a stake in order to get back to his home town and start over again.

"My Old Kentucky Home" features Evelyn Venable and Grant Richards Thursday. The story of a girl who is about to marry the great love of her life, son of an old family friend, when her dreams are blasted as his ex-sweetheart, trying to kill both herself and the man, lands them all in the headlines.

Friday and Saturday "Crime School," starring Dead End Kids, Gale Page and Humphrey Bogart, will be featured. A human drama of life in reform school, gives a fearless picture of exciting conditions in some of the nation's corrective institutions. By contrasting these with newer, more modern methods of turning wayward boys into useful citizens.

NANCY DREW FILM TO BE PRODUCED

Bonita Granville Will Star in Sequel.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 24.—"Nancy Drew Steps Out" will be the title of the second film in the Warner Brothers' series starring Bonita Granville.

"Nancy Drew, Detective," first of the series, is now in production. The entire series is based on the Carolyn Keene stories which have been best-sellers among adolescents for many years.

Frankie Thomas, young actor from the stage, will portray Miss Granville's boy friend in the screen's "Nancy Drew" stories.

Spencer Tracy Is Now Playing at Rhodes

"Boys Town," starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney, is now playing at the Rhodes theater.

Based on the story of Father Edward J. Flanagan's Boys Town, located 12 miles outside of Omaha, Neb., the picture tells of the priest whose mission in life is to give home and shelter to needy boys. Spencer Tracy is the priest.

Seldom has Tracy found a role more suited to his personality than that of his quiet idealist, Father Flanagan, whose contention that "there is no such thing as a bad boy," leads him to build a monument of faith to boys the world over. His battle to win public opinion and to prove his idealistic contention, as well as his fight to make good citizens of the boys who come within his jurisdiction, provides smash entertainment.

Sharing honors with Tracy is Mickey Rooney as Whitey, tough, unmanageable and non-conforming. Gone in this picture is the flip, wise-cracking Andy Hardy. In his place is a young actor whose ability to tug at the heartstrings marks him as one of the really great young performers of the screen.

Adding further interest to the last in the role of "Angel" to Father Flanagan's dream, is Henry Hull, one of the foremost stage actors of the day, who recently turned his talents toward the screen. Then there is a long to be remembered youngster, 7-year-old Bobs Watson, as the diminutive Pee Wee.

George Brent, Penny Singleton and Allen Jenkins have featured roles in the Paramount theater's current feature, "Racket Busters," another of the popular stories about eliminating criminal gangs.

ANITA LOUISE IS CAST IN NEW TEMPLE MOVIE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 24.—Warner Brothers have lent Anita Louise and Ian Hunter to Twentieth Century-Fox for principal roles in Shirley Temple's next picture, "The Little Princess."

Miss Louise's assignment to "The Little Princess" takes her out of the cast of "Murder Plane," in which she was to have appeared opposite Ronald Reagan at Warner's. Irene Rhodes, new find, will be given her first major opportunity as the feminine lead replacing Miss Louise.

'FOUR DAUGHTERS' SEQUEL PLANNED

Lane Sisters Will Again Star in Picture.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 24.—The national success of "Four Daughters" since its general release a few days ago has led Warner Brothers to announce production of a sequel entitled "Four Daughters Come Home," in which the cast of the original will appear.

Players in the first story who will resume their characterizations in "Four Daughters Come Home" include Priscilla, Rosemary and Lola Lane, Gale Page, Claude Rains, Jeffrey Lynn, May Robson and Frank McHugh.

Fannie Hurst, who wrote the novel on which "Four Daughters" was based, has been asked to write the sequel. Michael Curtiz, who directed the original screen play, will direct "Four Daughters Come Home."

J. W. Piper, Paramount Pictures Tokyo manager, was a guest of Dorothy Lamour, the Orient's favorite star, at luncheon in the Paramount Studio Cafe and on the set of "St. Louis Blues" in which she is working.

Yule Pageant Planned For Atlanta

Metropolitan Atlanta is going to unite to present a Christmas pageant spectacle this year, Dr. Louie D. Newton, chairman of the pageant committee, announced yesterday.

Leaders in Atlanta, Decatur, College Park, East Point and Hapeville are to co-operate in presenting "The Light of the World," a Christmas drama based on the Bible.

Assisted by the WPA and its local and regional officials, citizens of Greater Atlanta will take parts in the play which will depict religious history from the beginning to the present time, it was said.

Two Presentations.

"There will be two presentations of the pageant in the muicipal auditorium, one Christmas afternoon and one on Monday evening, December 26," Dr. Newton said. "There will be no charge for admittance and no commercializing of the occasion in any form. It is the hope of the sponsoring committee that the Christmas pageant will become an established function for the entire community every Christmas.

"Authority for this occasion has been given through a resolution of city council, signed by every member of council, and approved by Mayor Hartsfield. The pageant will be organized under the direction of Eugene J. Bergmann, field supervisor of the recreation division of the Works Progress Administration of Georgia, with J. Lee Harne Jr., recreation supervisor of the Atlanta area, serving as business manager, and August Fischer, state director, giving his active co-operation to the undertaking," the chairman stated.

City council authorized the pageant and named Dr. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, as chairman of the sponsoring committee, with more than 100 prominent citizens of Atlanta and neighboring communities as members of the committee. Dr. Newton issued a call for a meeting of the entire committee in the council chamber at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, October 4, at which time the detailed plans for the pageant will be presented for approval.

Governor E. D. Rivers, Mayor William B. Hartsfield, Mayor Scott Candler, Mayor J. R. Parham, Mayor G. W. Harris and Mayor J. R. Hopalong Cassidy is dealing justice at Bar 20 ranch again, but some of the miners apparently didn't have the proper respect for the "judge." Bill Boyd again appears as Cassidy and here is getting a helping hand from his old partner, George Hayes. "Bar 20 Justice" opens today at the Capitol theater.

Lupe Velez, Lib Holman Peaceful As Curtain Rises on New Show

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—That musical would-be battle of the century, "You Never Know," arrived as Broadway's first song and dance show of the season this week and the result was perhpas a run, perhaps a hit and perhaps no errors.

Lupe Velez and Libby Holman unleashed no left hooks at one another during the colorful evening while Clifton Webb, Rex O'Malley and Toby Wing found no chance to consider themselves innocent bystanders in what had been threatening all during rehearsals to become a free-for-all fight.

With book and lyrics by a dozen or so authors and music by the infallible Cole Porter—you remember, he composed "What Is This Thing Called Love" and so many other hits—"You Never Know" is merely a pleasant song and dance evening.

The plot is a variation of that ancient Viennese bedroom farce where the butler impersonates his master and the maid impersonates her mistress and, Surprise! Surprise!, the butler thinks the maid is a duchess and the maid thinks the butler is a duke. Any 7-year-old child, given paper and pencil, can write the plot from there on to the final curtain.

It is an impressive cast that the Shuberts have peopled this show with as they discovered during the cyclonic rehearsals when the Misses Velez and Holman exploded in temperament and Director Rowland Leigh walked out to give his nerves a rest. Then the Misses Velez and Holman said that they thought each was "a great artiste" and they never said such a blankety-blank thing such as that the other was trying to steal the show.

The "Loooove and re-spact" one another, thees Miss Velez and thees Miss Holman.

Despite these quarrels within the cast, it is these players who give life to the show. Miss Velez has a zing and bounce that adds pep to every scene in which she appears on the stage. Miss Holman is the lachrymose songstress that she was in "Three's a Crowd" except that she needs a smaller stage than the football gridiron on which she plays in the Winter Garden.

For instance, she and Webb sing a number, "No," by that distinguished classical composer, Dana Suesse, which might have been as impressive as when they did "Moanin' Low" together. But, the intimate and blues quality of the song is lost in such a large and rococo theater.

Toby Wing, a blond Philadelphia girl who wandered through Virginia and suddenly found herself in Hollywood, makes her Broadway debut in this one. Although troubled at the moment with the vocal habit tha she "sinks sonks" it is probable that she isn't accustomed to performing without microphones. She has a nice flair for comedy, a verve and lightness and when she acquires stage presence this girl should be more than good.

Then there is June Preisser, making her first solo appearance since her partner sister married someone high in the New Deal administration. The Preisser sisters, both New Orleans girls and therefore cute, were stars when a team and June is even more so by herself.

Also, there is comedian Charles Kemper, who became an actor when he was suddenly drafted to play in a minstrel company when he was baseball pitcher for the Okmulgee, Okla., Orioles.

The point is that in case you do not find the show overly exciting, you at least will find elan and exhuberance among the cast.

Atlanta Music Notes + + +

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG

Good News to Orchestral Players.

Good news comes to young boys and girls of Atlanta who play orchestral instruments in the announcement made by Anna Grace O'Callaghan yesterday that William Arnaud has donated $500 to be used in scholarships for talented boys and girls of the In-and-About Atlanta High School orchestra for a two-month course next summer at the National Orchestra camp at Interlochen, Mich.

Mr. Arnaud's generosity and the spirit that such a gesture shows—that of giving talented young people encouragement and opportunity—cannot be too highly commended. Mr. Arnaud is president of the Atlanta Philharmonic Society, and his interest in the advancement of musical enterprises in the city long has been outstanding. He has done many things all along the way to encourage those who deserve it, and in many instances has made it possible for some boy or girl to have an instrument on which to play. And Mr. Arnaud is so quiet and modest about these kindnesses that no doubt he will be embarrassed to see this announcement, but such generosity as his should not go unmentioned.

These scholarships that the fund will afford will be awarded at the big concert to be given by the In-and-About Atlanta orchestra some time in February, at which time Dr. Joseph E. Maddy will be guest conductor. They will be awarded to members of the orchestra who have done outstanding work and shown exceptional talent.

Miss O'Callaghan, who is director of music in the Atlanta high schools, will hold the first meeting (not a rehearsal) of the In-and-About Atlanta orchestra at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the auditorium of O'Keefe Junior High school. She urges all children, parents and teachers who are interested in the orchestra to be present. At this time plans for the season's work of the orchestra will be formulated, and rehearsal schedules outlined. Miss O'Callaghan will be assisted at this meeting by last year's officers of the orchestra.

Any child who can play an instrument is invited to come, even if he has not played in an orchestra before.

COLLEGE PARK CLUB.

At Wednesday's meeting of the executive board, a "Musical Tour of the World" was presented by Mrs. E. E. Mulvaney, program chairman, as the theme subject of the College Park Music Club for the new club year.

Other plans formulated for the year's work include a membership campaign to be launched prior to the first fall meeting, October 12. The drive will be in the nature of a contest, the member securing the greatest number of new members to be awarded a prize. All persons obtaining as many as 15 new members will be given free club membership for the year. This contest is open to all members.

The club will avail itself of the privilege of attending the concert series sponsored by the Atlanta Music Club and the Atlanta Philharmonic Society.

A near event of the year will be the Bohemian banquet in celebration of the club's seventeenth birthday. This gala occasion will be in February.

The first regular meeting of the fall will be held at the usual place of meeting, the Woman's Clubhouse, October 12, and will be an open meeting to which all friends of the club are invited.

Mr. Everitt leaves in October to tour with the Avon players, well-known Shakespearean troupe, for a national tour. They will open in Atlanta on October 10.

Grace Moore in Film "Louise."

The September issue of Musical America bears an interesting story which tells of the signing of a contract for the filming of Charpentier's opera "Louise," starring Grace Moore.

A French company has been formed and work will begin September 15 at the Paramount studio at Joinville, in the outskirts of Paris. The picture will be under the general supervision of the venerable composer, Gustave Charpentier. The entire score of "Louise" will be used, with 50 minutes of singing, and the balance of the score utilized for background.

It is said that "Louise" will be the most expensive production ever made in France and the first one to use an American star. The composer, Charpentier, selected Miss Moore, whom he has known since she was a student in Paris and studied the role with him.

Miss Moore will appear in the opera "Louise" during the season with both the Chicago Opera Company and the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Miss Moore will be presented in concert in Atlanta on March 1, as the final concert in the All-Star Concert Series.

Thomaston Club Banquet.

The Thomaston Music Study Club officially opened its 1938-39 season with a brilliant banquet at Hotel Upson, in Thomaston, last Friday night, with Mrs. Bethel Ingram, president, as presiding officer, and Mrs. J. C. Jones Jr., toastmistress.

The executive board of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs was well represented, there being present the following officers and state chairmen: Mrs. John B. Guerry, of Atlanta, president; Helen Knox Spain, of Atlanta, vice president, and chairman of publicity; Mrs. W. B. Pullen, of McDonough, vice president and chairman of home music; Mrs. J. E. Pendergrast, of Thomaston, chairman of insignia, and Mrs. J. E. Garner, junior director for the fourth district.

Special guests of the club were Mrs. Ben F. Roberts, of Atlanta, and her four daughters, Frances, Antoinette, Kathryn, and Verdery Roberts, who presented the musical part of the program.

This banquet marked the eighth anniversary of the organization of the club.

"American Music Year."

"American Music Year" was formally launched at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the National Federation of Music Clubs just held in Chicago as the chief project of the organization for the coming months.

Officers and directors from 35 states, headed by Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober, of Norfolk, Va., national president, pledged the co-operation of more than 4,600 clubs in promoting mass singing in communities throughout America, furthering the performance of opera in English, creating additional orchestras to offset the great number of bands, and sponsoring the presentation of the works of American composers by American artists.

Cities are asked to follow the example of Chicago, which has just proclaimed an "opera week," and set aside a week for gala opera presentations, coupled with the conclusion of contests which will give young native artists an opportunity to participate in opera as a recognition of superior musical talent.

The "American Music Year" activities will be climaxed by the biennial convention, to be held in Baltimore, May 16-23, 1939, in conjunction with the most important and significant American music festival in the organization's history.

Georgia, let's fall in line with these plans and present works by American composers performed by our own American talent and our own Georgia talent!

2,000 Workers Live in Film Tent City

The sleepy little hamlet of Lone Pine, Cal., recently was startled out of its lethargy when the inhabitants of the village awoke one morning to the thunder of cannon and staccato chorus of machine gun and rifle fire.

Majestic peaks that enfold the little town reverberated with the sounds of marching feet, cavalry charges and the shrieks of warring tribesmen. A few short miles from Lone Pine, history was being remade. Hollywood magic had transformed the placid topography of the rugged hills around Mt. Whitney into the mysterious and turbulent background of Kipling's panoramic "Gunga Din."

From Hollywood, about 240 miles away, RKO-Radio studios had transported almost 2,000 people to a newly erected tent city built after two years of planning, research and expense. Weeks before the company arrived, an army of workmen constructed three huge sets for exterior shots and built a tent city of 100 structures, ample to house and feed a company of 2,000 persons. Finished, the city was appropriately named Gunga Din.

Gunga Din has a commissary where 400 men can be fed at one sitting;

Boy of the Streets

Jackie Cooper has the leading role in "Boy of the Streets" playing today, tomorrow and Tuesday at the Center theater.

Youth Who Saw Sherman's Horns Still Ardent Baseball Fan at 84

Lewis Bender, Veteran Fireman, Glimpsed Invader and Ran Away.

A veteran Atlanta fireman who once thought that Yankees had horns will celebrate his 84th birthday today.

Lewis Bender, of 1365 Hardee street, N. E., remembers when Sherman marched through Atlanta. In fact, he came down to what is now Peachtree and Auburn avenue to see the famous general, and it was there that he had a strange illusion.

"When I was a boy I was always told that Yankees had horns," he said yesterday, "but when Sherman came into town I decided to see for myself. As the soldiers marched along the streets the sun was shining and there was a peculiar reflection on their hats. Because of that reflection it looked as if they had silver horns. I figured then that what I had heard was true and I turned around and ran in the other direction as fast as I could."

Mr. Bender says he is the only living member of the original volunteer firemen. When it was organized, the date of which he does not remember, it had 150 members. He recalled that firemen were then exempt from taxation. The most narrow escape he ever had was when his $20 trousers were burned.

His father, William Bender, once operated a tailor shop where the new post office building is now located.

Mr. Bender is an ardent baseball fan and is willing to sit up until 2 o'clock in the morning listening to a game. He thinks Buster Chatham is the best player on the Atlanta team, and he'll fight for his belief. He also thinks Paul Richards is a good manager.

The veteran Atlantan has been living at his present home since 1896. He has four children, seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Lily Pons Sings At Concert Oct. 3

When diminutive Lily Pons, leading coloratura of the Metropolitan Opera Company, singing star of Hollywood, and famous radio artist, steps out on the stage of the new city auditorium Monday night, October 3, to formally open the All-Star concert series season, her program will be of a caliber to please even the most demanding.

She will open her program with a group of early classics, "Dites que faut il faire?" anonymous, 18th century, and thre Rossini compositions, "La Promessa," "Tirolese," and "Una voce poco fa," from the "Barber of Seville."

Her second group will offer two Liszt songs, "Comment disauentils," and "Oh! Quad je dors," "Pastorale," by La Forge, and "Pretty Mocking Bird," Bishop-La Forge.

Her operatic aria will be the "Air de Titania," from Thomas' "Mignon."

The fourth group is all French, and includes "Les Rosse d'Ispahan," Faure; "A des Oiseaux," Hue; "Air de l'Enfnat," Ravel; "Green," Debussy, and "Mandoline," Debussy.

Miss Pons will close her program with "Villanelle," Dell 'Acqua.

Frank La Forge, famous composer, coach and pianist, will be Miss Pons' accompanist for the concert.

Born in Cannes, France, Lily Pons cried to be taken to the theater to hear "Lucia de Lammermoor" when only five years old, then came home and picked out on the piano the arias she had heard. She studied piano professionally, but deserted the keyboard for singing, and made her opera debut in "Lakme" in Alsace. She made her debut at the "Met" in 1931, and since then she has had the world at her feet.

TOWN PROTECTS RIGHTS OF RADIO LISTENERS

Little Known Facts About Well Known People

Grand Duchess Marie—The Grand Duchess Who Married So She Could Wear Silk Stockings

By DALE CARNEGIE.

It was my privilege, not long ago, to be a guest in the home of a Princess—the Grand Duchess Marie, of Russia. Her uncle was Alexander III, Czar of Russia. Her cousin was Nicholas II, the last Czar of Russia; and her playmates were the daughters of the Czar of Russia. She is probably the most famous royal personage in the western hemisphere.

I wondered what she would be like. Would she be beautiful and full of charm and personality? Would she be friendly and democratic or would she be aloof and cold?.

Well, I found her to be exquisite and friendly and charming.

She told me an astonishing thing about herself; she is now in her early forties, and she said that during the first half of her life, she had been timid and shy and that she had suffered severely from an inferiority complex.

Born into the wealth and glamour of the mighty Romanoff family that had ruled Russia for 300 years, she was so important that, even as a child, she rode in a golden coach, drawn by three pairs of white horses, and surrounded by mounted hussars in scarlet uniforms.

And she was so famous that crowds would gather on the sidewalks and stand for an hour for the privileges of catching but a glimpse of her royal highness as she passed by. Yet she, a Princess, a Grand Duchess of Russia, suffered acutely from an inferiority complex. Sounds incredible, doesn't it?

Her childhood training had a lot to do with it. She never knew a mother's love, for her mother died when she was a year and a half old; and her father married a second time, and this time, he married a woman who was not of royal blood, so he was banished from Russia and his property was taken away from him. So the little Princess was brought up very largely by strangers—by nurses and governesses and teachers.

This royal Princess of Russia, could hardly speak a word of Russian when she was six years old. Up to that time, she had been taught nothing but English; and it was not good English, either. She dropped her "h's" and said "appy" instead of "happy" just as her English nurses did.

Her tutors kept her in ignorance of the power and prestige that were hers by right of royal birth; and since sons of the royal family in the past had aroused bitter resentment by being too arrogant, her teachers were ordered to put humility into her little soul. And they did, all right.

She told me that she was reared in the most "rigorous simplicity." Those were her exact words—"rigorous simplicity." She said that if she had wasted a piece of bread as big as her thumb-nail, she would have been punished for it. If she dropped a crumb on the floor, she had to pick it up and put it back on the table. And her food was very simple and very plain. Frequently, she had nothing but bread and milk for supper.

Her clothes were extremely plain, too. Although she lived among paintings and works of art that were priceless, and although the royal family of Russia was worth hundreds of millions of dollars, nevertheless, this princess wore cotton dresses and cotton gloves and cotton stockings right up to the time of her marriage. In fact, she told me that one reason why she wanted to marry was the hope that she could have silk stockings after she was married.

Later in life, she lived with her aunt and uncle. Her aunt was jealous of her and resented her presence in the house. If she was only 60 seconds late for a meal, her aunt punished her and she also punished her if she failed to carry on an interesting conversation with the guests. Her aunt wouldn't even let the child laugh in her presence, because she thought childish laughter was shocking and common.

The Princess told me that she never knew what a real home was; that her childhood was sad and lonely, and that her grandmother, Queen Olga, of Greece, was the only person in the world who gave her any real appreciation of what warm love and maternal tenderness could be. Marie was so hungry for affection that she wanted to fling herself into her grandmother's arms; but she said, "I was so little used to caresses that I did not know how to begin."

When she was 16, she wanted a mandolin; but she didn't have the money to buy it and she didn't have the courage to ask her uncle for it. She was afraid he would refuse her. So she got one of her teachers to ask her uncle if she could have a mandolin.

Her uncle said "Yes"—and that was the last word he ever did say, for a few seconds later, an anarchist threw a bomb and blew his body into bits.

Prepare Now for Tulip Time

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

Tulip time comes but once a year for a large number of people, that time is April. But the garden-lover enjoys tulip time twice each year, April and October. On a morning in the middle of October every real tulip-lover goes forth to the garden with bone meal, trowel, spade and sacks of tulips, and there finds the culmination of the fall tulip dream. For days before that morning the thoughts of tulips have been running through her mind, colors, types, heights and places for planting; catalogs have been read carefully, the seed store has been visited and the colored pictures noted. Finally the selection has been made, directions have been followed and the tulip bulbs, apparently dead and with no semblance of the beauty that lies within, have been planted.

In the mind of every real garden lover may be seen a picture of the garden the following April. The pleasures that have been enjoyed in the planting are oftentimes as great as those found in April when the bulbs have blossomed into actual things of beauty.

Of all the flowers that we can grow in our gardens, the tulips give the greatest variety of color. When it is considered that their brilliant contributions to our borders are made in April, before any of the herbaceous flowers have blossomed, their claim to the serious attention of every garden marker must surely be admitted

And they have another great merit; they are so easily grown that failure is almost impossible with them.

The bulbs that blossom in the spring have an advantage in flowering before the weeds have become their competition. Cultivation is not so important to their welfare. They need not be watered, and as no insects of importance prey upon them, it is not necessary to spray them. So on the whole, they bear a crop which is less trouble than anything that follows. Bulbs are emphatically the beginner's flowers. There is seldom a failure with them which can not be traced to poor drainage. They must be planted where water does not stand; and if there is any doubt about it, the bed in which they are planted should be elevated about three or four inches above the surrounding surface.

The present fashion in private gardens is to avoid "bedding out" as the older style is called. Flowers are not used to work out curious designs, and excite admiration for the skill of the designed; but are grown to appear at their best as flowers, and arouse admiration for their beauty. This end is accomplished when they are allowed to grow naturally, without distortion of form, or unduly artificial arrangement. Even in formal gardens, where beds are symmetrical and geometrical, the flowers are grown naturally, simply grouped, with color combinations used not to work a pattern, but to enhance the beauty of the blossoms. This fashion enables us to choose flowers for their beauty, and not for uniformity of height, or adaptibility to formal bedding.

One of the most important reasons that the tulip has been recognized as the leader of the bulbous flowers is its wide range of color. This range of color is limited only by a few shades of blue that will probably be developed within a few years. From the hundreds of varieties of the various species almost any height may be obtained. These heights may vary from the dwarf varieties less than a foot tall, to the giant breeder sorts that sometimes grow more than three feet. The blooming periods for the different varieties vary from the middle of March until the middle of May here in Atlanta. The Darwins and Breeders, which are by far the most popular sorts generally bloom during the middle of April.

There are several distinct, important types: Darwin, Breeder, Cottage, single early, double early, Rembrandt, Parrot and others.

The most important of these is the Darwin family, which is characterized by their enormous goblet-shaped blossoms, thick foliage, vigorous growth, thick, tall stems, usually more than 24 inches long. Their colors never include yellow or whites, and the blossoms never have curled or reflex petals.

The Cottage family is almost as popular as the Darwin. This family includes all of the colors common to the Darwins and in addition include the whites and yellows. The petals are usually pointed, sometimes reflex, and the length of the stem varies from 18 to 24 inches. Inglescombe yellow, the most popular of all the Cottage tulips, is sometimes called the yellow Darwin since it so resembles the Darwins. This canary yellow Cottage tulip and Picotee, which with a pink edge, are the two most important Cottage tulips.

The Breeders flower at about the same time as the Darwins, are even larger in size, and the stems generally slightly longer. They are characterized by their colors, which range throughout the darker pastel shades.

For potting in the house, the most suitable types are the double and single early flowering. These are also very fine for use in porch or window boxes.

The freak of the tulip world is the Parrot tulip, which has not been satisfactorily accounted for by botanists. It is also striped and splashed in red, yellow and green. It has a huge flower with long divisions heavily fringed and slashed along the margins. It also has weak stalks so that it does not lend itself to massing effectively but a few of them, through the brilliancy of the color, their size and unsual shape, always attract attention and admiration.

TULIP CULTURE.

Tulips require very little special culture. They thrive best in a fairly rich, well-drained spot. They do best in full sun, although a half day's sun is sufficient.

A cross-section of an ideal tulip bed would show about six inches of drainage, six inches of good top-soil, the bulb about four to six inches of fine soil, then about two inches of mulch. The drainage would probably be a mixture of sand and small rocks in equal proportions, with probably some old broken clay pots thrown in. The soil underneath the bulb and above the drainage would have a small handful of raw bone meal added. The mulch need not be added on top of the bed until December, as a matter of fact, it would be better to wait until then. This mulch should contain peat moss and wood earth in equal parts. The bulbs are usually planted about six inches apart to gain the proper mass effect.

After the bulbs are planted there is little, if anything that can be done except to wait until next spring and enjoy the riot of beauty that will fill the garden.

WHAT TO DO IN SEPTEMBER.

STRAWBERRIES — Now is the time to prepare the strawberry bed, using large quantities of stable manure thoroughly worked into the soil. This bed should be allowed to stand for about two to four weeks before the plants are set out.

GRASS—Continue to mow the lawn at least once every week to encourage stooling; fertilize once each month for steady growth. If the drouth has killed a large part of your lawn, make your preperations for resowing. As soon as the weather is a bit cooler plant the mixtures. Kentucky blue grass and rye grass. Remember to roll the seeds in with a lawn roller.

LILIES—As soon as you have planted the Madona lilies prepare a bed for the Japanese lilies which will be planted during the dead winter.

PRUNING—It is always time to cut dead wood out of all your plants, shrubs, roses, shade trees, etc. This is particularly true just after a bad drouth such as we have been through. The sooner this dead wood is removed the quicker will the plant recover itself.

BUGS—Our old friends will be with us for a month or six weeks. The old rule that is hard to beat for bugs, although it is an old-fashioned one, is Black Leaf Forty for the sucking insects, arsenate of lead for the chewing insects. Spray rather than dust.

WHAT TO PLANT IN SEMPTEMBER.

VEGETABLES—For fall planting include carrots, cress, corn, salad leek, lettuce, Argone spinach, kale, rape, mustard, radish, Swiss chard and turnips.

VEGETABLE PLANTS—Cabbage and collard plants may be set out now.

ONION SETS—One of the best onion planting months is September. New Yellow Danver, Silver Skin onion sets, multipliers, eschellotes and Bermuda onion sets may be planted now.

MADONNA LILLIES—The sooner Madonna lilies are planted the better.

IRISES—German iris may be planted and preparation should be made for the bulbous iris which will soon follow.

PERENNIALS—Pansies, hollyhocks, delphinium, aquilegia, canterbury bells, Shasta daisy, English daisy, foxglove, Oriental poppies, gypsophila, candytuft and rudbeckia may all be started from seed.

GRASSES—We will have to give our lawns immediate attention. Rye grass for the Bermuda lawns may be planted now, too. Rye grass may be planted at the rate of 10 pounds to the thousand square feet and the mixtures at the rate of five pounds to the thousand square feet.

BULBS—Daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, crocus may all be planted now.

The Planets—Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

SEPTEMBER 25—SUNDAY: Several favorable influences culminate during the day and until 7:27 p. m., making today favorable for usual Sunday interests—religion, travel, congenial gatherings music, and dealings with professional people. After 7:27 p. m. complications, misunderstandings, and unusual but devastating dealings with loved ones may occur, with sudden break-ups.

SEPTEMBER 26—MONDAY: Previous to 3:38 p. m. people will be subject to extreme and unexpected moods. You are apt to be led by your emotions, rather than by common sense after 3:38 p. m., but at this time much can be accomplished in affairs that are conservative, and for the good of others.

SEPTEMBER 27—TUESDAY: More will be accomplished by conducting your business, personal and professional affairs along sonservative lines previous to 3:56 p. m. This is not the time to inaugurate new ideas, or introduce new methods. Personal dealings with the public and with women may suddenly be upset. After 3:56 p. m. making personal contacts to seek favors, enjoying social activities, dealing with women, and working with matters that pertain to adornment—whether of the person or in the home—will show favorable results.

SEPTEMBER 28—WEDNESDAY: The entire day until 10:28 p. m. favors quietness and seclusion. This is apt to be a time of depressed feelings, when your mind will be upset, and you will be thoughtless and prone to mistakes. This is a most unfavorable period for dealings in land, for moving, contacting older people, and for new beginnings.

SEPTEMBER 29 — THURSDAY: Very activating influences continue throughout the day and until 5:21 p. m. Such feelings cause people to be too fast, and forceful, ready to argue, and in a personal way bring anxiety, impatience and hastiness which leads to dangers by falls, fires and accidents. From the standpoint of health, there is apt to be much indigestion, nervousness and feverishness. Better progress and clear thinking with the ability to come to terms follows for the remainder of the afternoon and evening.

SEPTEMBER 30—FRIDAY: New beginnings made previous to 7:50 a. m. should result favorably. This is an auspicious time to start travels and communications, and to make changes. Between 7:50 a. m. and 9:16 p. m. agreements need deep study before going into action, for you are likely to overestimate, be given false information, and thereby become involved in affairs of a shaky or risky nature.

OCTOBER 1—SATURDAY: The entire day and evening favor continuation of work already started. Previous to 6:24 p. m. is not a favorable time for promoting friendships with important people. New beginnings may ooze out in futility. After 6:24 p. m. move slowly in sports, finance and legal affairs.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Should you receive an important telephone call, giving you the first news you have of a certain thing, look and see if the influences at that particular time are friendly or unfriendly. The outcome of that call will be colored by the influence prevailing then.

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By MRS. FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

Question: When should I plant lily-of-the-valley?

Answer: Any time from now until the middle of December. Be careful that the pips are not dried out. If they should look a bit dry I would advise soaking them for several hours before planting. The soil should be well prepared, with plenty of leaf mold or lacking this, use peat moss. Plant on the north side of the house and in partial shade. They like moisture. When making the bed for the first time place some manure from 15 to 20 inches deep in the ground. The soil above this needs much humus. Plant the pips not more than two inches deep. After several years they will need dividing. Each December mulch two or three inches deep with decayed manure. Do not pile leaves on the bed for you are likely to smother your plants.

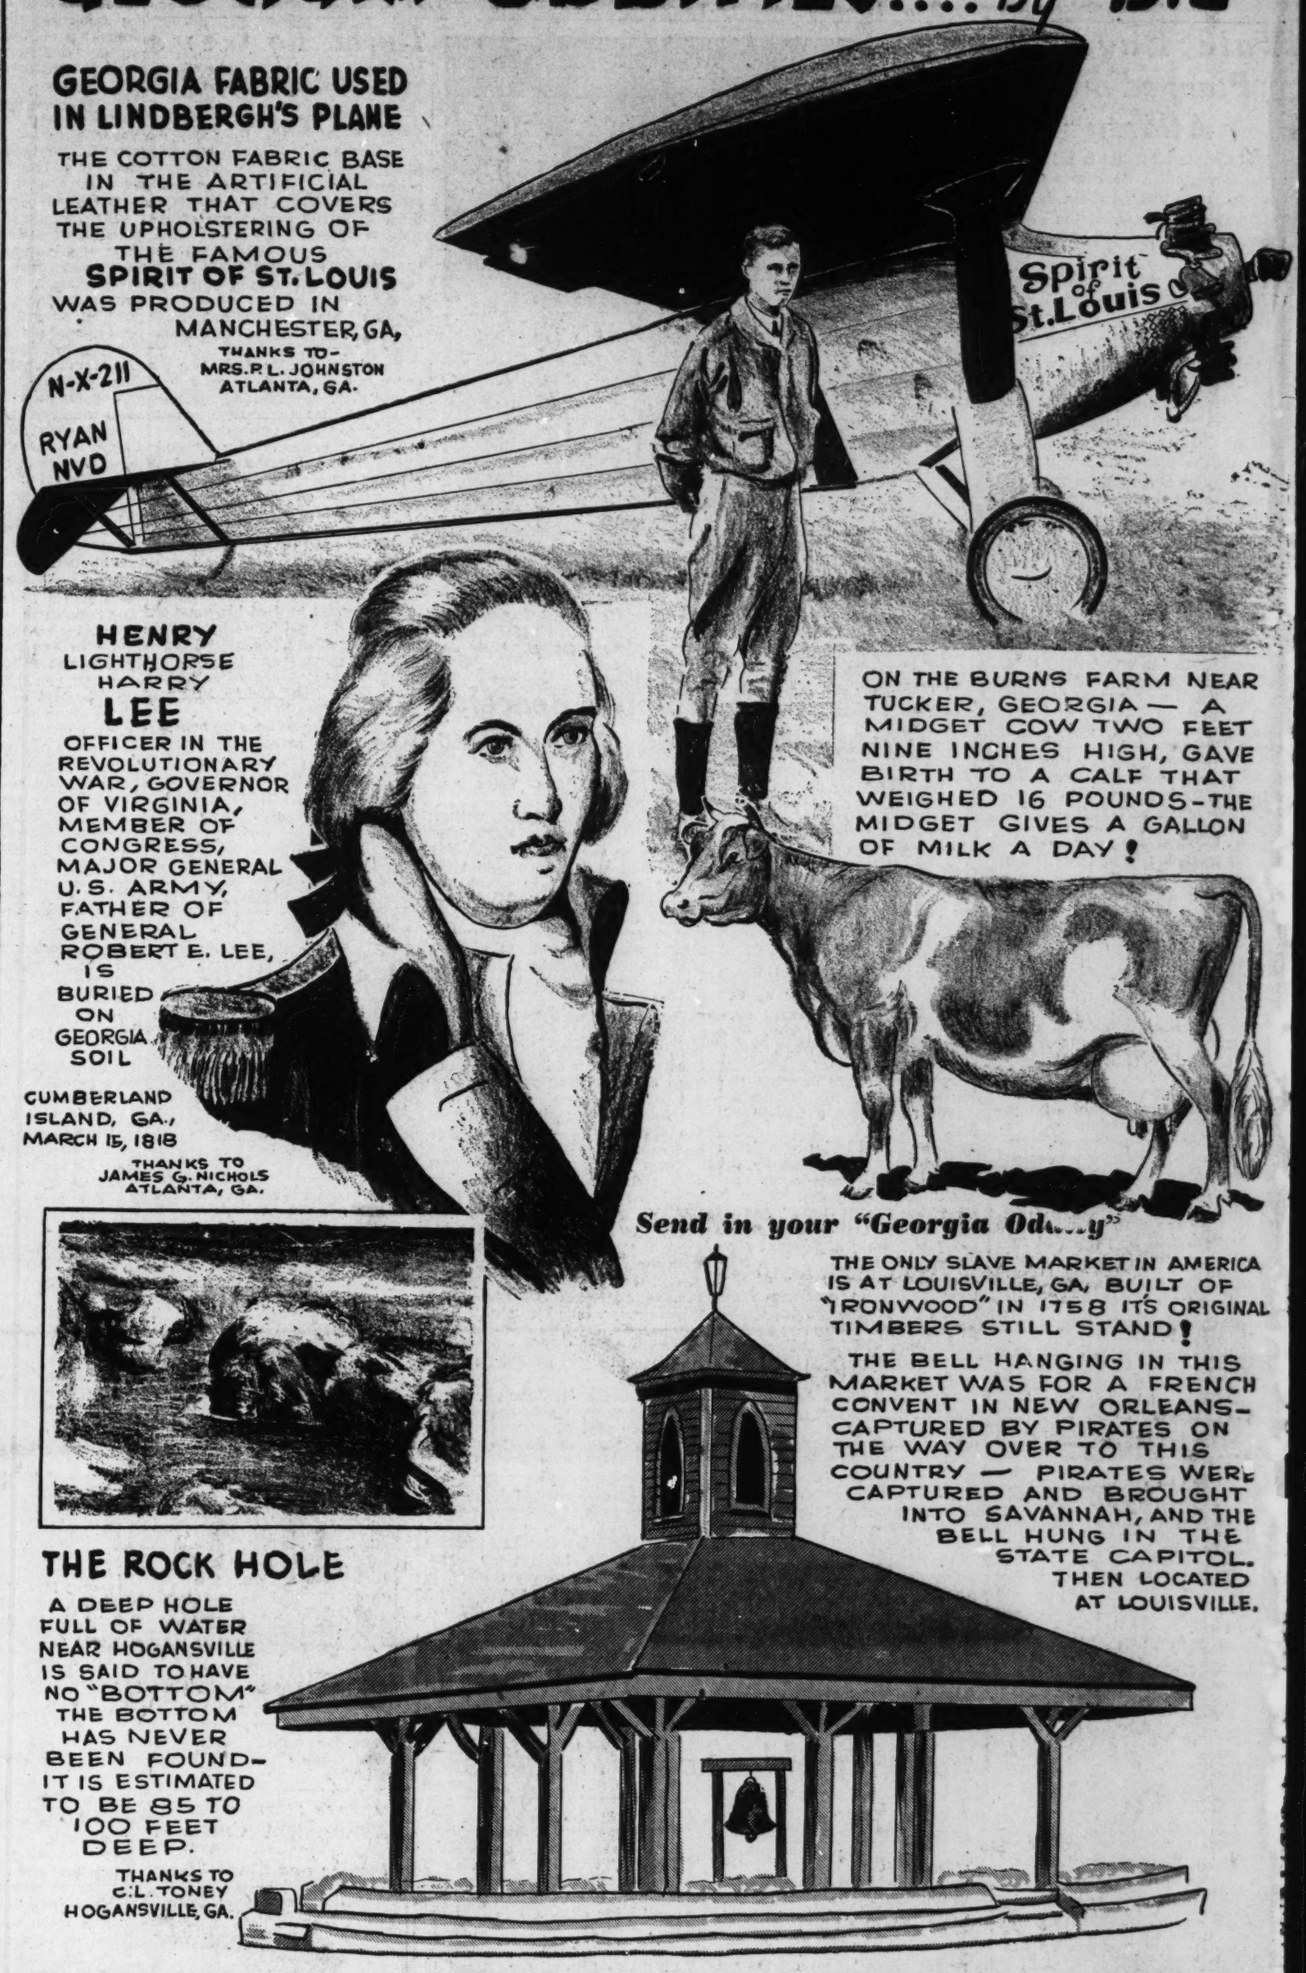

Question: Should hyacinths be planted now or should I wait late as I do for tulips?

Answer: I like to plant narcissus and hyacinths early. In fact any time from now on, and the earlier the better. Both of these bulbs make much root growth in the fall and on this growth depends the vigor of the bulb. Prepare your soil well. Do not use manure, but use bone meal or super-phosphate. These bulbs can be divided every four or five years.

Question: Can you offer any suggestions about planting peonies?

Answer: Now is the best time of the year to plant peonies, and it is important to plant them right, then leave them alone for 10 years, and if they are still doing well leave them alone for 10 more years. Plant them in the sun for they bloom better. Do not overcrowd with other plants. Dig the hole two feet deep and two feet square. Place drainage in the bottom of the hole, then some newly fallen leaves and next a big bucket full of manure. Fill the rest of this hole with rich garden soil to within three inches of the top. Some bone meal added to this soil will be beneficial. Place your peony root with the eyes up, cover with two inches of soil. Mark the spot so that you will not disturb it before spring. If you have establlshed peony plants be sure to cut off the foliage during the fall and burn it. Dead peony foliage is likely to harbor disease. As soon as they begin to show above the ground in the spring begin spraying with bordeaux to kill all bacterial troubles.

"Then I dragged him down t fence row and threw him into th highest weeds I could find."

The case was called for trial Feb ruary 12, 1934, before the Hon. Fe Brewster. Four days later the jur returned a verdict of guilty and th defendant was sentenced to the stat penitentiary for life.

Sheriff Zivley and his brother of ficers were jubilant.
